

the themes of the dialogue, to determine their composition, to set general guidelines for them within the framework of paragraphs 4.3. to 4.6. inclusive and to agree on what follow-up their work should have.

4.1. — These committees will not have more than 15 members. In determining its representation in each committee, each of the two groups at the conference will choose from among its members, those who, because of their special interest and the overall significance of their participation seem best suited to take part in order that the work may be carried out in an effective and responsible manner. The chairmanship of each of the committees will be assumed by two co-chairmen designated by each of the two groups respectively.

4.2. — The committees will be composed of high-level experts representing their government.

4.3. — The committee on energy, within the framework of an overall study of prospects for energy production and consumption in the world, including hydrocarbons, will be entrusted with facilitating through suitable ways and means the arrangements between oil producers and consumers which may seem advisable.

4.4. — The committee on raw materials, through suitable ways and means and taking the existing situation into account, will be entrusted with facilitating the arrangements which may seem advisable in the area of raw materials—including food products—which are of particular interest to the developing countries.

4.5. — The committee on development, through suitable ways and means and taking the existing situation into account, will be entrusted with facilitating the arrangements which may seem advisable in the area of cooperation for development.

4.6. — The committee on financial affairs, while respecting the jurisdiction of international institutions (IMF, World Bank) will study all financial problems, including their monetary aspects, related to the work of the three preceding committees. It will be composed of an appropriate number of members from each of these three committees.

4.7. — The committees on raw materials and development will, in particular, take into consideration the work carried out by other appropriate international bodies and will establish the necessary contacts with these groups.

4.8. — Joint meetings of the co-chairmen of these committees may be planned if the need arises.

4.9. — Observers from organizations which are directly concerned with the problems being discussed will be able to attend the committees and will have the right to speak.

5.1. — The conference will meet again at the ministerial level in about 12 months.

5.2. — One or several meetings of the conference at the level of government officials may possibly be held at least six months after the first meeting of the conference at the ministerial level.