

At the time I meant to write you about little Sam's grave, but you can understand the kind of things at the time since I came home. John & I went up to the cemetery and the superintendent went out with us to see the plot. I suggested buying Sam in A as it is a short grave but on considering matters the superintendent suggested using the space at the west of the monument which could not be used for anything else. If you remember, there is a tree where I had put the X pit which was to be cut down if we wanted to use D & E the way they are drawn. I would not like to see that tree go, so he suggested it might be well to have the other grave so Robert should win that part the grave marked A would be needed for the length we all concluded that would be best. I hope it meets with your approval. The superintendent said there were plenty of trees & one lot would not matter but I have always had an affection for that tree, I had it taken down the plot because it was there. I have been in bed all day with much on my chest trying to shake off a nasty cough. It is probably tiredness as much as anything. Sam's engagement has made quite a stir, it says are both very popular,
