QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Miscellaneous.

REGISTERING DOGS.

I have a pure-bred bob-tailed English sheep dog which I wish to get registered. Where would I have to send, and what would I send to get his pedigree?

T. S.

Ans.—Write for a blank form to H. B. Donovan, Victoria St., Toronto, or the Secretary, A. K. C., 55 Liberty St., New York.

VENEERING WITH CEMENT.

I built a house last summer, intending to veneer it with brick. Owing to the scarcity of brick and bricklayers, I did not get it done. It is finished inside. Would it do to veneer it with cement as a solid wall? I do not want to lath it, as I have roofing paper on the outside, and it is scarcely possible to get lath here now. Anyway, it would cost too much. Would water-lime do? It would cost less than half what cement would, and would not absorb rain as cement does. Would frost affect the water-lime? I don't think much of cement blocks, as rain goes right through them. Any information you may give, through your valuable paper, will be thankfully received.

A NOVICE.

Ans.—We know several houses that have been veneered with cement concrete, and they seem to be satisfactory. The veneer is about four inches thick. Ordinary gravel and cement concrete can be used, and a finish made afterwards, by plastering with a fine-grained concrete, and grooving to imitate mortar lines. Or by the use of cleats tacked on to the retaining planks, and a fairly-fine concrete, a wall resembling one built of stone blocks with bevelled corners can be built at one operation. We are not sure what is meant by water-lime unless it be rock cement. If such is used, a greater proportion has to be mixed in the concrete than is required of Portland cement.

DRY BRAN OR MASH FOR HORSES—MIXED GRAIN FOR HOGS—TANNING COON SKIN WITH HAIR ON.

1. Is dry bran, fed with oats, good for horses and colts, say about a quart each night, or would it be better to feed bran mash?

2. What is the best way to grow barley and oats for hog feed? Would it be best to mix before sowing, or would it be better to sow separately? If mixed, how would you mix them?

3. Could you tell me how I could tan a couple of coon skins with the hair left on?

C. C. M.

Ans.—1. A quart of dry bran, mixed with the oat feed at night, is excellent for horses and colts. There is no need of making the bran into a mash.

2. The case of growing mixed grains for hogs is no different from growing them for other stock. A slightly larger yield, by weight, may be obtained, but the chances for success with clover and grass seedling are scarcely so good, although one of our correspondents suggests that this fact may be due to the greater thickness with which mixed grains are usually sown.

However, it stands to reason that if the mixed grain gives a bigger yield than one kind alone, it must abstract more plant food and moisture from the soil, thus decreasing, to that extent, the chances of success with the clover seedling. If it is not desired to seed down with the grain crop, sow the oats and barley together, in proportion of 1½ bushels barley to 1½ bushels of oats. If seedling, do not sow more than 1 bushel of barley and 3 pecks of oats.

3. We always advise sending to a tannery. Three recipes for tanning such skins with the hair on were given in our issue of January 11th. We reprint one of them: Stretch the skin smoothly and tightly upon a board, hair side down, and tack it by the edges to its place. Scrape off the loose flesh and fat with a blunt knife, and work in chalk freely, with plenty of hard rubbing. When the chalk begins to powder and fall off, remove the skin from the board, rub in plenty of powdered alum, wrap up closely, and keep in a dry place for a couple of days. By this means it will be made pliable, and will retain the hair.

Health Insurance for Poultry

By correcting digestive troubles and destroying the poisonous germs of disease, Dr. Hess Poultry Panacea is a guarantee against loss. Every package is an insurance policy on the life of your poultry; on the health of every chick. By its action on the digestive organs it compels the system to extract the largest possible amount of nutrition from the food, and quickly convert it into bone, muscle, feathers, eggs, etc.

DR. HESS Poultry Pan-a-ce-a

is the prescription of Dr. Hess (M.D., D.V.S.) and cures gaupes, cholera, roup, indigestion, leg weakness and the like. It is endorsed by leading poultry associations in the United States and Canada. Costs but a penny a day for about 30 fowls, and is sold on a written guarantee. In setting hens sprinkle both hen and nest with Instant Louse Killer, and the brood will come off free from lice.
