The Lardeau, B. C., Eagle says: The Lardeau, B. C., Eagle says:

The Metropolitan group, which became the property of Rev. Charles W. McCrossan, of Chatham, Ont., (with offices in Duluth, Minn.) last week is one of the most promising properties in the Lardeau camp. Although the ground is well known to old-timers, not until this season has its latest and best shewings been discovered. In the Metropolitan group the new owners have one of the best prospects of the district—another of Lardeau's grass-root shippers, and there is no reason why ere the railway reaches here this group should not have thousands of dollars' worth of ore out and ready for shipment. Even at present, the ore being so high grade, they bould ship at an immense profit.

Concerning the Sunset group the Eagle says: Rev. Chas. W. McCrossan, secretarystreasurer of the Goldea Link Mining Company, and C. Miller, the company's broker, have been recently visiting their various properties in this district. The Sunset group of four claims, recently acquired by ed by the company, promises to be of more than passing interest to this Duty'of Mistress and Servant. So much has been written concerning the servant-girl question that it seems almost as if the American housewife ought to know by this time what to expect of her maid, and what her maid expects of her. A certain man who seems to know as much about the subject as the average woman has issued a proclamation that tells how to have and to keep ideal servants. His recipe follows: Run your household on business principles; servants should have reg-ular hours of service daily.

Be Doesn't Like Aquartums.
Why any one should ever have de sired to own or to visit an aquarium is a mystery. The view of fish, except when nicely grilled or when suspended at the end of a fishing line, is one of the most uninteresting of sights. The other animals when in confinement display traits which are more or less interesting. The lion has a sense of hunor and displays it in the most pleasing way when he devours the tamer who has entered too often into his cage. The bear in his thirst for buns seems so much like the human boy that the spectator of his antics frequently feels an irresistible desire to hit him with a stick.

But the fish has not a single interesting trait. He will swim around the tank in which he is confined with a persistence which is maddening to the pervous spectator. He never engages in a genuine fight, but contents himself with an occasional surreptitious bite of an enemy's tail, which gives no true satisfaction to the beholder. If he happens to be a large snake thinly disguised as an eel or an octopus or some other alarmingly ugly fish, he will sometimes swim directly at the glass through which the visitor is looking at him and thereby give the latter a mo mentary sensation of horror, but the average fish cares nothing for the public and treats his visitors with calm contempt. An aquarium without fish, like a seashore resort without the sea, is unobjectionable, but an aquarium with real water and real fish is the dreariest object in nature.-W. L. Alden in Pearson's Magazine.

The Paris Cab Driver.

Outside of many wine shops in Paris and in the principal cities of France a sign is often to be seen bearing the words, Au cocher fidele ("To the faithful cocher"); beneath it a driver is pictured, hat in hand, restoring to a centleman and lady, the hirers of the coach, a purse forgotten on the cushons of the vehicle. This is not a conception of the artist, nor vile flattery of the restaurant or wine shop to draw thither the coachman with a foible for the bottle, but a reality which often occurs and of which the cocher has every right to be proud.

Anybody who has lived any length of time in Paris will indorse the statement. Who has not forgotten an umbrella, a walking stick, a small satchel or some little object on the seat or floor of a public vehicle? And who has not had his property restored without even having taken the number of the vehicle, without any remembrance of the physiognomy of the driver? By a simple application to a special office at the prefecture of police, where all objects found in public carriages are deposited and arranged according to the date and hour at which they were brought in, one is able promptly to regain possession of his lost property.

This reflects great credit on the Paris "cabbies," few of whom, by the way, are born Parisians.

The Trunk Paid. Some years ago a man ran up a bill of $200 in the Tremont House, Chicago, and then ran away without settling it. The trunk which remained in his room was unusually heavy and when opened after his departure was found o contain specimens of ore, brought from the gold and silver mines of Colorado, where presumably he had lost all his money. After waiting out the legal time Mr. Gage sent the contents of the trunk to an assayer, who returned two bits of metal valued at more than $100 in excess of the bill after deducting his own fees.

Consequent ly the Bishop went down to the little town to make an inspection of the building, and summoned the architect to meet him there."

The Bishop could find nothing amiss with the exterior of the church, nor with the interior, until just as he reached the chancel he looked up and saw four wooden images apparently guarding the pulpit. "What do those figures represent?"

he inquired. "The four evangelists, my lord," replied the architect.
