The Editor's Nightmare.

At midnight the Editor lay in his bed. The lights all turned out and his little prayer said:
The troubles of daylight, its bustle and worry
For publishing day is a trying one, very.
Were all laid to rest with the stillness of night,
When a grim apparition appeared in sight!

"I've come," yelled the spectre, and jumped on his chest.
"To haunt you for ever, and banish your rest."
Take heed, Mister Editor, I and my sprites,
Having spoiled all your days, will now spoil all your nights.

For millions and millions call me their Leader,
My prey is your peace, and my name "Constant Reader!"
The spectre then gave a blood-curdling yell,
And lot from all sides there came rushing pell-mell.

A mob of cute Queries in bodily form,
A chattering, clattering, patterning swarm.
And, taunting and gibing with fendish delight,
They st. rmed him with questions and mocked at his plight.

Round and round ran the rout, no Queries long, lank, and thin, queries hazy and rapid,
Nonsensical queries and queries inane,
Identical queries again and again,
Round his bed ran the rabble with twist, turn, and twirl,
Till the Editor work with his hair out of curl!

Girls! Have Wavy, Thick, Glossy Hair Free From Dandruff

Save your hair! Double its beauty in a few moments—try this!

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scrub robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If you hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?

Murdered Superior Officer.

The court martial at Fort Kearney, U. S., which tried Lieut. Perry for the murder of his superior officer, Captain Posner, found him guilty and recommended the death sentence. Perry confessed he had deliberately followed Capt. Posner to San Diego after he had been refused leave of absence by him and informed him that the commandant of the camp had sent him to bring the Captain back to camp. The car was driven by a soldier from the camp, and on the way there Perry deliberately shot Posner, who died within a few hours from the effects of his wounds. The only reason known for the murder is that given by Perry himself: "The reason is this, as they'd say in the army slang: Capt. Posner was riding my trail, and when any man does that in the army there are only two things to do. One is to get out. Another way—the way I learned in Alaska—is to get the man who's riding you. And I did."

Havana Police Resent "Fake" Fight Stories.

Havana, March 14—The attention of the judicial authorities here has been called to the declaration made by Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion that his bout with Jess Willard, in this city four years ago, was a "fake." A written report on the incident has been made by a lieutenant of detectives. In closing his report, which includes the translated version of Johnson's statement as published here yesterday the detective says: "From the foregoing it may be seen that if this story is true, the people of Havana were deceived and defrauded, and that it is desired to repeat the event with the same or a similar combination."

The report adds that "although these events occurred some time ago, they have become known through their publication, and Johnson, who is here on his way to Mexico, may evade any responsibility which he may have incurred."

Have Your Friends Who Suffer?

You have friends who are discouraged, who seem to have lost all interest in life, and whose sufferings are acute—because they are afflicted with Kidney or Bladder trouble?

Here is your golden opportunity to be a real friend to your friends. Tell them about GIN PILLS, what they have done for others, and about the thousands who have found relief by taking this remedy.

Parade your friends to try them, if only a sample box. Mrs. James Harris of Port Bowen took the advice of a friend and wrote us for a free sample. Hear in her own words the results.

"My husband had suffered for some time with lame back and Kidney Troubles. He became so bad, work was almost impossible. So many remedies were tried without effect that he became discouraged. A friend advised him to give GIN PILLS a trial, which he did, and to-day he is almost entirely cured."

The case of W. T. Baldwin, of Smithville, Ont., is similar in many respects. Mr. Baldwin suffered from a pain in the back for over three years. Finally on advice from friends he tried GIN PILLS, with the result that he obtained relief from his pain after taking the first box.

There is no need for anyone to invest a cent in GIN PILLS until they have received a sample free and tried them. Write to-day, telling us to send a sample box free to your friend's address.

Days of the Windjammers.

(Philadelphia Ledger.)

The glorious clipper ship days, when the windjammer was queen of the seas, were recalled when the big four-masted ship Valparaiso, under the French flag, hauled out of her berth at the foot of Dock street, and started on her voyage down the Delaware river for Nantes, France, with one of the largest and most valuable cargoes, valued at more than $1,000,000, ever shipped across the Atlantic in a sailing vessel from this port.

A rousing send-off was given this square-rigged craft by the old-time sailors who gathered at the pier to see the vessel sail. Passing steamships, tugs and ferries gave a parting salute their whistles and the dipping of their colors. The crew of the Valparaiso lined the decks and acknowledged the salutes with cheers. With its sister ship, the Atlantique, which is now here loading a similar cargo for France, the Valparaiso is noted for her fast sailing qualities.

