

Mr. J. Boyd Butler, one of the units of the army of Hon. W. F. Coaker sent to conquer foreign markets, has written the Telegram, taking us to task-not severely, however-for having the presumption to publish an item in Friday's issue relative to the salt shortage prevailing at present in the colony. Mr. J. Boyd Butler is under the impression that the appearance of such an item, however innocent, is calculated to have a disastrous effect on the European markets. The Butlerian theory is that we should not be guilty of political or commercial heresy in mentioning that salt is scarce in Newfoundland at present, owing to official bungling and incompetence, because such a statement is apt to influence foreign customers detrimentally, and they may not purchase fish cargoes, as per Bills of Lading thereby adding to our present taken by Mr. Butler in his let-It is rather subtle in its distinc-
