Captain Corkum Buying Herring.

In another part of this issue will be found a copy of a letter dated Saturday last, at St. Jacques, and sent by Inspector O'Reilly to Mr. H. W. LeMessurier, Assistant Collector. The part of the letter to which we direct attention runs as follows:

"Capt. Corkum, of Gloucester, is here purchasing frozen herring at two dollars a barrel, which he is storing, and will charter the schr. Coronation, owned by Tibbo, of Grand Bank, to take them to Gloucester."

It will be remembered that Capt. Corkum came to St. John's and requested permission from the Government to land up his vessel with herring in non-treaty waters. The Government refused the request. It will be remembered also that Capt. Corkum visited us in the Telegram Office and declared his determination to proceed to Fortune Bay and purchase herring for his vessel. According to Inspector O'Reilly he has carried out part of his declared intention. We are awaiting to see if he exports them.

The Bait Act empowers the Government to deal with—

(1) The exportation of herring for bait or food;

(2) And even with the purchase of herring for exportation for either purpose;

(3) Placing them on board a vessel. Evidence of purchase and nothing more may be insufficient to sustain a charge under the Bait Act; and it is probable that the Government is awaiting some overt act of exportation or placing on board a vessel, as an enquiry over the phone this morning we were informed by the Premier that the Government had not given any permission to Capt. Corkum to export herring.

It may be noticed also that under the regulations issued by the American Treasury, Capt. Corkum's purchases of herring would be dutiable on entry. In the States just as if the purchases had been made by a Newfoundland and the freightage done by a Newfoundland vessel.

According to Inspector O'Reilly, Capt. Corkum proposes to freight the herring in Newfoundland bottoms. Under the Foreign Fishing Vessels Act of 1905, by the placing of the herring Capt. Corkum bought on board an American fishing vessel at St. Jacques, "such vessel and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores and cargo thereof shall be forfeited."

The acts perpetrated by Capt. Corkum fall far short of his bombastic boast of loading his vessel with purchased herring in non-treaty waters, but they are in themselves interesting as giving promise of development. We propose to watch the result.

Marine Notes.

The Rosina sailed for Pernambuco this morning taking 4,010 qts of fish for A. Goodridge & Sons. Capt. Dillon is in command.

The Nellie Louise, Capt. Burke, sailed this morning for Pernambuco, fish laden by Bowring Bros.

The brigantine Cordelia arrived at Pernambuco yesterday after a run of 41 days; all well.

The s.s. Tobasco is due here this evening from Liverpool.

The s.s. Florizel left Halifax at midnight for this port and is due here to-morrow night. She made a good run from New York and received a quick despatch.

Mr. Geo. Trainor, of Mr. Cash's tobacco store, left by the express Sunday evening last for Lynn, having received a telegram the previous day that his mother was seriously ill.

Wrestling Match Draws Big Audience.

The wrestling match between Otto Oppelt and Young Olson, at the C. L. B. Armoury, on Harvey Road, last night, had been looked forward to eagerly since New Year by the sports and lovers of sport in the city.

In spite of the fact that the walking was bad and the night stormy the building was crowded. The $2 seat tickets in fact had all been bought up weeks ago. It is estimated that there were upwards of 3,000 spectators in the building.

Before the main bout began Andrew O'Keefe and Ernest Goodland wrestled for the Amateur Bantam Weight Championship of Newfoundland, the prize being a gold medal offered by Young Olson. They wrestled for an hour without securing a fall, but as O'Keefe had gained the most points Theo. Fitzgerald awarded him the medal.

The big bout now began. Olson came on with his seconds, J. Kenna and R. Stick, followed quickly by Otto, whose seconds were Theo Fitzgerald and Pat Neville. Mike Shallow, the referee, then took his place in the ring, and made a signal to put a stop to the vociferous cheering that shook the building for the two wrestlers.

Mr. R. Dowden, of the Herald, who is well up in the athletic business, came forward and read the agreement containing the terms of the contest. He also announced that Dan McDonald, of Nova Scotia, would challenge the winner. Otto was formally introduced as the "158 lb. Graco-Roman Champion of the World." He was greeted with wild applause. Olson was also greeted with enthusiastic cheering by his friends and supporters. Both men looked to be in good condition as they stripped and came to the mat. They showed the results of the hard training that they have been undergoing the past few weeks.

On time being called they met in a headlock and circled around the mat. Otto got a waist hold after a short time and brought Olson down. He tried to get a better grip on him but Olson with great activity eluded him every time. Otto at last got a toe hold, he twisted Olson's leg to lever him over but could not do it. After about 25 minutes struggle in this way Otto got a half-Nelson on his man and out of it gained a double Nelson.

