

The principal firms are therefore forced to organize to meet both this new demand and their clients' new needs.

Otherwise they will lose their clientele to other firms.