

400 MEN ENTOMBED.

Disastrous Explosion in and Illinois Coal Mine.

Heroic Rescuers Lose Their Lives For Others.

Disaster Caused by Hay Taking Fire Underground.

Cherry, Ill., Nov. 14.—Nearly 400 men and boys, it is believed to-night, are dead or perishing in the St. Paul mine as a result of yesterday's fire, though experts who penetrated the smoke-filled air shaft to a depth of 300 feet early to-night returned with a ray of hope for the grief-stricken relatives of the entombed men.

That the fire is extinguished is the report of mining experts sent by Governor Deneen to investigate the calamity and its cause. For more than thirty hours the prisoners had been cut off from fresh air before the shaft was entered to-night, and undoubtedly have been subjected to smoke and gases.

That life could exist under the terrible conditions is doubted by many, but because no trace of high temperature was found in the depths of the mine to-night friends of the miners and even officers of the company regained some of their failing hope.

When explorations were abandoned to-night it was announced that men fitted with oxygen armor would probably penetrate to the bottom of the mine to-morrow.

The list of the missing miners, compiled to-day, reached the total of 385, including the twelve dead whose charred bodies were taken from the burning cages Saturday. It was declared to be probable that this might be increased.

One hundred and seventy men who entered the mine Saturday morning have been accounted for. Among the missing are many Americans who have lived for years in the mining fields of Illinois, though most of those entombed are of foreign-born. Most of the men had families. Arrangements are under way to relieve the families of the victims. It is probable that supplies for their needs will be arranged for by the railway company. With winter approaching, the catastrophe has dealt every home in Cherry a terrible blow. The breadwinners in hundreds of homes are either dead or incapacitated for work.

William Vickor, who was at work at the face of the coal mine, was one of the few who came out alive. For more than 200 yards he crawled in the dark on hands and knees, using the rail as a guide to the bottom of the shaft. At one point, he says, he met about 60 miners sitting in a row along the road. They had given up the struggle and were waiting resignedly for death.

"I and my buddy (partner) were at work on the second vein level, when the fire alarm was sounded," said Vickor. "We started for the bottom, but had gone but a few feet when our lights went out. Our entry was fast filling with smoke. "All about us we could hear shouts of our comrades in adjoining rooms. I dropped to my hands and knees and began to crawl around the rails shouting at intervals to my buddy. Within a hundred feet of the mine mouth, I began to grow faint. I pulled my coat closely around my face and struggled on. I escaped death by just three minutes. When I arrived at the bottom of the shaft the last stage was about to ascend. I shouted as the signal bell was ringing. Two men broke their way to me and dragged me to the cage. Then I lost consciousness. When I came to I was safely on top."

The fire which caused the tragedy had an origin almost trivial. A pile of hay caught fire in one of the underground stables, and, being allowed to smoulder too long, finally ignited the timbers of the mine, and before the workers realized their danger, the mine was filled with smoke, gases and flames, and all exit was impossible. Heroism such as is rarely exhibited was shown by officials of the mine and by residents of the town of Cherry. While smoke and even jets of flame swept up through the entrance of the mine, the cage which carried the miners to their work continued to ascend and descend.

Fourteen men from above descended after the explosion to render what assistance they could. Only one of them came back alive. The bodies of five were brought to the surface, while those of the others are still below.

Standing out above all the others is the story of Dr. L. B. Howe, the "man who came back." The only one of the heroic fourteen who survived to tell what happened. Seven times before the other rescuers began to go into the burning shaft he descended alone in a lift, and each time brought to the surface his quota of saved. Twenty-five miners owe their lives to him.

His hands are badly burned. When asked to describe his experiences he merely said: "I couldn't have done anything else than I did. It is not worth talking about."

Finally it was decided that the only way to check the flames was to board over the entrance to the mine. The opening was almost hermetically sealed and the flames left to smother themselves. To-night they are believed to be out.

