

tending Audubon's unostentatious funeral, accompanied the family from the residence to the resting place he had chosen for himself in Trinity Church cemetery, adjoining his own estate, and saw his remains laid tenderly away by those who loved him best, in the family vault, where his sons have since been placed by his side.

