LECTURE IN AID OF RED CROSS WORK

At the Lyric Hall on Monday evening there was a good sized audience to listen to Prof. W. F. Watson explain the events which led up to the present war. W. D. Keith was chairman and, after two reels of a picture called "The Ring and the Man," introduced the speaker of the evening.

The professor, in opening his lecture, remarked that the great mass of the German people were not responsible for the present world crisis, but rather they had been led into the war by false teachers who ranked among the brightest minds of Europe. These teachers have not advocated justice in dealing with other nations, but centre all their energies on the right of force with a view to ruling the world. One of the greatest of the German writers had declared that the world had outgrown the teachings of the lowly Nazarene and that in this day might was right.

The speaker did not weary his audience with a formidable array of dry figures or a brilliant display of flowery language, but gave a clear, concise statement of the aim of the German aristocracy, which is the militarism of the empire.

Prof. Watson stated that in New York recently, in conversation with a German officer of high rank, it had been openly stated that Germany had prepared plans and specifications for taking both Canada and the United States. In all his travels over the country since the war began in no place had he found so much pessimism as in Hartland. As an optimist during the present struggle the speaker proved himself a worthy example for the people of this country. We must not be downcast because of reverses now and then. These are to be expected, and in most instances they have cost the Germans more heavily in men and munitions than the successes were worth from a military standpoint. The wearing process on the enemy is telling and in the end justice and right will prevail. Lord Kitchener said the war would take three years, and the lecturer was inclined to the belief that the great hero of Khartoum had planned the wearing effect as the surest method of crushing German militarism in its effort to rule the world.

After the lecture, and while ice cream was being dispensed, Mr. Carr moved and it was seconded and passed that a vote of thanks be tendered Prof. Watson for his lecture and that Mr. Hull receive thanks of the audience for the picture reels, which were given free. Before the last two pictures were shown Mrs. C. H. Taylor, in good voice, sang "Beside the Camp Fire." At the close of the entertainment the audience sang the National Anthem. Mrs. Gillin presided at the piano. The receipts of the entertainment amounted to $34.

Two-year-old Child Burned to Death

On Friday the little two-year-old girl of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Clark, who live on the upper Rockland road, was so severely burned that the poor little thing died in less than an hour.

The parents were both absent when the child, playing with fire, ignited its clothes, which were burned off, searing the flesh most horribly. The tragedy was heart-rending to the parents, and shocking to all who heard of it.

At Presque Isle, also last week, a small child was burned to death in a house that caught fire.

HORRIBLE DEATH OF JOHN KEEZER

When John Keezer, C. P. R. engineer, was instantly killed in Hartland yard on Monday morning the village witnessed its most gruesome tragedy.

Mr. Keezer was driver on the mixed train from Aroostook Jct. to Woodstock. When he pulled into the yard he dismounted from the engine to get his pay-check cashed at the bank. The conductor waited a moment and when he emerged from the bank gave him the "high ball" signal to go. This Mr. Keezer passed on to his fireman, who started the train. The ill-fated man climbed the side of a box car intending to walk forward to the engine. It is not known how he fell, but marks along the track showed where he made an agonized effort before finally letting go whatever frail hold he may have had. Death must have been instantaneous when he struck the rail. His head and one hand were clean severed, an arm was broken, and his body horribly mutilated.

At the south end of the yard the fireman, fearing some mishap, stopped the train, and the crew was horrified to find the remains some distance in the rear.

A. R. Foster was the only available officer. Under his instructions the remains were placed on the train and he accompanied them to Woodstock. Upon arrival there Coroner Foster officiated and the jury, after hearing the evidence, found a verdict of accidental death with blame attaching to no one.

Mr. Keezer was about 45 years of age, and leaves his wife and one child. He had railroaded all his life and was considered one of the company's most capable engineers. His home was in Woodstock.

The funeral was largely attended, particularly by fellow employees of the railway.

Mrs. Abigail Bartley

Died at Beadonsfield, Aug. 4th 1915, Mrs. Abigail Fulton Bartley, aged 68 years, 5 months; deceased was born in Greenfield. She was united in marriage to John E. Bartley in 1868, residing in Knoxford for a number of years, then removing to Beadonsfield where they have resided. Seven children have blessed their union, four who have preceded her in "the beyond." The others are Havelock and Thomas of Westfield and Wellington, who resides on the homestead farm. Husband, sons and eleven grandchildren and a large circle of relatives and friends mourn their loss.

Base Ball in England

The Canadian boys training for the war in England have time to indulge in base ball. A letter in the St. John Globe says the team of the 26th Reg. is the star, and the line-up shows the name of Roy Stevens of Hartland as second baseman.

T. J. Hurley has left with The Observer a freak of nature that grew in his corn patch. It is seven small corn cobs which grew like a bunch of bananas in one husk, and a number of smaller stalks with it look like oats. It is very remarkable.