John Mitchell, Vice-President of the American Federation of Labor and representative of the mining organization, when seen last night, said that the Cherry disaster would be brought before the Federation on the resumption of business this morning. He explained that the Federation had no power to send any financial aid to the sufferers, and that the most that could be done would be the adoption of a resolution of sympathy with the relatives of those who had been killed.

Mr. Mitchell's home was for many years at Spring Valley, which is not far from Cherry. The mine in which so many have lost their lives is controlled by the Chicago, Pennsylvania & St. Paul Railway Company, the St. Paul Coal Company being the name of the operating company. The output is about 2,000 tons a day, while some 500 men are employed. That number, the great majority are foreigners. The mine workings reach a depth of three hundred feet.

Millions for Defense.
The total annual cost of Germany's land and sea defense is now $977,400,000 marks, without taking account of the 600,000 to 700,000 able-bodied men who are kept from profitable employment, representing in productive capacity as much as 1,500,000,000 marks per year.

Check That Cough

It is a great mistake to let a cough or cold run unchecked. Aside from the unpleasantness and discomfort there is a real danger in the resulting irritation of the throat, lungs and bronchial organs, which leaves them sore and very susceptible to pneumonia and consumption. It is not our purpose to recommend any particular brand of patent cough medicine. A simple, inexpensive and very effective remedy can easily be prepared at home by mixing two ounces of Glycerine and a half-ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine with eight ounces of pure Whiskey. This formula is frequently prescribed and is highly recommended by the Leach Chemical Co., of Windsor, Ont., who prepare the genuine Virgin Oil of Pine for dispensing through druggists. It is claimed that a teaspoonful of this mixture four times a day will break up a cold in twenty-four hours and cure any cough that is curable.

LASHED HIM.

Suffragette Horsewhips Mr. Winston Churchill.

Bristol, Eng., Nov. 13.—A smartly-gowned suffragette, armed with a horsewhip, attacked Mr. Winston Churchill here this afternoon. Mr. Churchill and his wife had just arrived by train when a woman suddenly darted out from the crowd and commenced to belabor the Cabinet Minister with a rawhide. Mr. Churchill promptly seized his assailant and after a struggle succeeded in wrenching the whip from her hands. The suffragette was arrested.

At the Police Station Mr. Churchill's assailant was identified as Therese Gunnert. The officers who made the arrest said that the suffragette broke through the police line on the station platform, and, bringing down the lash of a long whip upon the Minister's head, shouted: "Take that, you brute!" Mr. Churchill's hat broke the force of the blow, but the lash curled about his face and left a red mark. As the police seized the woman she pointed scornfully at the Minister's deuted hat, and, while her face flushed with excitement, cried: "That's what you have gotten, and you will get more of the same from British women."

TIMES PATTERNS.

AN ATTRACTIVE LITTLE DRESS.

No. 700.—The little guimpe dresses for girls are shown in many variations, but nothing simpler or daintier could be imagined than this little one-piece model. The dress is made to slip on over the head, the back and front being exactly alike. The guimpe is of white muslin, trimmed with fancy tucking and lace insertion. The neck is finished by a standing collar, and the fulness at the waistline is adjusted by a drawstring in a casing. The sleeves are full length completed by narrow bands. The dress may be suitably developed in mohair, cashmere, pongee, albatross, delaine, pique and gingham. For a girl of six years two yards of material 36 inches wide will be required for the dress and 1½ yards for the guimpe.

Child's one-piece dress with guimpe. No. 700. Sizes for 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10 years.

A pattern of the accompanying illustration will be mailed to any address on receipt of ten cents in silver or stamps.

Address, "Pattern Department," Times Office, Hamilton.

It will take several days before you can get pattern.

In the presence of the girl he loved, Gustave Fourie, a Belgian, committed suicide in Montreal on Saturday night by putting a revolver in his mouth and almost blowing the top of his head off. He had bothered the girl, also a Belgian, named Marie Freion, for some time and she was afraid of him. He refused to marry her.

GAMBLING THE THEME

Of Strong Sermons In Two City Churches Yesterday.

Denounced Alike by Presbyterian and Methodist.

Third of Series on "Young Man and His Evenings".

