SYMPATHY.
Sympathy is a form of service. It is not a favor granted by one and received by another; it is that action by which one life enters into another's life, takes up a portion of the burden, shares the joy of success, becomes for the time being a part of that life, and contributes to it some of its own strength.

Sympathy does not weaken the individuality of the life it helps, it rather strengthens it. It does not lessen its responsibilities, it helps to bear them; by relieving the tension it gives opportunity for development, by companionship gives new courage and fresh ability for advance when the assisting presence is withdrawn.

TWO NAVAL CHIEFS ARE STILL AT ODDS

No Reconciliation Yet Between Beresford and Scott.

Beresford's Enemies Say He Is Out of Date—Must Not Be Allowed to Impair Efficiency of the Navy.

LONDON, July 12.—A thousand and one reports have found publication regarding the imminent resignation of Lord Charles Beresford and Sir Percy Scott, and other probable developments of the quarrel between the chiefs of the British navy.

Developments in the way of Parliamentary questions and editorial discussion throw no new light on the matter. Beresford, it may be noted, however, does not stand so well with the public generally as he did before the public became acquainted with the facts, and the charges made against him in the Times of having nearly repeated the terrible Victoria-Camperdown blunder during the recent manoeuvres in the case of the cruisers Argyle and Good Hope has had its intended effect. A naval correspondent who is in a position to know the exact facts of this incident furnishes an account of it differing materially from any previously printed.

SCOTT ADVERTED A DISASTER.

During the recent manoeuvres the first cruiser squadron of the Channel fleet was arranged in two lines, led respectively by Sir Percy Scott's flagship Good Hope and the Argyle. The distance between the lines was 1,800 yards, exactly the distance which separated the Victoria and Camperdown when the latter rammed Tyro's flagship in the Mediterranean.

Admiral Beresford gave the signal, "Lines turn inward." The Argyle obeyed, but the Good Hope turned outward. Beresford signalled to ask why his order had not been obeyed. Sir Percy Scott replied that in his opinion exact obedience to the signal might have been dangerous. Beresford promptly signalled back to Scott that he was quite right to act as he did.

BERSFORD CRITICS SPEAK PLAINLY.

The man who is authority for this report of the incident argued that it indicated an excellent spirit of opinion between the two admirals, and declared that their personal relations could not but be improved by it. This optimistic view, however, is shared by few, and even were Beresford and Scott to shake hands, there is little expectation that Beresford and Sir John Fisher would smoke the pipe of peace.

Beresford has received not a few unofficial intimations that his resignation from the navy will be accepted with relief. His critics have not missed language.

HERO OF AN UNHEROIC BATTLE.

When one of his defenders recalled the signal, "Well done, Concorde," at the bombardment of Alexandria, in 1882, one of his critics responded that "it is by no means the first time we have heard about that signal. It always produces a Lord Charles is starting a fresh crusade against his superior officers. It has been used so often that it has become almost humorous. The truth is Beresford is out of date. He is the old-fashioned type of Admiral. A good deal has happened since the bombardment of Alexandria, and Beresford cannot be allowed to impair the efficiency of the navy simply because many years ago he was the popular hero of a somewhat unheroic battle. We ought to keep a little adjustment in hand for the future Nelson."

Reports are current that King Edward, who is a staunch supporter of Sir John Fisher, suggested that the troublesome Admiral be got rid of without ceremony, but that is a step which Premier Asquith does not at present see the advisability of taking.

MUSIC'S CHARMS ON THE FEEBLE-MINDED

Brass Band Effects Cures Even in Obstinate Cases.

LONDON, July 14.—An illustration of the efficacy of music treatment on feeble-minded persons has occurred at the Home for Feeble-minded Boys at Witham, in Essex, where a decided change has been effected since the introduction of a brass band. The master of the home reports that since the boys have been taught to play various instruments they have advanced rapidly towards complete sanity. Some obstinate cases have fully recovered and it is now recognized in the institution that the boys in the band are distinctly superior to other patients.

