JAPAN WORK.

FROM MRS. LARGE.

After narrating the work carried on from week to week by the teachers and pupils in direct evangelization, Mrs. Large writes:—

I have still greater things to tell you. A month ago we succeeded in establishing two new Sunday Schools, which are held in private houses. One is in the home of a jiarikisha drawer, a little house measuring nine by twelve, containing but one room; father, mother and children are housed here. On days when the father is successful they have three meals, but there are often days when he cannot provide more than two, at times only one, himself sharing equally with
