At Theaters

AT THE GRAND.

Although, on account of the lateness of the season, the houses at the Grand Theatre have been small for the Percy Hutchinson plays showing there this week, the house filled up again last night for the company's star production, "The Luck of the Navy." And so enthusiastic was everybody at the presentation given, that curtain after curtain was demanded at the end of the final act, until the star himself consented to appear alone on the stage. This war play, filled with thrilling moments from beginning to end, chronicles the operations of German spies on the coast of England, and the luck and pluck of British naval officers in handling them, so that their schemes come to naught.

The greater part of the story is played out in the beautiful home of Mrs. Peel, the honorary president of the British Anti-Alien Society, who is in reality a most despicable German spy. Miss Mildred Cottell as Mrs. Peel, the spy, is seen at her best, directing the smaller spies about her, who pose as her servants, and being suspicious only to the great Shaffer, a splendid Shaffer, while Aubrey Mather is seen to advantage as Sub-

Lieut. Peel, the German son of the German mother. George Norman takes the part of Midshipman Wink and does some excellent work too, playing opposite Miss Elsie Stranahan, as the irresistible flapper, Dora Green. Miss Eleanor Street, as Cynthia Eden, beloved of the hero, Lieut. Clive Stanton, V.C., and A. P. Kaye, as Admiral Maybridge, are two lovable characters. But it was, of course, the hero, Lieut. Peel himself, personated by Percy Hutchinson, upon whom the attention was centered from beginning to end. Once again his personality dominated the play and his humor won every listener.

The spectacular production of "The Luck of the Navy," which acts as a sort of curtain-raiser, is another fascinating feature of this production. Here, by means of mechanical stage devices and lights, the channel is seen at night, with the fleet in action, the great searchlights finding out a zeppelin, which is actually seen to fall into the sea in a blaze of fire. This play will be repeated this afternoon and tonight.

GEORGE TUSTIN FAILS TO RESIGN DESPITE REPORTS

Although there were reports that George Tustin was going to resign as secretary-treasurer of the Grand Army of United Veterans, the resignation was not handed in at the regular meeting of that association on Thursday night. Probably, it is thought, the small attendance which numbered eight, was instrumental in postponing this action.

London Rotary Club Picnic Is Great Success Despite Bad Weather at Lake Shore

Dinner Served To 500 in Cafeteria—Presidents Defeat the Vice-Presidents in One-Sided Game of Baseball—Free-For-All Football Match Results Disastrously.

Members of the London Rotary Club with their wives and families made merry at Port Stanley yesterday afternoon on the occasion of their fifth annual picnic, and despite disagreeable weather conditions, a good program of sports was run off on Fraser Heights. At the conclusion of the various events the picnicers dined themselves to the cafeteria, where dinner was served at 6 o'clock, over 500 people being seated.

Here the prizes were distributed and a general sing-song indulged in with President James Gray acting as chairman.

It was a great day for the kiddies with ice cream, balloons, candies and popcorn in abundance, and the staid Rotarians became youths for the day. When the rain interrupted the sports late in the afternoon the merry-makers adjourned to the cafeteria on the hill, where dinner was served at 6 o'clock, over 500 people being seated.

GANG ATTACKS YOUNG COUPLE; HELP COMES

Draggs Them Into Bushes On Highbury Avenue—Farmers Are Rescuers.

While passing a lonely spot between Hamilton road and Trafalgar street, on Highbury avenue, which lies in the eastern outskirts of the city, a young man and his lady, friend were attacked and dragged from the street on Tuesday night by a gang of ruffians, who were lying in wait among some bushes. The screams for help aroused some farmers living near. They arrived on the scene just in time to rescue the couple from injury.

The spot is a dark, abandoned road, fringed with bushes and running from Highbury street and the city's boundary for a short distance into the country. The road is little used, as no one lives on it. The thick bushes which cover the road make an ideal hiding place for the gangs which infest the district.

According to the people living in the neighborhood it is not the first time that passersby have been molested. They asserted that they knew of several occasions in which people have been attacked.

As the road is public property no one but the city police can interfere with the men and boys who stay around there. Up to the present time the residents of that part of the city say that the police have made no investigation.

High Constable B. Watterworth Friday morning said that he was not aware that there had been any trouble as no reports or complaints have been made to him.

BIRD NOTES

(Contributed by McIlwraith Ornithological Club.)

When the hot summer days are here and many find it hard to be pleasant and cheerful as they go about their business, especially in mid-day, it is refreshing to hear and see some of our streets or roadsides busy workers singing as they toil.

Perhaps the most persistent noon-day singer is the Red-bellied Vireo, who calls "where's a worm" every few seconds, as he searches amongst the leaves for caterpillars, beetles, etc. Another common singer in the heat of the day is the Indigo Bunting, who is more noticeable in his suit of bright indigo blue as he selects a mate or often a dead one, near the tip of some tree from which to fling on the sultry air his goldfinch style of song. These voices are much appreciated at a time when better singers are silent.

