Slavin and Fireman Elliott of the Government steamer Dollard, which was in St. John harbor this week had a fight.

Cooper said that when he went into the barn with some of his friends, it was about nine o'clock in the evening. He was perfectly sober, and, so far as he knew there was only one drink he knew there was only one drink served. Boxing gloves were produced, and after a friendly exhibition was concluded, those present expresed their opinion of the merits of the boxers, and soon bad temper was displayed. According to Cooper, Elliott struck Slavin, and knocked him against the partition, and this exasperated Cribbs, who engaged in a scrap with Elliott. Mrs. Cribbs appeared, and implored Elliott to stop the fight. He sent for the police.

He declared that the disappearance of Slavin was as much a mystery to them as it was to the friends of the nissing man.

A. M. Donohue, a Boston detective, is investigating the mystery.
