

Young Folks

In Fairyland.

Beth came to the border of Drowsy Town one day. She was trying to find Wide-Awake, where the cowslips grow, but she lost her way. There at her feet lay a little pink stone, which, as she stooped to pick it up, grew larger and larger, until it reached high over her head.

"Oh," cried Beth, "what a funny, funny place!"

As she spoke, a door in the rock flew open and a tiny voice called, "Come in!"

So Beth went in. Again the little voice called to her, "Walk straight ahead, but don't forget to follow the green light."

What a beautiful light it was! It filled the little room with greenish-golden shadows. Away, away it danced, with Beth dancing after it. Soon they came to a little lake where the sunlight threw golden bridges across the water. Beth was about to step on one of them, when she saw, close to the bank, a large white swan.

The swan spread his great wings and motioned to Beth to climb upon his back. To her surprise she seemed to have grown smaller. So she sailed away on the graceful swan, on and on, down the River of Sleep, until they reached the shore of Wonderful Dreams. And there, as the swan stepped out upon the silvery sands, he became a little fairy prince.

"Come," he said. "I will show you the beautiful dream tree. You shall take my golden wand and knock down the dream that you want most."

The dream tree is a most wonderful thing. The dreams hang in clusters, all pink and white, and silver and gold, blue and green—and every other color you can think of. Beth saw one lovely pink one, spangled all over with silver, hanging, oh, so high! She tried with the fairy's wand to knock it down, but she hit instead a black and green dream, which came tumbling to her feet with a crash, and out of it ran dozens of little black mice!

"Oh! Oh!" cried Beth. "That wasn't the dream I wanted."

The little prince laughed at her, and picking up one of the little black mice, he balanced it on the end of the golden wand and spoke three magic words. Instantly beside the little girl there stood a beautiful pony all bridled and saddled with white leather studded with jewels.

"Oh, my dream came true!" she cried; and before she knew it she was galloping over the Land of Dreams, while the fairy prince stood before her on the saddle and guided the pony. They rode and rode, until at last Beth grew tired. "Let us go home now," she whispered.

But the fairy prince said, "Little girl, little girl, you forgot to follow the green light."

"But," said Beth, "you changed the mouse so quickly to a pony that I did not have time to think. Take me back to the dream tree, please. I am sure we shall find the green light there."

So back they dashed to the dream tree; and there, shining in the broken dream, was the beautiful green light, and the little black mice were snugled up to it for warmth.

"How cunning they look!" whispered Beth. Then she found herself again at the bank of the River of Sleep and heard the white swan calling to her. So she sailed away back to the Land of Wide-Awake; and so strange is the power of a fairy's wand, that when she landed there, clasped tight in her hand, was a sugared pop-corn ball that was partly eaten.—Youth's Companion.

CLOCKS—AND WIVES.

Which Would be the Easier to Move—and to Keep in Order.

A good clock—like a good wife—should not need constant watching.

Some clocks—like some wives—get wound up every night, and nothing will stop them but a good shaking. This, however, is a drastic remedy, and, after all, the business of both clocks and wives is to keep going cheerfully—and not make too much noise about it.

Shaking doesn't improve the works of either timepieces or women, and if you persist in it they will inevitably get "run down." Watchmakers and doctors flourish through men's foolishness in this respect.

Wives—unlike clocks—cannot be expected to sit quietly on the mantelpiece day after day and night after night without getting out of order. This privileged position, which adds dignity to the handsomest clock, would make the loveliest woman look a trifle ridiculous.

When the clock strikes one, it is not too late to get six or seven hours' sleep if you stop arguing.

When your wife strikes, too, it is too late to do anything except reach for her wrists.

Clocks are apt to get slow in warm weather, but it is summer-time that wives are usually friskiest.

A clock can be pawned; a wife cannot.

What home is complete without a clock? What house is a home without a wife? Tick or nag, who would choose to be clockless and wifeless? Time passes unheeded without the one; time is wasted with or without the other.

A COMPLETE BREAKDOWN AFTER LA GRIPPE

It Leaves the Sufferer a Victim of Many Forms of Weakness

Ask those who have had la grippe regarding the present condition of their health and most of them will answer "Since I had the grip I have never been well." There is a persistent weakness of the limbs, bad digestion, shortness of breath and palpitation of the heart caused by the thin-blooded condition in which grip almost always leaves its victims after the fever and influenza have subsided. They are at the mercy of relapses and complications, often very serious. This condition will continue until the blood is built up again, and for this purpose nothing can equal a fair treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which quickly make the blood rich and red, drive the lingering germs from the system and transform despondent grip victims into cheerful, healthy, happy men and women. Mr. John Battorby, London, Ont., says:—"Just before Christmas, 1914, I was taken down with an attack of la grippe, and the trouble left me in a deplorable condition. I was almost too weak to walk about, as I was then working on a farm in Western Ontario, I was quite unable to follow my usual work. I tried several kinds of medicine, but it did not help me. As a matter of fact I felt steadily growing weaker, and in this condition, when reading a paper, I saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills advertised and decided to try them. I got a supply and by the time the second box was finished I felt considerably better, and after continuing the pills for some time longer I felt better than I had done for months. This was my first experience with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, but you may depend upon it that if I find medicine necessary again I will know what to take."