LIVING THOUGHTS.

It is better to right a little wrong than write a long poem.
It takes two to make a quarrel, and then a hundred times two to mend it.
Arguing with a fool is only augmenting folly.
The fruits of truth are not gathered by beating about the bush.
If you are a true friend you never need to put on an air of friendliness.
He who is never satisfied with anything satisfies no one.
Be true to yourself, and then you will be true to all men.

MAKE KING'S SNUB A PARTY ISSUE

Keir Hardie Decides to Ask for Explanation.

Generally Understood That Socialist Leader's Disloyalty on India Troubles Led to King's Action.

LONDON, July 14.—It is a curious political anomaly that an invitation to the King's garden party should raise a grave constitutional question in the House of Commons. The cable has already told that the Labor party in the House of Commons passed a resolution of protest against the exclusion of Keir Hardie from the King's visiting list, but now we are told that Mr. Hardie has asked the Lord Chamberlain why he was not invited, and if the answer is not satisfactory, the Labor leader will resign and offer himself as a candidate for re-election on the straight issue of "the King v. the people's representative." It is further announced that in this event the whole Labor party will go to Mr. Hardie's district—Merthyr Tydvil—to support him. Such a contest, if it takes place, would command unique political interest.

It is a pity that the verdict cannot be taken from the country at large, for the result would be the complete extinction of the peculiar figure in British politics. There is no doubt that Mr. Hardie was intentionally excluded from this annual function by the King's express order. There is some ground also for the Labor party's contention that this was a semi-official and not merely a social snub to their leader. They see in it, therefore, a violation of the jealously guarded restriction which forbids the sovereign by word or act from indicating any preference in partisan or political questions. It is quite true that, popular as King Edward undoubtedly is, any infraction on his part of that fundamental constitutional rule would instantly be deeply resented by his subjects.

ENCOURAGED REVOLT IN INDIA.

Keir Hardie's extreme radical views are notorious, and his friends pretend to be in some doubt as to what particular feature thereof offends the Throne so bitterly. Some of them assume that it was his opposition to the King's visit to the East. This is disposed of by the fact that the member who opened the opposition debate in the House on the subject was invited and went to Windsor. The same is true of other Radicals and Socialists whose views are presumably intensely repugnant to the King. The reason must be sought elsewhere, and it is fairly obvious to all those familiar with King's public record for the past year. He was in India during the recent crisis, a crisis which threatened still threatens the very existence of the British Empire. He publicly encouraged the rebellious population in language nothing less than seditious and traitorous. Those were perilous times in India, and the ignorant native population had a grotesque idea of Mr. Hardie's political position and influence.

While it is quite true that the King must hold himself aloof from all questions of domestic politics, there is no obligation, moral or legal, upon him to ignore sedition or treason. If the King should announce, which, of course, he will not do, that he had refused to invite Mr. Hardie to Windsor because of his disloyal conduct in India, the whole country would applaud him.

The Socialist members of Parliament seem to have decided to make all the political capital possible out of the King's failure to invite James Keir Hardie to attend a meeting of a meeting of East-end laborers today, Hardie said: "I shall allow no interference with my political conduct in or out of Parliament by the King or the court."

William Thorne, M. P., secretary of the Gas Workers' and General Laborers' Union, spoke in a similar vein. He repudiated the right of the King, or anybody else, to curtail his tongue inside or outside of Parliament, adding: "I hope the time will most speedily arrive when there will be no room for Kings and Queens. We shall then govern ourselves better than now."

The audience were in thorough harmony with the speakers, and they roared William Crooks, M. P., by trade a cooper, who spoke later, taunting him with having attended the garden party. Crooks did not deny the fact, but jollied his hearers into good humor.

