

thirty cases more than half the article to be found in this edition was not in the old, whilst in addition there are over twenty entirely new articles. In order to make room for this new matter, some of the discussions no longer of living interest or dealing with questions that appear to have been settled have been excluded. Even so, the book is very considerably longer than hitherto. Room has, however, been found for a much more exhaustive index than has yet been given the book, and it is hoped that in future no difficulty can arise as to finding the matter required—whilst the index will render it a useful guide to ancillary subjects for debate or discussion.

Any criticisms or indications of errors, whether of omission or commission, will be thankfully received by me.<sup>1</sup>

W. T. S. S.

1, Temple Gardens,

May, 1911.

<sup>1</sup> Under cover to my publishers, Messrs. Geo. Routledge & Sons, Ltd., Broadway House, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C.