You can get these pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

RESEARCH AND PROGRESS.

New Inventions Are Constantly Changing Conditions.

In an article on the relation of research to the progress of manufacturing industries, Dr. W. R. Whitney shows that purely academic research has led to some of our greatest industrial achievements. "Search for new knowledge," says Doctor Whitney, "is the insurance for the future of the industries. Many factories later by manufacturing things not even conceivable to-day. The incandescent lamp business will serve for illustration. I have seen whole factories entirely overhauled a number of times in the past few years in order to make the newest lamps. Not only have entire floors of complicated and expensive machines for making carbon lamps been thrown out and new machinery for making metal filament lamps installed, but before packing cases containing new machines could be opened and unpacked in the factory they have been thrown out as useless, as the advance from squinted-metal filaments to drawn-wire filaments proved the better way. Before factories could reach the limit of efficiency in manufacturing vacuum lamps the introduction of nitrogen into the lamps brought another change; and now, when the nitrogen-tungsten lamps have been in use only a short time, the manufacture of argon and its introduction into the incandescent lamp becomes a reality. If the research laboratories that discovered the means for bringing about these changes, with their accompanying economies, could receive a cent for every dollar that they save the public, they would receive over a million dollars a year to spend for further research. The people are the ones who are most interested in research, although they may not know it."

HOW YOU MAY THROW AWAY YOUR GLASSES

The statement is made that thousands wear eyeglasses who do not really need them. If you are one of these unfortunate ones, then these glasses may be ruining your eyes instead of helping them. There are many ways in which these "sinners" may prove for themselves that they can dispense with glasses if they will get the following prescription filled at once. Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets; fill a two-ounce bottle with warm water and drop in one Bon-Opto tablet. With this harmless liquid solution bathe the eyes two to four times daily, and you are likely to be astonished at the results right from the start. Many who have been told that they have astigmatism, eye-strain, cataract, sore eyelids, weak eyes, conjunctivitis and other eye disorders, report wonderful benefits from the use of this prescription. Get this prescription filled and use it; you may soon find that your glasses will not be necessary. Thousands who are blind, or nearly so, or who wear glasses might never have required them if they had cared for their eyes in time. Save your eyes before it is too late! Do not become one of these victims of neglect. Eyeglasses are only like crutches and after a few years they must be changed to fit the ever-increasing weakened condition. Get clear, healthy, strong magnetic eyes through the prescription here given. Buy your own drug store, not fill this prescription, send it to the Valmas Drug Co., Toronto, for a complete Bon-Opto Home Treatment outfit—tablets and all.

When the War Will End.

"Mrs. Bagwash" writes to the London Star: "Sir—Just a line to relieve a lot of people of their troubles. You can take it from me the present war will be over in a fortnight. My old man joined the Army to-day. We have been married twenty years, and he has never stuck to a job more than a fortnight."

TWO GREEK LANGUAGES.

One Spoken by the Educated, Other by the Masses.

There exists now in Greece a linguistic condition of affairs around which centres a controversy at once comic or tragic; for throbbed by in Greece two languages or rather, the one language in two forms—one written by the newspapers, spoken by the educated classes, and used in parliamentary debates and in public documents, including the Scriptures, the circulation of which is regulated by law; and the other a vernacular used by the masses of the people, containing many words of foreign origin, especially Turkish and Italian arising from those periods of foreign occupation, with a much simplified grammar, and rarely reduced to writing, except for private communications. The former is the cultured tongue; the latter the popular idiom; and between the two there rages a merciless warfare, in which fanatical students of the university have lost their lives, ministers their portfolios, a Metropolitan of Athens his mitre, and the sweet-faced queen-mother much of her former popularity.

WOULD KILL PRISONERS.

What Germany Would Do in Case of Starvation.

Germany seems to be getting desperate. In a series of articles in "The People or the State," the tenth of the series of the war essays written by the Germans and published by A. Marcus and E. Weber, of Bonn, there is an article by Dr. Heinz Pothoff, who was for nine years a member of the Reichstag. The London Standard quotes the following from the article by Dr. Pothoff.

