On Being Rude.

The Advocate complains that the Telegram has been rude to Mr. Coaker, and proceeds to censure us very severely. Coming from such a refined and cultured source, the reproach is almost too great to be borne. The undiluted flow of pure language such as is characteristic of the Coaker organ and its unpolluted and courtly diction is so well known and appreciated by the public, that it comes as a surprise to most people to disrude in the estimation of the S.S. Prospero left Nipper's Harbor Chesterfieldian editor of that delectable journal, and however much we are overwhelmed by the vigor and chastity of the language in which he invariably refers to our unworthy self, the charge of rudeness comes with very poor grace from one who is absolutely ignorant of the amenities of true journalsm, and who-if he were cognizant of that which is expected of his position—is too supine and nerveless to protest a usurpation of his editorial prerogative by his supreme and arrogant chief controller, whose dictates and orders are not permitted to be set aside no matter what the consequences. We have, as well, been styled vulgar by this MONROE, LTD .- nov27,6i Stanley of the press. But as there is no one more competent to define vulgarity than the genius of the Advocate, who fairly wallows in that trough, it does not give us any concern, nor produce undue anxiety.

The head and front of our the West Coast. offence consisted in the publication of an interview with Hon. W. F. Coaker, had by a Telegram representative with that PARKER & MONROE, LTD. exalted ruler, some days ago, in explanation of a reporter's item referring to a shortage in the general revenue. In the main that item was correct, but through the dropping of a line a different context was made to F.I.C., F.C.S., the Government Analyst, appear than that which was intended. However, a correction was made and the true reading given, and at the interview in question the figures were not denied by Mr. Coaker. He practically admitted that the current revenue was $750,000 short, but what did that signify. It was merely a flea-bite, and there was no occasion to be alarmed. Seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars is such an insignificant sum that one may well be excused for not mentioning it. To the average man it looks and appears huge, especially when it is considered that this shortage has occurred during the five best revenue-producing months of the year, but to Mr. Coaker, it is nothing. Poof, he says, what boots it that there is a deficit of 'the sum named. It is nothing, a mere bagatelle: a trifle, too paltry to be worth noticing. Leave it to us and do not be so rude as to be publishing such Information calculated to alarm the public. And the Advocate that paragon of all the journalistic virtues gets its orders, instanter, to draw the usual red herring or two across the trail and pose as the one and only patriot, the original countrysaver and the last word in elegance of expression. Rude forsooth! the word comes with poor grace from a paper who has forgotten decency and courtesy in argument.

A sight that was warranted to make the eyes of the thirsty sparkle, and their throats drier, was seen at the Magistrate's Court this morning where a dollection of stills, bottles and jars, hitherto unrivalled even in the annals of our own court since the advent of prohibition was displayed. The two manufacturers of the delightful beverages contained therein were each fin-ed $100 or 30 days. Association.

The special session of the Provincial Grand Orange Lodge of Newfoundland continued yesterday afterneon and night, concluding at midnight. Large attendances marked the three meetings held, those of yester-day afternoon and evening being wholly occupied with a discussion of the Resolutions submitted by the Special Committee appointed on Wednesday night to consider and report on the particular business for which Grand Lodge was summoned Delegates gave every consideration to the Committee's finding, and many very fine speeches were made, all tempered with moderation, though perfectly clear on the points at issue al subjects at this particular junc ture.

The Resolutions brought down to

Grand Lodge were unanimously adopted, and this morning were forwarded to the proper authorities, named in the concluding resolution. It was ordered by a vote of Grand Lodge that the complete series of resolutions passed, should be sent to all four afternoon papers in time for publication to-day, but apparently the Grand Secretary has not had time to get the press copies typed, and consequently publication will be delayed till to-morrow.

Those Meetings.

(Twillingate Sun.) Two big meetings were held last week in St. John's, on Thursday and Friday nights respectively. Which ever side of politics the St. John's paper you read belongs to will give you its description according to its own bias, either being colored to suit party political expediency. Having read the descriptions from the Advocate, Herald Star, Telegran

Trade Review and Plaindealer and also a gentleman, who was present at Thursday's meeting, we have come 1. That the meeting held by the Fishermen in the C.C.C. Hall on Thursday night was a bona fide fisherman's meeting. The fishermen paid for the hall themselves, and Frank Green, one of the principal eakers, showed the $40 he had collected from the fishermen present to pay for the hall, and denounced the Star for saying otherwise, tearing up a copy on the platform.

2. That the speakers, with the exception of Abram Kean who was ominated chairman, were all bona fide fishermen, and all strong Union men, being Frank Green, of Greens-pond, a returned soldier, and first member of the Regiment to be wound Henry White of Loo Cove, B.B., Ed win Willar of Greenspond, a man whose leg was amputated at the St Anthony hospital five years ago, and Aaron Burry of Greenspond, and another fisherman from Bay de Verde.

3. That the hall was crowded, the crowd extending outside the doors, the gentleman who informed us being unable to get an entrance 4. That three Resolutions were unusly passed calling for (a) the immediate abolition of the Fishery Regulations, and the re-establishment of open trade. (b) That meetings of a similar kind should be held all over Newfound-

(c) That a deputation of five should be appointed to call on Mr. Coaker the following day to ask him to arrange for the sale of all the Labrador fish lying affoat in the harbor at the price of $8 named by him in the Advocate.

The meeting held by Mr. Coaker was as largely or even more largely attended then that of the previous night, Hon. W. W. Halfyard occuping the chair. It was noticeable that
(1) the speakers were all members

Halfyard, Dr. Campbell and Mr. Penney.

(2) That fishermen went there expecting to be allowed to speak.

(3) That a guard of six policemen

(4) That while there were no inter-ruptions at the first meeting Mr. Coak-er and the other speakers were badly

(5) That when Frank Green one of the speakers of the previous night mounted the platform to speak Mes-srs. Coaker, Penney, Halfyard and Campbell left, and the police cleared the hall preventing any reply on the part of the fishermen.
