Some Ford Facts

The payroll of the Ford Motor Co. for the year 1923 is estimated at $8,000,000.

Fifty freight cars are loaded and unloaded each day at the Ford factory.

Allowing a driving distance of about eight feet between each car the total number of Fords in use today would form a complete girdle around the world at the equator.

Ford cars shipped during the Company's fiscal year (ending July 31st, 1923) will exceed 70,000 of which Canada will take 40,000 and overseas territory, 30,000.

Start Scrapping Seven Battleships

The destruction by hammer and torch of naval armament has begun on two Pacific coasts shipyards in compliance with the terms of the agreement reached at the armament conference in Washington.

Seven "ships of the line" six of them outworn in service and the seventh still less than half completed on the launching ways are being fairly overrun by "stripping crews" removing small ordnance and other works that "may come in handy" later.

When the stripping is completed the hulls will either be disposed of to private owners for destruction or will be cut up and junked by the Government.

WICKED LONDON AND NEW YORK

Editorial Observations by New York Times

From the report of Sir William Horwood, Commissioner of London Police for 1922, let us take first the only comforting details. These relate to the clothing and lighting of the London bobbies, an amiable, polite, patient but, as will be seen, in efficient set of men. In Winter those robust legs are to be encased in trousers of a dainty cloth equal to that supplied to Inspectors instead of the harsh stuff of former days. Will not this luxury have a demoralizing effect?
Conservatives will regret the change in the lighting system. An electric concern is to replace the dim, familiar oil lamp on the belt.
This mechanical improvement only makes sharper the demoralization of London morals which the Commissioner records. In spite of the utmost efforts of the police, hundreds of prosecutions, fat fines and costs paid by convicted bookmakers, the evil of street betting does not abate.

The picture of drunkenness is sinister, if much less so than in 1914, when 77,000 persons were charged with it. In 1918, under the severe restrictions of the war, the number fell to a little more than 11,000. In 1922 it was almost 34, 000. Of these persons, 36,400 of them women, 30,799 were convicted.
This is an increase of more than 3,300 since 1921, an increase of more than 900 convicted women.
Compare these figures with those of our own self-controlled community.

According to Commissioner Enright's report for 1921 arrests for intoxication in that year were 8,169, whereas the average for the years 1910 to 1914 was 27,504. According to statistics published by Municipal Judge Gemmill of Chicago there were 11,402 arrests for drunkenness here in New York in 1922. Even if this unofficial statement be accepted, it shows that this city is three times as moral as London. Only in the matter of comparative peccadas, such as murder, does London shine.

"Twenty-six cases of murder of persons above one year of age were recorded, as against twenty-one in 1921. Arrests were effected in thirteen cases, and in the remaining thirteen the murderer committed suicide. The total number of persons apprehended and charged was sixteen, as against 7 for 1921.
Of the sixteen (one being for a murder committed in 1921) thirteen were convicted and sentenced to death, and three were found to be insane at the time of the commission of the crime.

In New York in 1921, 237 murders were reported. There were 34 convictions. New York is devoted to the prevention and punishment of crimes worse than murder.

SATISFACTION

A seemingly low price for an article is always attractive, but unfortunately frequently misleading.
How often is heard the remark—"I would rather have paid a little more and got the quality I wanted."

As a matter of fact that "little more" was necessary to obtain the better quality. Good goods require a higher price to be good.

There are cheaper teas than "KING COLE"—but would you be satisfied with their quality?

Quebec, the Old World Province

1. The Calèche, a means of conveyance much favoured by visitors to Quebec.
2. An old brick oven, the like of which was used in France four centuries ago.
3. Chateau Frontenac, Quebec, the most modern hotel on the continent, from a glorious height looks down on old Quebec and on the early battle fields.
4. Ancient and modern. The little cannon captured by the British at Bunker Hill, rests near the Quebec Citadel by the side of a howitzer which fell to the Canadians in the Great War.
5. Though their farms are modern, some farmers still use the ox as beast of burden in the back country.

THESE are just a few pictures taken in Quebec. It is not without reason that this province is becoming the tourist resort of the continent, for here is a country of utmost fascination and intrigue. Quebec has an atmosphere all its own and, if it can be said, more of an old-world atmosphere than has the old-world of today.
Quebec is the eighteenth century keeping pace with the twentieth, yet retaining its identity.

One stops at little wayside shrines. The wooden cross, the patron saint in effigy, the nurtured flowers, the woman at her distaff, the white-walled houses close at hand transport you to the distant land from whence the original settlers came. Yet, over there, beyond that little hedge or cedar fence the farmer gathers in his crop with up-to-date machinery, and stores it in a modern barn. Behind, the hum of the telegraph wire reminds you that you are not living in a by-gone day and, if that is not enough, through the not too distant fields, a huge train thunders.

Near the white walls the lady of the house draws water from the old-fashioned well, and bakes her bread in an old brick oven, the like of which was used by her ancestors in France four centuries ago. She spins her own wool and shares with her husband a faith, which though not old-fashioned, is almost as old as the Christian era. A kindly hospitable soul is she, nor is she always backward in learning, for she probably attended the convent of the Ursulines at Quebec, or la petite école at Louisville. And her husband—He may be content to wear the homespun, to sit around the fire, or on the threshold at night, to smoke his "Rouge Quenel" and to drive five miles to church early on all holidays in his buggy or in the straw lined cart that is used about the farm, but he "knows his letters" and, better still, he knows his farm.

The Quebec farm is usually up-to-date. Your "habitant" gets all that can be got from the soil, and if you sit with him and talk you will see that he gets the fullness of life too. Give him the simple pleasures. He is happy if he can re-tell the story of the big moose he shot by "Lac Saint Pierre" and the bear. He is some trapper too, "for sure I catch him lots of skin, me!"

The "old man," the "old woman" and that large, very large family, are content as seldom people are, and rightly so, for theirs is a rich heritage, and beautiful. The mighty St. Lawrence and its thousand tributaries, the glorious Laurentians, with their wooded slopes, the forests, lakes and myriad streams give them a country almost unexcelled for beauty. Game and fish abound as has been discovered by sportsmen from outside. Moose, trout, maskinonge, the big black bass, bear, deer and caribou.
From a historians point of view Quebec is the hunting ground of the continent. Quebec city is one huge souvenir of the early days of Canadian settlement. Lost and re-captured several times her old Walls still bear the marks of storm, and the old cannons still guard the city and the approaches to the citadel.

The history of Quebec is the history of Canada, priest, soldier and pioneer settler each having played a glorious part in the making of it. With the fair Dominion as a lasting memorial to their valor and courage, Quebec links them with the present day; their faith, piety, and the work they commenced are being preserved and carried on by the present generation. The relics of their day scattered here and there, and on almost every street, look down or out upon the most modern improvements of the age, the railways, and the huge Canadian Pacific and other steamships at the docks, but lose not their identity, and in the case of buildings and public places, their charm and interest.

All through Quebec province, and in the most unexpected places one comes across historic links with the past. Like her people Quebec is quiet, peaceful, and does not crave the limelight, but Quebec is not and cannot be overlooked. It is an old world, full of charm, within the new.

COURTESY

Apparently, politeness is not considered of any value. And yet, the man who wants to get on, realizes how much more likely he is to please others by being polite. Of course, the rude, pushing man "gets there" sometimes. But courtesy pays, and is a real asset in business life as well as in social circles and how much time or thought is given in schools to teaching Courtesy? And this is why a "Courtesy week" is necessary to make up for what is absent in our Education