Hardie and his supporters persist in declaring that his exclusion from Windsor Castle was due to his opposing the King's recent visit to the East at Reval, despite the fact that others who also opposed the visit were invited and went. The object of the Socialists is to inflame the ignorant with the belief that the King is interfering with the liberty of the House of Commons.

WEDS HIS COOK AFTER A SIX DAYS' WOOING.

SCRANTON, July 14.—George H. Marsh, of Honesdale, has married his cook after a six days' wooing and on the heels of his wedding comes that of Jules A. Dunn of the same place to his "next best friend."

Marsh advertised for a cook a few weeks ago and he received a reply from Amanda Orilla Sampson, of Honesdale, a prepossessing woman, who arrived in Honesdale and was such a success that yesterday they were married. The Rev. Dr. W. H. Swift performed the ceremony.

Mrs. Cornelia Edwards-Mills was recently divorced and Jules A. Dunn figured in the case as her "next best friend." Last night they were married by Justice of the Peace W. H. Ham.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE HUNTLEY STOCK CO.

Plays whose prominent features are love, heart interest, heroism, comedy, pathos, vice and virtue, always find popular favor. They are sought after by theatre goers who appreciate real merit. When the presenting company is known to be far above the average organization it is a real pleasure to be able to witness such presentations. The Huntley Stock Company which is to appear here July 27, 28, 29, at the Opera House, is an aggregation individually and collectively that stand pre-eminent among the popular priced dramatic organizations of the eastern circuits.

The company is headed by Jas. H. Huntley and Miss Sadie Elton and they are surrounded by a supporting company of exceptional merit.

The plays that they are to present consists of the following well known successes: "Hazel Kirke," "Woman Against Woman," "Hearts and Flowers," and "The Wages of Sin."

TRIP IN THE SOUDAN AT NICKEL.

TODAY.

The Nickel has a sterling feature for today and tomorrow—several in fact—but one especially good one. A Trip In The Soudan, that far-off territory which sprung into such prominence when Lord Kitchener took hold of it. The customs of the natives, their work and play make great sightseeing for day-at-homes. For the first time in several months the Nickel will show another Pathe colored transformation picture. The Magic Disc is a bewildering thing. The exceedingly funny Edison farce, "Skinner's Finish," is a long picture that deals with the love affairs of the living skeleton in a circus sideshow. The Lost Ball is a trick photo by Pathe Freres, with a novelty chase. Altogether there's variety and real merit in this programme, and with Miss Polk's fine singing and Mr. Gurney's excellent tenor, the orchestra, etc., another two days of cheap but good entertainment is assured.

HAPPY HALF HOUR.

The new programme at the Happy Half Hour today is a very good one. Six pictures will be shown. They are Vanderbilt's Coaching Trip From Brighton to London, showing the only millionaire coachman in the world handling the ribbons, The Sorcerer's Scissors, a wonderful trick picture, The Dynamite, The Cat's Revenge, An Effective Hair Grower, Three Sportsmen and a Hat, the last four being comedy pictures. Harry LeRoy will sing after they gather the Hay, and Prof. Tings will sing With You In Eternity. Today Holmes and Buchanan will sing one of the best songs ever written, Love's Old Sweet Song. Nearly everybody knows it or has heard it, for it is a great favorite and has been heard in this city at different times, but it is safe to say that Holmes and Buchanan will sing it at least once here. They will appear at every performance, both afternoon and evening. Last evening crowded houses were the rule and Holmes and Buchanan were forced to respond to encores each show. Their singing is the talk of the city and no wonder, for never before has their equal been heard here at anywhere near the price of admission. Col. Stanton, manager of the McAnulla Stock Company, who heard them last evening, declared them to be the best singing act he had ever heard. This is pretty strong praise coming from a man who has heard the best in America. It would be advisable for those who can to attend the afternoon shows, or the first evening shows as after that it is S. R. O. only. Those who have not yet heard Holmes and Buchanan should do so at once as their engagement here is a short one.

AT THE CEDAR.

