YOUTHFUL THIEVES GET LONG TERMS IN THE REFORMATORY

Reynolds and Halligan, Who Went Through John Peters' Trunk, are Given Four Years Each.

Three boys, John Henry Reynolds, James Henry Halligan, aged 15 years each, and Michael John Griffin, aged 11 years, were before the court this morning charged with stealing two watches, two water chains, one ring, one electric lamp, a revolver, box of cartridges, one ring and chain, the property of John Peters, 1744 street. Mr. Peters testified that he had adopted young Henry Reynolds, whose mother is dead. He has a father who drinks and would not look after the boy. The boy was lazy and would not work or go to school. Last evening he brought young Halligan to the house and said he, Halligan, had no place to go. The young fellow was given his supper, after which Mr. and Mrs. Peters went out. On their return, nearly eleven o'clock, Mr. Peters discovered that his trunk had been robbed and the articles mentioned above had been stolen. He accused Henry of the theft, and on being threatened with arrest Henry handed over the watches and rings. Young Griffin was then found hiding in a coal cupboard, and the revolver and a box of cartridges were found on him. Halligan was arrested at home, but had no stolen property on him.

Reynolds, to the court, admitted the theft, and told him there was a hundred dollars in the house. Griffin, in answer to the court, admitted hiding and having stolen articles, also that two years ago he had been before the court for stealing beer. Reynolds had never gone to school, and could not read or write, while Halligan went to school for two years and could not write his name. The magistrate had him in his mind and brought out of his answers that showed he was a very bad boy. The magistrate in speaking of the large number of bad boys about the city said that the police must surely see them. The council violated the law by allowing policemen 75 cents for every hour they worked in the city without a license, and he felt that he would be willing to imitate the council and give policemen 75 cents a head for looking after the boys. Mrs. Griffin said it was too bad that her boy would steal out of the house. The magistrate said he had no patience with a mother who would talk that way. The parents were mostly responsible for the boys' actions. Reynolds and Halligan were sentenced to four years in the Industrial Home, and as Griffin could write the magistrate said his sentence would be lighter.

THE RODNEY WHARF SLIDE SEEMS TO BE COMING

The Crack in the Mud is Wider Today—Street Railway Will Await Developments.

While some persons claim that the dredging will not cause the Rodney wharf to slide, there are many who have viewed the situation who are looking for a disaster. This morning the opening in the mud was much greater than yesterday and the fissure along the front of the wharf leaves the logs bare and is over two feet wide. The mud within a few feet of the wharf has settled about four or five feet from the level, and it is said that the Street Railway Co. will await developments before they risk running their tracks down the wharf.

A CHIMNEY SWEEP WHEN HE WAS YOUNG

Commissioner Cadman Tells the Story of His Life.

He Knows What it is to Live in the Slums—How He Has Risen to His Present Position.

MONTREAL, July 6.—For over two hours Commissioner Cadman kept a large audience interested with the story of his life, which he told in the Citadel, 25 University street, last night. The story was a thrilling one—full of humor and pathos and containing not a few foreshadowing allusions and shortcomings of present day sinners. Brigadier Turner introduced the commissioner, and he had made many openings and opportunities for himself where there had been none, and who had for years the highest religious liberty with a heroism almost equal to anything history recorded in the Old Land. Commissioner Cadman, who is a native of Coventry, speaking of the immigrants the Army was bringing to Canada, said they were a very superior class of people. He had met a large number who were not only well educated, but all were exceedingly well pleased with conditions here. The Army had intended to bring 200 men to Canada this season by one boat, but were sending them in divided companies by different boats instead. On the last 'Kenington' trip he brought 400 women and children. On returning to England he met the secretary the General on a month's motor tour. Proceeding to give a sketch of his life, the commissioner said his father was a drunkard and died when he was only fifteen months old. With his mother he was raised in a tenement. He had plenty to eat, and grew to be a pump-and-prestie-boy. At the age of three years he started to work into which fell from the workhouse was thrown. He was nearly drowned, but was fished out with a pole used for drawing water with, it having caught firmly in his corduroy pants. This was his first experience as one of the 'submerged.' At the age of six years little Ellah, the only child of the family, died of living as a chimney sweep—joined the labor party, became a British subject, and he should have been a citizen through experience that, he thought, could scarcely have been exceeded, in point of more rapidity and thoroughness of his master, in the darkest days of American slavery. In his first attempt he was a poor hand, and got stuck in a small flue, and would have died there if the bricks had not been torn away in effecting his rescue. At the age of seventeen he went to Rugby. Here he became the ring-leader of a band of eighty roughs who, on such occasions as Guy Fawkes' day, 'ran the town,' setting bonfires in the honor of the police at the risk of burning the town to the ground. The first religious impression made on young Cadman's mind was experienced as he listened to a 'ranter' preaching on the streets of Rugby. He was there, with some others, for the express purpose of tipping the preacher off his chair and breaking up the meeting. But a power, which never left before gripped him, and made him weep as he had not done since his mother died. He was a heathen, without the least knowledge of God or the Bible. But gradually the light came, and after a few weeks he became soundly converted. By this time Cadman had become a prize fighter, and kept a boxing school for scientific purposes, and a saloon for pleasure, and to occupy his leisure time. All these things were abandoned on the day he became converted, and he immediately began to preach. How he got married, learned to read, and young Cadman's mind was abandoned great persecution at the hands of the 'skeleton army,' but came out conqueror, and had no regrets, but much to be thankful for.

ENGLAND IS DUMPING GROUND FOR ALIENS

BASEL, July 7.—The 'Pow of alien emigration through Basel to England during the last five months has been doubtful of the corresponding period of last year. The new Aliens Act effected a temporary check, but it is a dead letter now that political refugees are admitted. All the aliens bound for England have been sent to the continent and massacre. The Swiss and German frontiers were the emigrant trains touch are strongly guarded, and none of these so-called 'refugees' are allowed to leave the train. They are almost all destitute and many are diseased.

SUBURBANITES INCONVENIENCED BY NEW I. C. R. REGULATION.

No More Parcels, Excepting Certain Articles of Food, May be Sent Out Free on the Trains—Merchants are Also Losing Business.

The new regulations governing the carrying of parcels on the I. C. R. is causing quite a lot of discussion among storekeepers and shoppers and an effort is being made, it is understood, to have the rules somewhat modified.

THE CITY GETS BACK MOST OF THE MONEY

A Dispute Over W. C. R. Allan's Tax Bill Arose Yesterday

THE MURPHY'S ARE RECALLED

The city directory of this year shows an increase of 88 names over last year. The name of Smith takes the lead in the directory, as it has done for years past. There are 188 of that name in the city. Next in order are the Murphys, who are 148 in number. Then come the Browns, 139; Wilsons, 134; Campbells, 131; Clark, 92; Belyes, 91, and Armstrong, 69. The publisher of the directory, L. A. McAlpine, says there are 18,801 names in the list, and reckoning on a basis of three souls for each name entered in the directory, he puts the population of the city at 56,403.

THE MOST AWB-INSPIRING PUBLIC CALAMITY SINCE POMPEII.

To be three thousand miles away from the scene of an awful disaster yet seemingly brought within eyesight of the same is a feat which, thanks to the moving picture machine, has been realized here in St. John. Those who have read with impressive interest every item of news coming from San Francisco since the destruction will be glad of an opportunity of seeing the terrible sights depicted through life. This will be done at the Opera House for three nights and Saturday matinee, commencing next Thursday.
