

end. Arabella and Alice De Wolf were quite resigned. I had not given them any hope at the commencement. Oh! how my soul sickens at the recollection of the fate of these young creatures. We were all clustered in a group. I sat down near them to keep them warm, when two of the party were thrown overboard, Pineo and a boy to the one opposite him, and succeeded in getting him aboard again. I got his rope and got aboard the one opposite him—did not know at the time who it was, afterwards I learned it was Dr. McKenzie. (Pineo and Parker were further aft than our group.) A few minutes after, the final crash came, and we were all hurled into the deep. I was standing holding a piece of rope I had made fast to the windward rail or davit, and was swung round, and did not see them go over. I think all above the maindeck went. I was the last in the water, and when I rose saw some heads near me. I was buried some two or three times, but succeeded in getting to the highest piece of stuff I saw, which proved to be the upper deck, all aft the paddle boxes. I neither heard nor saw a soul but those already on the raft. I suppose they were all buried at once. When I looked round for the boat I saw nothing above water but floating pieces.

"There cannot be a hope for any others than those already named as saved. Would you believe that amidst all the horrors of that night and next morning, I had no dread of perishing. God be praised, I had not. I felt I should be saved, even while under water and some poor soul grasping my legs and keeping me down. I think two persons had hold of me, and you have heard of the grasp of drowning persons. There were eight in all on the raft, or upper deck, and we remained on it, going with the sea, for about eight hours or upwards, with a very heavy sea after us, and a strong gale of wind. We landed at Merigonish (Big Island) in safety, and made our way, after being kindly treated and refreshed; and I immediately on my arrival at New Glasgow telegraphed to Pictou to arrest the captain and crew."

The passengers saved on the floating wreck were: Martin I. Wilkins, M. P. F., of Pictou. H. G. Pineo, jr., of Pugwash. E. L. Lydiard, of Charlottetown. Mrs. Marsh, wife of a soldier, Halifax. Mr. Parker, of Musquodoboit. One seaman, and two boys.

In addition to the heartless conduct of the captain and crew narrated above, we learn from another source, that the crew before leaving the steamer went below and secured their watches and other valuables, and also brought the mail bag to shore—and when some of the passengers trunks were recovered, they were found to have been rifled, previous to the final disaster, of the money contained in them.

ATTENTION is respectfully invited to the columns of THE YOUTH'S PRECEPTOR, a periodical designed expressly for promoting the moral and intellectual improvement of the young. The present Volume, which was commenced in February last, having now reached the 12th No., will afford the best means for judging of the general character of this publication; and the exceedingly low price at which it is furnished, places it within the reach of every parent, who may be desirous of procuring for his children a paper devoted exclusively to their instruction and entertainment. Its object is to co-operate in the general movements which are now being made to facilitate the progress of popular education—by exciting in the minds of the young an interest in such departments of learning as are of the most practical utility, and by stimulating them to the cultivation and exercise of those moral principles which are the prominent features of an estimable character.

Clergymen, School Commissioners, and Teachers are requested to act as Agents for THE YOUTH'S PRECEPTOR—by forwarding subscriptions to the office of publication, and otherwise increasing its circulation in their respective communities.—The Youth's Preceptor is published once a fortnight, at the office of W.
