THE COURIER.

That we are approaching a crisis in the political affairs of this Province, must be manifert to any one who bestows but ordinary attention upon the language of our journals. The public mind is not occupied with discussions about a change in the Ministry, or canvassing the merits of aspirants - the universal clamor is for a change in the system. In the race some are in advance, some are laggards, some are scarce ready for the start; but all feel that Responsible Government is not merely a delusion, but a positive curse to the Colony. The French Canadian population are now ably instructed by several journals which dare to speak boldly the truth, despite the Priestly dictation with which they are assailed even from the pulpit. We translate the following extract from La Sentinelle du Peuple, a recently established paper at Quebec, as an evidence of the nts which animate the industrial classes in that city. The "Clear Grits" of Upper Canada may well afford to ridicule the empty vapouring of the Lafontaine junto, when they see adversaries in the Ministerial stronghold, who were once the blindest followers of Responsible Go-wherever a free opinion is expressed in the city, as Wherever a fire opinion is expressed in the cay, as in the country, one hears a combination of complaints upon the actual state of things in this Colony:—The merchant finds no buyers for his merchandize; the farmer is forced to sell his products at a miscrable price; the laborer has no employment; justice is ruinous, and property is sinking beneath the weight of imposts of every kind. Responsible Government, say its admirers. kind. Responsible Government, say its admirers, see a remedy for all these evils. How comes the possesses a remedy for all these evis. How comes the delay to apply it 1—after nine years of bluster and fuss, what has it done ! It has created it public debt of several millions; it has placed in office, its blind portions, or for them; it has pillaged the public treasure.

But liberal institutions with mem? In section that the present day, things are yet to be done. Can we, at the present day, be prevented from perceiving that the system of Responsible Government is like a wheel, which always brings the same results, no matter who turns it? England, ceding to the demand of its people, has withdrawn the protection to our products in her market, and close the same control of the products of the present of the products of the present of protection to our products in her market, and given us nothing in return. At the present day, our farmers work like slaves upon the land where their fathers, with ulty furnish food for their families. Thousands upon thousands exile themselves each year from a land which can no longer gustain them. These people are our rela-

It is probable that the repeal of the Navigation Laws will bring to our shores a considerable number of German emigrants, who will be wending their way towards the Western States, there to join their fellow-countrymen, who are con-sidered the best farmers in that section of the country. Can we not arrest the tide of emigration, and retain amongst us at least a portion of the wealth, activity, and energy, of these hardy sons of toil, who carry with them, wherever they among we, not, by occupying our form and tillproperty of the barements by which keys