The new Cedar of North End is having its share of patrons to the moving pictures these days and every person goes away well satisfied with the pictures shown and the songs sung in this popular theatre. There will be an entire change of pictures today. The names are The Boating Englishman—Comedy; The Under Dog—Drama; How Do You Like Our Drawing Room—Comedy; The Good Thief—Drama; Miss Ada Smith will sing the song "Down the Vale" (illustrated). Admission five cents.

GRAND PICTURES AT THE UNIQUE TODAY.

Those who attend the Unique today will be treated to a picture much above the average. It is called "The Blackmailer" and is one of Pathe's latest subjects. The story is woven around a woman who although she is married, is in love with another man. She receives a letter from her lover and drops the envelope on the street. A blackmailer sees her drop it and picks it up, follows her. After reading the letter she tears it into pieces and throws it away. The blackmailer gathers up the pieces and puts them together, and finds that the letter is written for the purpose of making an appointment. He demands a large sum of money. She refuses and going to her room poisons herself.

Another of the pictures is called the "Animated Doll," and is very interesting. It shows how far a poor boy's love for his sister induced him to go, in order to obtain a "big doll" for her.

Two other new pictures, "Life in the Soudan," a very interesting and instructive picture, shows the manners and customs of the people living in that country, and the other picture is one of the best comedies on the road.

New songs by Miss A. Outous, the noted mezzo-soprano, who is making such a big hit there this week, and by Will S. Harrison, lyric baritone of Halifax.

A CONTINUOUS SUNDAY.

To those refreshed by the peaceful atmosphere of Sunday, it is pleasant to think that we live in a time when Sunday is being celebrated every day. Each day of the week has served as a day of rest somewhere—Sunday among Christians, Monday with the Greeks, Tuesday with the Persians, Wednesday with the Assyrians, Thursday with the Egyptians, Friday with the Turks, and Saturday with the Hebrews.

JOHN L. SUES TO

DIVORCE WOMAN

HE WED LONG AGO

The Story That He Will Marry Rich Widow Revived.

NEW YORK, July 15.—John L. Sullivan, pugilist, actor, philosopher, lecturer and temperance talker, has begun an action for divorce against his wife Annie, whom he married 25 years ago in Boston and from whom he separated a few months ago.

Preliminary papers in the action were filed yesterday in the county clerk's office, Brooklyn, Justice Lester W. Clark permitting service by publication on Sullivan's wife, who the complaint says is now a resident of Centerville, N. Y.

Stories in circulation about a year ago to the effect that Sullivan was trying to get a divorce so that he might marry a wealthy widow who was to reward him with her heart and fortune for a two-year trip on the water wagon, were vigorously denied by the old heavyweight champion.

His prospective second choice was said to be a resident of this city, but if there ever was such a romance the identity of the woman was never disclosed.

COURTED 45 YEARS AGO; MARRIED NOW.

Death of His Wife and Her Husband Leads to Reunion.

SELINGROVE, Pa., July 14.—Separated forty-five years ago because of a lovers' quarrel, Mrs. Susan Derr, 61 years old, of Sunbury, and Isaac Lahr, 59 years old, of Herndon, were quietly married on the Fourth of July.

During their school days in Northumberland County they were lovers. But later Mrs. Derr met another man, and Mr. Lahr became acquainted with another girl. That was forty-five years ago.

Just for spite attentions became more marked between the new pair. In a few years each party married, and moved to different parts of the country. Recently they were both bereaved, and returned to their native country. They learned of each other's plight, and accidentally meeting, commended themselves. Their school day love returned, and they were married.

THOUGHTS.

Go forth into the busy world and love it; interest yourself in its life; mingle kindly with its joys and sorrows; try what you can do for men, rather than what you can make them do for you, and you will know what it is to have men yours, better than if you were their king or master—Brook Herford.

He is a nobleman who goes out every morning, it may be from the humblest of homes, to his work and to his labor until the evening, with a determination to do his best—S. R. Hole.