"Can anyone doubt, Dr. Pothoff writes, 'that the German general staff will hesitate to employ extreme measures if Germany is ever on the verge of real starvation? If necessary, we must expel all the inhabitants from the territories which our armies have occupied and drive them into the enemy's lines; if necessary, we must kill the hundreds of thousands of prisoners who are now consuming our supplies. That would be frightful, but would be inevitable if there were no other way of holding out.'"

BABY'S BATTLES AGAINST SICKNESS

Can best be fought with Baby's Own Tablets—the little pleasant tasting Tablet that never fails to regulate the stomach and bowels and drive out all minor ills of little ones. Concerning them Mrs. H. Hower, Eastburg, Alta., says:—"I have four healthy children, thanks to the use of Baby's Own Tablets. I have been using the Tablets for the past eight years and think them the best medicine in the world for little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SERBIAN RELIEF.

Without Outside Help Thousands Will Perish.

Great interest has been aroused in the terrible conditions prevailing in Serbia owing to the ravages of the typhus epidemic and by the invasion of the Austrians. Both adults and children are in dire need of all the necessities of life, particularly blankets and warm clothing. Clothing must be either new or perfectly good and clean, with carriage prepaid to Toronto. Goods or money sent to the Serbian Relief Depot, Room 17, Mail Building, Toronto, will be gladly received and forwarded.

Dr. Sharpe of Brampton, Miss Lonsavich, daughter of a former Serbian Minister to Great Britain, and Miss Everard, an American nurse in Belgrade, all recently returned from Serbia, are both publicly and privately urging everyone to contribute to the fund, for without generous outside help the adult refugees and the 25,000 orphan children must die, as the countries of Albania and Montenegro into which they have retreated have not sufficient food for themselves and no adequate protection from the bitter weather. The following letter speaks for itself:

December 20th, 1915.
Cromwell Road,
London, S.W., England.
Mrs. Hamilton, Lat Vice, Chairman,
The Suffragists' War Auxiliary,
32 St. Joseph St., Toronto.

Dear Madam—We are very grateful for your kind letter of 1st inst., and are very pleased to give you all the information we can as regards the administration of our fund and the needs thereof.

Our fund has equipped and maintained five large hospitals as well as six or seven dispensaries in Serbia during the past year, besides distributing relief among civilians. Most of these hospitals are now in the hands of the Bulgarians, and the staffs are either prisoners or on the way to the coast with the retreating armies. We have been able, however, to raise medical relief work among the refugees on the Greek frontier, and English representatives of the fund are already at work on our behalf both in Montenegro and in the Salonika district. In the last mentioned area the work is carried on under the supervision of our late treasurer, Sir Edward Boyle.

The main needs of the people at present are warm underclothing for men, women and children; shawls, boots, and, above all, blankets. As regards food stuffs, which we are asked to send out in large quantities, cereals, biscuits, jam, condensed milk and bovril are specially desirable.

I am enclosing a copy of our latest appeal, and we shall be most grateful for any help which your Society can kindly send us.

Yours truly,
M. MUSGRAVE WATSON,
Secretary.

ITALY NEEDS NEEDLES.

Many Articles of Common Use Scarce Because of War.

The scarcity of common-place articles of everyday use such as needles, toilet supplies and drugs is probably more accentuated in Italy than in any of the other belligerent countries, because these things have been supplied to Italy almost entirely by Germany. One of the branches of a sewing machine company, for instance, reports it is no longer able to supply medium-sized needles, because these are made in Germany. It also appears an impossibility to buy a fever thermometer in Rome, as this is another article of German make. The supply of aspirin and a number of other remedies is exhausted at most of the pharmacies, and doctors are finding it increasingly difficult to get their prescriptions filled because of the lack of drugs.

This dearth of necessities is rendered heavier to bear by the almost impossibility of getting goods from other countries and from the high cost of living. The cars for the transport of goods are all used for military purposes and Rome even is threatened by a sugar famine although the manufacturers have sufficient for the needs of the whole country. The cost of living has altogether increased about four times and promises to rise further.

RATS IN TRENCHES.

Devour Tires and Overrun Galleries in Battalions.

There is a plague of rats along the British and French lines in Flanders and France. A soldier describes the invasion as "worse than the Germans," in a letter which adds:

"Trenches, communications, fields, woods, cellars and barns are choked with them. We have them holding congresses at night in the busiest roads and giving concerts by day in the most crowded villages. We literally march on top of them. They breed and breed and launch themselves into assaults on the cantonments, like the Germans on the Yser, by battalions en masse.

"They are beginning to be tortured by hunger, and the shortage of food makes them capable of anything. The other morning I saw a cyclist whose tires had been half devoured by a platoon of rats. The other night some of our men had their surgical first-aid packets, which they keep in a coat pocket, attacked and carried off. Woe to the man who goes to sleep with a morsel of chocolate in his trousers! He will wake up to find himself without."

