DOMINION PARLIAMENT. Before the orders of the day were called in the House of Commons on Monday, 25th. ult., Sir Adolphe saked aboat General Gascoigne and was told that he had resigned his Ganadian command, but retained his position till his successor was appointed. How. Mr. Tarte informed Mr. Ganong that the est timated cost of establishing telegraphic communication between Deer Island and the mainland was $3,500. Tele-phone communication would cost $850. The house on the afternoon the 28th, resumed the discussion of the franchise bill. When Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick proposed nis amendment removing the provincial disqualification of the Do-minion officials, it was found that the amendment required a good deal of amendment, but it was finally licked into some kind of shape. The com-mittee of the whole made fair progress with the franchise bill. A large num-ber of amendments were found neces-sary to make the act workehls and unber of amendments were fond neces-sary to make the act workable, and un-til the bill as repaired is printed, it will be hard to know how much the bill has been changed. The solicitor gen-eral has partly promised to provide for printing the list in the Ottawa bureau, notwithstanding the provincial control. The house adjourned at midnight.

Sir Louis Davies made a fierce onslaught on the auditor, who, he said, was usurping the powers of the whole cabinet, and in his most furitus manner showed that Mr. McDougall is exceeding his powers. Mr. Corbin's band and the Grand Trunk people who have been camping on the ground with the intention of try-ing to restore the Kettle River bill to ite place on the orders, are said to have given up the game. They found that they gould not get votes enough.

The chairman was Rev. W. Aitken. He had to call "Fagan" to order several times and told him he must understand that he (Mr. A.) was conducting the proceedings, and not to interfere. Thos who signed (15) were asked if the matter could not be amicably arranged and they answered negatively, Mr. Joseph Hender son (who I believe is an elder) stating that if Mr. Thomson remained he would ever his connection with the church. Mr, Thomson spoke, asking for sympathy. He said he had worked all the best of his life in the ministry and was not now able to go at anything else, &c., &c. The chairman asked him if, under existing circumstances, he was prepared to remain in charge. He said he was not prepared to answer. Mr. Aitken said he must give the answer to-night (This was Tuesday, but we are not informed what answer he gave.) Mr. Thomson said he was taken too suddenly to give an answer. The chairman said Mr. Thomson knew of this thing sufficiently long to have his answer prepared. Certain love-making and enagement breaking transactions of the reverend gentleman were involved in the proceedings and lent a special spice to them, although they reflected little credit on the accused minister. The clergymen present were Rev. Messrs. Aitken, of Newcastle ; Carr of Campbellton, Fisher, of Dalhousie, McLeod, of New Mills, and Nicholson, o Charlo. given up the game. They found that they gould not get votes enough. The house in committee on Friday, 29th, flrished consideration of the fran-chins bill and its amendments. The bill has been patched up and altered in so many ways that its author would not recognize it if he had not assisted in the changes. The bill will have to be reprinted before the 'hird reading.' Supply was then taken up after the franchise bill was reported, and the statutory increases was discussed at some length on the vote for civil gev-ernment. The committee of supply made good progress in the evening. The opposition had some fun with the ministers over some of the contingen-cies, as when Mr. Pope asked Mr. Joly whether the three ratives charged to him were used to proyide fresh meat for his friends Li Hung Chang, and when Mr. Fielding, who had a arge charge for ribbons for typewriter, was asked by Mr. Mills to "tell us her name." On the item for high commis-sionere, Clarke Wallace said he thought the time had come for the reconsidera-tion of the policy in regard to that es-tablishment. He thought the office could be made to do better work in promoting trade and assisting the sale of Canadian products. Sir Riebard Cartwright commended Lord Strath-cons, but admitted that there was force in Mr. Wallace's view. It was intend-cd, he said, to send a minister to Eng-land at the close of the session to look into the matiger. Dalton McCarthy made his maiden speech of the session he was agreed that Lord Strathcona was all right, but said that the fourthour office required a little shaking up.