The next meeting of the club will be held on Monday evening next, June 21, at 7:30 p.m., in the Y. M. C. A., to which all interested are cordially invited.

MILITARY TITLES TABOO—Military titles are taboo during the meetings of the Grand Army of United Veterans. At the regular meeting on Friday evening one member was fined 20 cents for calling another one "colonel" instead of "comrade." Only regular business was transacted owing to the small attendance.

DECLARES PASTOR IS PAMPERED PET OF GROUP OF RICH MEN

Presiding Bishop of Protestant Episcopal Church Scored in New York.

New York, June 18.—Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension and promoter of the use of churches as public forums, is described as the "pampered pet of a group of rich men and women," by Right Rev. Thomas F. Gailor, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and resident in this city, in a published statement over his name that appeared recently in the connection of Rev. Dr. George F. Nelson, registrar of the Episcopal Church in the New York Diocese, making a statement to the effect that Dr. Grant "sounded a false alarm" last Sunday when he discussed from his pulpit, "Will the Episcopal Church Split in Two?"

Dr. Grant had read both statements, but desires some time to digest them before answering—if he does answer. His parishioners thought he might do so today from his pulpit.

There is a growing feeling among Dr. Grant's parishioners, a World reporter learned, that he may shortly make another move of stronger significance.

This feeling was emphasized somewhat by Dr. Grant's urging the women of New York Diocese not to wait on conventions, but to go direct to Albany and have the church corporations act revised or repealed, so that they may eventually secure the right of representation on vestries and a vote in conventions.

Among other things Dr. Grant said last Sunday in his sermon was that the bishops of his church seemed to be reaching out for more authority.

Bishop Gailor's reply in part follows: "Bishop Kinsman of Baltimore," said the presiding bishop, "left the church about two months ago and went over to the Roman Catholic bishops in the Episcopal Church do not have authority enough. Nor Dr. Grant says they exercise too much authority. I think the situation must be about right."

"There are many problems ahead of us and they must be met and solved as they come up; but I think the idea of the bishop usurping authority today is really preposterous. Forty years ago a great deal more influence was exerted on American churches by the English Church than is exerted today. I can see no danger to the American church or American institutions of democracy from attendance at the Lambeth conference by American bishops. These conferences have no legislative powers."

"The bishop is the man who has to stand in the front line and do much hard work and get all the mud that is flying around him. The bishops are the missionary leaders, and must say it all becomes a rector who is the bishop's representative to the people and women, and who poses as a friend of the poor, to join in the throwing of missiles at the bishops."

"We are not worrying at all about anything that Dr. Grant said, but are trying to carry on the work of the church and advance God's kingdom; and we know very well that we have never had a better corporate feeling and enthusiasm than we have today. The bishops of the Episcopal Church feel more and more that there are the missionary leaders of the church and not the autocratic rulers."

Said Dr. Nelson: "I am not aware that our bishops are reacting to the English Church, but that there has been an episcopal usurpation of authority. I certainly believe that the English Church is a body, and we have 127 of them in this church. As a class they are concerned wholly with their legitimate duties and offices, with obeying the canons of the church and with seeing that those canons are carried out by those under their supervision. They are conservative men, as they should be. The fact that they do not advocate the turning of every Episcopal Church in the land into a public forum for the discussion of socialism and politics, and every other thing under the sun except religion, is no proof that they are grasping for more power."

The Piano of the Great Artist YE OLDE FIRME HEINTZMAN & CO., LIMITED

Once again the Heintzman Grand Piano has proved itself the supreme choice in Concert and Recital work, the most severe test to which a piano can be put—where every delicate nuance of tone is criticized by a large audience of music lovers.

The Heintzman Grand Piano, with its sonorous tone, its wonderfully delicate and responsive action, its marvelous fidelity of touch, has been chosen by Mr. George C. Carie, the eminent vocal teacher, for his "Evening of Song" at the Auditorium.

At this concert a number of London's finest singers, pupils of Mr. Carie, will provide a pleasing program of Ballads, Oratorio and Operatic Arias which will delight all who are fortunate enough to be present.

Most of London's leading musicians own Heintzman & Co. Pianos for their own homes, including Mr. Jordan, Mr. Wheeler, Mr. Pococke, Mr. Bert Weir, Mr. Leslie Roberts, Miss Minnie Raymond, Miss Jennie Steele, Miss S. Nugent, Miss Dorinda Abbott and many others.

THERE MUST BE A GOOD REASON

HEINTZMAN & CO., LIMITED

Warerooms: 242 Dundas Street, London, Ont.

At every musical event of importance this season, Ye Olde Firme Heintzman & Co. Piano has been used. It was used by Mr. Viggo Kihl at all of his ten recitals this winter; by the Musical Art Society at their Orchestral Concert; by the Children's Festival at the Grand Opera House; by the Women's Music Club all season, and also at their evening recitals; by Miss Jean Wood, one of Toronto's finest pianists; by the eight Victor Artists at the Majestic Theatre.
