In conclusion, Premier Hearst said: "If you feel you can say there was any vindictiveness or malicious intent upon the part of any officer of this government or that any officer was improperly influenced there will be an investigation but if you believe that, altho the conditions were against you, the officers were acting honestly in an effort to fulfil their obligations to the state, that is another matter."

Sister Dayle suggested the form men employed by and under the direct supervision of the government."

Sister Davis suggested the formation of a cradle roll as an auxiliary to the Women's Auxiliary now in being. The constitution as read today did not permit of girls under 18 becoming members of the association. If her suggestion was followed a large number of girls below the age of 18 would gain membership privileges, since her suggested roll would comprise all children from infancy to the present age limit, and this would give the young ones a real interest in their parents' work in the association. The funds accruing from their membership could be devoted to the cause of those children whose fathers had either fallen or been disabled in the service of their country. The suggestions are to be considered by the branch executive at an early date.

The Toronto circulation manager of The Veteran addressed the meeting and pointed out that $5,000 copies of the December issue were published, as against 7000 considered in the first estimates of the publishers. It was hoped, he said, to make it a weekly publication in the course of the next two years.

FLIGHT-LIEUT. HEARST

of Aubrey Hearst is Presumed to Have Been Shot While on Duty in France.

Flight Lieut. Clive Hearst, son of Aubrey Hearst of 114 West Heath street, has died of wounds, was the message received in Toronto last night from the war office.

Lieut. Hearst was only 19 years old. Before going overseas he was pay-master-sergeant in the 208th Battalion here. He went to England a year ago, November, taking out his com-mission there in the Royal Flying Corps. After two months in France he returned to England to take a course in "stunt" flying. Upon the completion of his course he was retained in England as instructor. His father received a cable from him on the 14th that he was going back to the front as he had been dissatisfied in England. Since then no word had been heard of him, but as the mes-sage last night said he had died of ids on the 22nd in sqadron 29, Mr. Hearst thinks that he was shot while flying in France. Clive Hearst was an University schoolboy.

OLD SONGS POPULAR

Soldiers Enjoy Program at Massey Hall Given by National Chorus.

Soldiers and singers were the two attractions at Massey Hall last night when two thousand of the boys in khaki enjoyed the numbers of the National Chorus, and clapped and cheered to the echo when Margaret Keyes, the girl with the bonnie brown hair and the glorious voice, stood be-fore them in a simple pink frock and sang the heart songs that all loved. "Annie Laurie" was a favorite num-ber, and as the old song came in all its sweet melody from the golden throat of the singer, every man present thought of the girl that was Annie Laurie to him, or of the mother whose lips had once sung him the old ballad that shall never grow old to lovers of the beautiful. "The Min-strel Boy" was another familiar number, its message seeming particularly opportune, and the patriotic selections with which the program ended, were all part of a delightful program. The Girl Guides, who were special ruests, enjoyed the story of "The Walrus and the Carpenter," as sung to them by the boy choristers. "Clap them hard, for they deserve it," said one of the girls as the boys finished the cantata, and the girls' tribute was well deserved. "Land of Hope and Glory" was sung with great spirit, and the great and ever popular number, "Rule Britannia" seemed a prophecy bearing with it a message to inspire the boys for whom the National Chorus and Margaret Keyes, under the baton of Dr. Ham, had given the splendid musical evening. That the men appreciated what had been done for them was shown by the hearty applause which followed every number on the program.
