A despatch from Hamilton to the Buffalo Times says: "Recent efforts by American clubs to entice away players of the Canadubs to entice away players of the Cana-dian league occasions some excitement in baseball circles, and clubs composing the Canadian league have instructed the secre-tary to use all diligence in becoming a party to the American national agreement which will enable clubs to hold players under contract. At present the Canadian association respects all rules and regula-tions made by the National association in the United States, but there is a lack of reciprocity on the part of the American clubs, which is beginning to prove extremely disagreeable."