Years ago hundreds of these windjammers came to and sailed out of this port. To-day only a few of these old-time craft remain afloat. Another of these old-time craft, the Severn, a three-masted sailing vessel of the old navy, has been chartered to load a general cargo at this port for France.

Ice Barrage at Niagara Falls.

On Sunday, March 22, 1903, pedestrians crossed the river bed of Niagara where human feet had never before trod, owing to an ice jam near Goat Island diverting the water to the Canadian side, and almost drying up the American rapids. Thousands of people thronged to witness a sight that they had never imagined possible. Above the ice jam the water was three feet higher than usual; below, it still ran close to the mainland, but practically the entire river bed was bare. Men, women, and children romped about regardless of the possibility that the breaking of the ice jam might submerge them at any moment. Many mementoes were taken from spots not likely to be visible again for ages. Between Green Island and Goat Island, and between Goat Island and the mainland, people walked at will, while the glory of the falls was reduced to a thin trickle. Something similar happened to the Canadian side in 1848.

Private Prisons.

The Royal Cells.

Probably few people are aware of the existence of the five private prisons in England.

To begin with there is a prison at Windsor Castle where refractory servants, butlers, etc., employed at the Royal residence are lodged by the authorities when guilty of an offence. Though it is a good many years since the last prisoner was lodged there, the power to place anyone behind those prison bars still remains.

Cells at Buckingham Palace.

There is also a private prison at Buckingham Palace. Offenders, before committed to its precincts, are tried by the "Board of Green Cloth," consisting of the Lord Steward, the Treasurer Comptroller, and the Master of the Household. This unique body of magistrates can try offences ranging from high treason to petty theft, and when found guilty the prisoner is sent to this Royal prison.

Perhaps the most extraordinary of all private prisons is the Clock Tower of the House of Commons, where more than one refractory member of the "House" has been confined. It is the Speaker who has the power and right to order any person there if it really becomes necessary. Such an experience once befell the late Mr. Charles Bradlaugh and also several prominent Irish politicians.

Proctor's Punishment.

The strange survival at Oxford, in virtue of which the duly appointed proctors of the University have the power to imprison whom they believe to be a hindrance to the welfare of the town, is also of marked interest. The person upon whom they cast a disfavoured eye need not be a criminal; it is simply a matter of opinion with these proctors, who can deal out punishment as they please and brook no interference from the law.

Nails Eleven Feet Long.

A Scientist has estimated that in a life-time of seventy years a man grows nails which, if it were possible to preserve them uncut, would reach the length of 7 ft. 9 in.

Exactly on what argument this statement is based it is hard to say for a little observation will show that during the greater portion of a man's life he cuts his nails on an average once a week, and at each paring removes a sixteenth of an inch, or the equivalent of a quarter of an inch per month, working out at three inches a year. This would give him a growth of 7 ft. 5 in. during the thirty years he lives between twenty and fifty. In the other forty years, when the growth is less rapid, he would certainly produce four feet of nails, so that 11 ft. is a better average for the nail producing capacity of a man.

It should be noted, however, that the growth of the nails on the right hand is, in most people, more rapid than those on the left hand, and it may be that the scientist in question has based his argument on the slower growth of the left hand nails.

Another curious point is that the rate of growth of the nails depends directly on the length of the finger; thus the nails on the two middle fingers of most grow more rapidly than those on the first and third fingers respectively, and these in turn are more speedily in the growth than those on the little fingers.

CHAPTER III

When Singer found that Dr. Sal did not want him, he wished to take him up as an enemy for the city. With this in view an interview was held at the home of the late Alex. Dr. Sal by the committee and was attended by most of the members; of whom are still in the city.

Dr. Sal stated that he knew no more of Mr. Singer only what he had told him himself; and that he had been a student for holy of the Church of England, and had been sent out to America and seen sent out to some place in the State of Georgia. He got on with his work, but failed to pass for very well, but by some means managed to turn down. There was some reference made to Singer's marriage with an English woman, but that too had fallen through, but that too had fallen through, but that too had fallen through.

Dr. Sal seemed to be against Mr. Singer in every way, and Dr. Sal seemed to be much for sympathy as he had been a student for holy of the Church of England, and had been sent out to some place in the State of Georgia. He got on with his work, but failed to pass for very well, but by some means managed to turn down.