"The Sin of Gambling" was the subject of an impressive and interesting sermon delivered on Sunday evening in St. John Presbyterian Church by the pastor, Rev. John Young. He referred to the special effort being made just now by many presbyteries and religious gatherings to have the Criminal Code changed so as to forbid the great evil of gambling. In many places in the United States gambling in connection with race tracks was not allowed, it having been discovered that it was injurious to the moral welfare of the community. The prohibition of race track betting in the States had increased the evil in Canada. Mr. Young then explained why gambling was a sin. First, he said, it was a violation of the laws upon which wealth was established. Justice demanded that an equivalent be given for all wealth received, and in gambling none was given. The law of work was not recognized. The Creator intended that man should work, and for that work he should receive remuneration. In betting no work was demanded, the wealth being handed over to the receiver without any exertion on his part. The law of love was also violated. Christ, the great teacher, said: "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you." But he who takes a wager was doing unto his neighbor what he did not want done unto himself. Another reason was the violation of the law of wisdom. Many must lose where one would win, and in many cases only one man in a hundred of twenty-five or fifty. Whoever took a chance against so many failures certainly was unwise. Gambling was also a violation of the true law of sport. He who gambled went into the sport not because of the value of it as a recreation or a pastime, but for the money which was in it. The true idea of sport was overwhelmed by the longing to increase their own financial welfare. If all these laws were violated it was impossible for true character to be formed, and it also made the great fundamental ambitions of mankind to be despised. The preacher said that if these conditions were true it behooved every Christian person to discourage the great evil in every way possible.

In conclusion, Mr. Young said that gambling was detrimental to the individual, thus to society and the state, and for the welfare of all it was necessary to have the law changed so as to prohibit all forms of gambling whether at the race track, church raffles or any other place.

YOUNG MEN'S EVENINGS.

In First Methodist Church last night Rev. E. R. Lancelotti preached the third of a series of special sermons on "A Young Man and His Evenings," his subject being "Pleasure in the Path" and his text, "The love of money is the root of all evil." It was a very strong sermon on the gambling evil. "You can not go anywhere but you find this evil," he said. "In the top rooms of the hotels it is found; it haunts the shop, it prevails upon the street corners, and finds a place in the office." Its universal prevalence is occasioned by watchfulness and action. In nine cases out of ten, he said, the temptation to gamble comes from the desire of people to live beyond their means. "We all hope our children will escape our sins, but it is much more likely that they will embrace our imperfections." Speaking of discouragements, Mr. Lancelotti said that when Scholers went the sailing championship Toronto went wild and all Ontario rose up to acclaim the champion, but when, over in Oxford, a Hamilton student, Herbert Rose, won the prize that had been won by Gladstone and Rosebery, it received but a passing notice. Man might set up high ideals, but he compelled to abandon them for lack of appreciation, and go in for mere money. Reverting to gambling he stated that in the United States last year embezzlements amounted to $25,000,000 and statistics showed that gambling was responsible for over $20,000,000 of it. He called upon all good citizens to unite in an endeavor to stamp legalized gambling.

VILE DEEDS.

Little Girls Tell Terrible Stories Against Chinese.

Montreal, Nov. 14.—The white slave traffic in Montreal was the item under consideration in the Court of King's Bench on Saturday. The courtroom was cleared by Mr. Justice Tremblay while several little girls told a revolting story connecting several Chinese with an outrage. The charge against a certain man was for keeping girls under sixteen years of age at a certain house on Villerie street for immoral purposes. The little girls explained to the jury how they had been locked in the room by their captors, and the desperate encounters they had with Chinese. The girls said they were given beer to drink by their tormentors, and that their clothing was taken away from them. They declared that they had tried to escape from the building, but as all the doors and windows were locked and they could not get out of the place.

The investigation is to be continued. It is announced at Rome that the next consistory will not be held before Easter, and it is also stated that the plan to create a new American cardinal has been abandoned partly on account of the claims advanced by Latin America and Canada, and partly because of the difficulty of selecting an American prelate who would be agreeable to the majority.