He came down with full force on Olson's head but it was no go, he broke the hold and got clear, and as he did so Otto pounced on him like a "grizzly" but in his efforts to secure a toe hold put Olson off the mat. Otto then got a body hold, he lifted Olson off the floor and threw him down on the mat, but Olson landed like a cat on all fours. Otto was on him like a jaguar, and getting another body hold he threw his man down headforemost; the quick bending of his head saved him from having his neck broken. Olson was cheered vociferously by the crowd for the clever manner in which he saved himself from a fall, and frustrated every attempt made by Otto who was working so hard to get an effective grip. At times Olson would get Otto's head in Chancery, and would bear on his neck with all his strength and weight, but could not hold him; Otto would give a twist and get it out. When the hour was up both men looked played out, their bodies were steaming like the surface of the Harbour when the glass goes below zero. Each tried to secure a grip to bring about a fall but failed. They got to their feet and in the struggle that followed Olson brought down the "Graco-Roman" and mounted his as quickly as a thirsty Arab getting on his camel when the cry "water ahead" is called in the desert. He was scarcely seated when Otto gave a twist and reversed the positions. Otto tried several toe holds, but Olson was too active to be caught. They were now an hour and a half at the bout and both were well spent. They staggered around the mat and went off it several times, and had to be placed on it by the referee who had to warn Olson several times of "butting" in the clinches. In a mix-up off the mat Olson received a severe kick in the face which brought blood. In a sharp tussle which followed Olson was thrown over but saved himself by clever "bridging" which brought forth an outburst of applause. He turned around before Otto could get at him and was out of danger. Shortly after Otto secured a hammerlock and twisted Olson's arm backward. To relieve this position Olson turned over, and was almost forced down on his back, and it looked as if he would go down when he suddenly "bridged" and with a Herculean effort worked clear. He was vociferously applauded by the spectators.

Otto waited his chance and He got the hammerlock on him and twisted him over on his back and slowly but surely worked his shoulders down on the mat. The referee awarded Otto the first fall, and his supporters made the building echo with applause. Olson who made a great struggle but had to give way went to the dressing room where a doctor advised him that it would be unwise to continue with his arm in its present state, as it was badly strained and swollen. It was then announced to the spectators that he would be unable to continue the bout. Oppelt was therefore accorded the victory.

Olson who put up a splendid defence met his first fall last night. We congratulate him on his splendid work, and also the winner, Otto Oppelt, who obtained a victory, but a hard fought one.

CHANNEL SEALING FLEET. — It is said that only three schooners will sail to the Gulf sealfishery from Channel this spring, this being one short of last year. Both the Harlaw and Labrador will take most of their crews from that place, so that more men will be employed at the sealfishery from that section this spring than for several years past.

Another Death From Typhus.

Mrs. Stamp, of Cuddihy Street, who was removed to hospital last week suffering from typhus fever, died at the institution this morning and will be interred to-morrow. The deceased had reached the age of 71 years. All the other patients are doing as well as can be expected. Inspector O'Brien, who is suffering from bronchitis, is recovering but cannot resume his duties for some time yet. Dr. Brehm leaves this evening for Witless Bay to enquire into conditions there. Cahill's house is carefully guarded and it is hoped that no new cases will develop there.

Met It Rough.

The Furness liner Durango, Capt. Chambers, arrived here from Halifax at 11.30 to-day after a very stormy passage. She left there at 8 o'clock Friday night last and from the start had gales of wind with frost and snow and very high seas. Yesterday it was exceptionally stormy with snow, succeeded by rain and a high sea, so that last night in the neighborhood of Cape Race she had to lay to for several hours, and ran down the shore when the storm abated. The ship brought one passenger, Mr. H. T. Preedy, of Halifax, and 800 tons of cargo. She takes 500 tons on board and sails for Liverpool to-morrow afternoon.

Invited to Montreal.

The Catholic Total Abstinence Union of Canada will shortly celebrate its centenary in Montreal, and a few days ago Mr. Geo. J. Coughlan, Secretary of the T. A. & B. Society of this city, received a communication from Mr. E. A. Shannahan, President of the organization there, inviting him to participate in the functions incident to the celebration. At the gathering, Rev. J. J. O'Callaghan, C.S.P., of Chicago, Ill., will deliver a temperance oration. Prof. John Bennett, late of this city, with an orchestra composed principally of members of his family, will render music during the centenary fetes. Mr. Coughlan could not avail of the kindness of Mr. Shannahan and wrote him on behalf of the society thanking him and felicitating the sister organization on the attainment of its hundredth year of its existence.

Tragedy at Montreal.

Woman Found Burned to Death in Her Home—Evidence of Struggle and Police Believe House was Set on Fire.

Montreal, January 24.—That a brutal tragedy has been enacted and effort made to hide the crime by setting fire to the house was the theory of the police when they visited the apartment of Mrs. Joseph Martin, who was found burned and charred almost beyond recognition in response to an alarm sent in by neighbours. The dead woman's room was broken into early this morning, cursory examination by the fire-
