I look on the arch of the midnight skies:
With their blue and unsearchable mysteries;
The moon, 'midst an eloquent multitude
Of unnumbered stars, her career pursues;
A charm of sleep on the city fell,
All sounds lay hushed in that brooding spell;
By babbling brooks were the buds at rest,
And the wild-bird dreamed sweet on his downy nest.

I stood where the deepening tempest passed;
The strong trees groaned in the sounding blast;
The murmuring deep with its wrecks roll'd on,
The clouds overshadowed the mighty sun;
The low reeds bent by the streamlet's side,
And hills to the thundering-peal replied;
The lightning burst forth on its fearful way,
While the heavens were lit in its red array!

Pope's Willow.—The first weeping willow in England was planted by Alexander Pope, the poet. He received a present of figs from Turkey, and observing a twig in the basket ready to bud, he planted it in his garden, and it soon became a fine tree. From this stock, all the weeping willows in England and America originated. (The Willow was introduced in Nova-Scotia, by a gentleman's breaking up a Dutch basket, and planting the parts in his ground.)
