He arrived at the T.O. there was no one around so he went to his quarters to take some pills ~~which had been given~~ ^{which had been given} by the R.A.P. Not feeling well & having no duties to perform he lay down on the bed for a little while.

When Sgt Cook called him he followed him down an outdoor flight of stairs to the Transport office. With a bad cold, two or three drinks & some medicine after lying in his bed for a while while it is small wonder that a Major Hill he appeared flushed & a little unsteady. When ordered to his quarters he immediately went & carried himself in a soldierly manner. ~~This was already brought out in the evidence for the prosecution.~~
