periodically be rinsed of Under a strict ob rvance of this treatment, the natural ater absorbed through tleonomy of our organization stands ready to defy dysennage of the system whichry, cholera morbus, or any disease of the bowels, such tissues would be clean ars so-called summer complaints, even challenging them s would be allowed to setto get a start, if they can, in our intestinal canal.

nineral deposits, which at All such forms of disease, as it must now be manifest, hat most horrible of all diriginate in the overcharging of the circulating fluids of be body with deleterious and poisonous substances rmal action of the kidneyicked up, as so often reiterated, by absorption, chiefly

g and rinsing of the santom the colon. of the urinary organs, suc When these fluids thus become surcharged with disler and urethra would lase-bearing germs, and have so acted upon the gastric ale weaknesses in all the pice at the seat of digestion as to force it also into the l origin in the same sourcervice of the destroying army, they combine not only n, would no longer require send their poisonous influences down the duodenum specialists to mitigate, and along the small intestine, but they pour their acrid tive nerves to be endured cutting currents through a million invisible pores flushed and cleansed, and channels of the mucous membranes of the entire ined condition of the kidneyestinal canal, converting its normal and healthy secren contaminating the adjulous into semi-poisonous acid, thereby dissolving the well as rectal fistula, would testinal contents into a burning stream of almost an ailments, as their cause quid lava, which oftentimes scalds away portions of he membrane itself, cutting and severing along its

is impurities thus findinourse the tiny blood vessels which centre therein, etc., vital fluids of the bodyte.

y by the assimilating tis This, dear reader, is summer complaint; and in a matism, erysipelas, asthm. fore virulent form, dysentery; in a still more aggravated pleurisy, diphtheria, pneurm cholera morbus and bloody flux; but in its worst kidney troubles, with ma orm it is Asiatic cholera.

could never effect a per To prevent all these forms of disease, we must exclude m as definite forms of dishe germs of poison and seeds of decay, which are their emporary neglect in usin tuse, rigidly from the circulation, by keeping the colon one of these forms of disleansed, and thus delivering from temptation the useful rt, its eradication from thibsorbents of the body, by keeping putridity as much as ediately result by a vigorossible out of their way.

syringe and nature's grea To cure such forms of disease, when they have taken ossession of the organism, and after they have com-