The writer goes on to describe the methods of warfare that are being used against the new enemy, particularly some of the ingenious giant traps devised by the soldiers for catching the rats on a wholesale scale.

PRESSED HARD.

Heavy Weight on Old Age

When people realize the injurious effects of tea and coffee and the better health that a change to Postum can bring, they are usually glad to lend their testimony for the benefit of others.

"My mother, since her early childhood, was an inveterate coffee drinker, had been troubled with her heart for a number of years and complained of that 'over-over' feeling and sick stomach." (The effects of tea on the system are very similar to those of coffee, because they each contain the drug, caffeine.)

"Some time ago I was making a visit to a distant part of the country and took dinner with one of the merchants of the place. I noticed a somewhat unusual flavor of the 'coffee' and asked him concerning it. He replied that it was Postum.

"I was so pleased with it that I bought a package to carry home with me, and had wife prepare some for the next meal. The whole family liked it so well that we discontinued coffee, and used Postum entirely.

"I had been very anxious concerning my mother's condition, but we noticed that after using Postum for a short time she felt much better, had little trouble with her heart, and no sick stomach; that the headaches were not so frequent, and her general condition much improved. This continued until she was well and hearty.

"I know Postum has benefited myself and the other members of the family, especially my mother, as she was a victim of long standing." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Postum comes in two forms: Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup.

EFFECTS OF THE WAR.

Brings Decrease in Crime in England and Wales.

One of the effects of the war has been to decrease in an important proportion the number of inmates in the prisons of England and Wales. The fact is brought out in the annual report of the Prison Commissioners, which has just been issued.

Prisoners sentenced by the ordinary courts, with persons imprisoned as debtors or on civil process, were as follows in 1914-15, compared with the corresponding period:

	1914-15.	Dec.
Penal Servitude	591	296
Imprisonment	102,971	32,169
Debtors or civil process	438	49
Total	8,013	5,225
Surcetes	625	141
Total	113,539	37,790

The Prison Commissioners ascribe the falling off throughout the country of the male prison population to:

1. The enlistment of many habitual intoxicating liquors.
2. The great demand for labor.
3. Restricted hours for the sale of petty offenders.

Thirteen-Year-Old Soldier.

Vienna newspapers tell of the return to school in that city of Hans Kiesel, a thirteen-year-old boy, who disappeared some months ago and went to the front. It appears now that he joined the Eighteenth battalion of the First Austrian infantry and was for four months on the frontier of Bessarabia. He participated in two battles, was wounded in the chest by shrapnel, but recovered quickly. The general in command was very much surprised when he learned he had such a youthful soldier in the ranks and at once sent him home, as he refused to take further responsibility for the lad.

Oh, Those Irish!

Very few people are ambidextrous, that is, able to use the left hand as readily and skillfully as the right. But there is an amusing story of one Irishman who was careful to cultivate that art. When he was signing articles on board a ship he began to sign his name with his right hand, and then changed the pen to his left hand and finished it.

"So you can write with either hand, Pat?" asked the officer.

"Yis, sorr," replied Pat. "Whin I was a boy me father—rest his soul!—always told me: 'Pat, learn to cut yer finger nails wid yer left hand, for some day ye might lose yer right!'"

"DISTRESS IN GERMANY."

How the British Public Helped in 1914.

It is rather interesting to find, from a copy of the London Courier, dated March 9, 1914, that at that time the people of Great Britain were busy themselves raising funds to relieve distress in Germany. At the head of a long subscription list in the copy of the newspaper before us there is this introduction:—

By the generosity of the British public the sum of nearly £50,000 was remitted, which rescued multitudes from the extremity of want; but at no period since the existence of this committee, has the mass of every kind of misery been so great in the country to which their attention was first directed; where the many sanguinary battles fought in Silesia, Lunatia, Bohemia, Saxony, Brandenburg, and other parts, have entailed upon the peaceable inhabitants sufferings almost unexampled in the annals of history. The Committee are anxious to impress on the minds of their countrymen, that in anticipation of British support they have remitted to different parts of Germany to the amount of nearly £40,000.

Beautifies While You Sleep

COVER UP BATTLE RAVAGES.

French Repair Buildings and Bridges on Line to Nancy.

The traveller by rail from Nancy to Paris now finds little to be seen from the car window to indicate that the country on both sides of the line was twice covered in retreat and advance by the two great armies that are still fighting just beyond the ridges of Champagne and the forest hills of the Argonne that are visible to the north.

Beginning with Meaux, most of the ravages of battle have been rebuilt or repaired, and excepting an isolated structure most of the bombarded buildings have been repaired or replaced.
