

HEAR WHY WE SPEAK FOR Zam-Buk

THE GREAT HERBAL BALM

INJURED FOOT CURED.

"I speak for Zam-Buk because it cured me of a terribly bad foot," says Mrs. Alice Berryman of 190 John St. North, Hamilton. She adds: "The injury was caused by a wagon wheel, and the sore was on my right foot. It became very inflamed and swollen and so painful that I fainted away. In spite of treatment, the wound got no better and the foot became more and more swollen until it was several times its usual size. The flesh was terribly bruised and blackened and it was quite impossible for me to walk. My husband's mother at last brought me a box of Zam-Buk. This was applied to the foot and it was surprising how soon I found relief from the severe pain. A further supply of Zam-Buk was obtained and I persevered in using this balm alone. In a couple of days the swelling had gone down considerably, the discoloration was less distinct and the pain was banished. In four days I could go about as usual; the bruised and injured foot had been thoroughly cured by the timely use of Zam-Buk."

Did you ever ask yourself:

"How is it that Zam-Buk is so popular?" It is because it is superior and different to other salves. Contrast them! Most salves are nine-tenths animal oil or fat. Zam-Buk has a trace of animal fat in it. Most salves contain mineral coloring matter. Zam-Buk is absolutely without! Many salves contain poisonous astringents. Zam-Buk doesn't. Zam-Buk is actually more powerfully antiseptic than crude carbolic acid. Yet it stops instead of causing pain and smarting when put on a wound. It heals more quickly than any known substance, abscesses, ulcers, eczema, blood-poisoning, cuts, scalp sores, chaps and all skin injuries and diseases. All druggists and stores sell at 50c a box or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Send 1c stamp for trial box.

POISONED FINGER HEALED.

Mrs. Frank St. Denis of 305 Thompson St., Winnipeg, speaks for Zam-Buk because it cured her of a poisoned finger, which had caused her days of agony. Hear her experience. She says: "One morning, while washing, I felt a slight pain in the end of my finger. This gradually got more acute until by the evening of the next day the end of the finger had become swollen and hard and so blue I became alarmed. "The pain from it was almost too much to bear. It made me turn quite sick. I tried to cut it off, but it was too late. Another was applied, but seemed to give me no relief. My daughter-in-law, who had had some previous experience with Zam-Buk, obtained a box for me. I anointed the sore place liberally with this balm, and in a few hours, the throbbing aching pains were subdued. Further applications of Zam-Buk gave me more ease, so that I could get a little sleep. In a few days the nail came off, but after that Zam-Buk seemed to reduce the inflammation quickly. I continued to use it until in the end it had brought about a complete cure."

Farmer Writes on Milk Question

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—Allow me space in your widely circulated paper to make a few comments on the Rules and Regulations brought before the farmers by the Association for the Prevention of Consumption.

There is no farmer around the outskirts of the city, so ignorant as not to know that it pays him to keep his cattle in the best possible condition that he can, and likewise he knows it pays him to keep their production of milk as clean and pure as he can for if not, either he loses his custom, or he will not get the regular price for it.

Allowing that milk and the cows that produce it should be kept as clean as possible, I turn to the A. P. C. rules which the poor farmers of this country could not live and carry out by any means. Do these men mean to put the small struggling farmers of Newfoundland on a par with the wealthy farmers of the United States and Canada, who have every encouragement given them by their respective governments, in the shape of large county Agricultural Colleges, and the best breeding stock that can be procured in the world. Farming in this country is only in its infancy as yet, all for the want of encouragement and fair play, and I am very much of the opinion that it will remain so, if the farmers are to be dictated to by every Tom, Dick and Harry, and if the Government intends to waste the public money on such as these in preference to the children of the old pioneers that emigrated here over a hundred years ago, and strove to make a home in the wild forests, under the most trying circumstances without roads or machinery of any kind to work the land. Then we farmers will come to the conclusion that Newfoundland as a farming country will not be recognized, and that she must remain as a fishing station, as in the old days, when it was against the law to clear the land and cultivate the soil. If the Government that the people placed in power do not protect them against parties that are obstructing them in their fight for an honest and well earned living, then how can they place their confidence in that Government any longer. I am merely expressing the opinion of all the farmers that I have been talking to on this subject, that live in settlements around St. John's and of a larger number of citizens who consume the milk and will tell you to-day that there is a lot of stuff and nonsense talked that is not called for at all.

Do people realize the danger of the formation of a Milk Trust, which might charge exorbitant prices for milk, such as the poor workman could not afford to pay. They would not enquire if the labourer's child had no milk for its breakfast. They will not tell you that your children are very apt to get consumption by not having a plentiful supply of milk. Expressing the hope that the party that pledged themselves to the people of this country to encourage the farming industry and every other industry will stop such bungling.

I remain, yours truly,
J. M. D.

His Branch.

George IV., on his visit to Dublin in 1821, met at a reception Sir Philip Crampton, Ireland's greatest surgeon. "In what branch of the service is that magnificent-looking man?" asked his Majesty. The gentleman to whom the question was put was too polite to hint that the King was mistaken in supposing that the distinguished surgeon was a naval or military officer. "Sir," he replied, "he is a general in the Lancers."

Sidewalk Sketches.

By H. L. RANN.

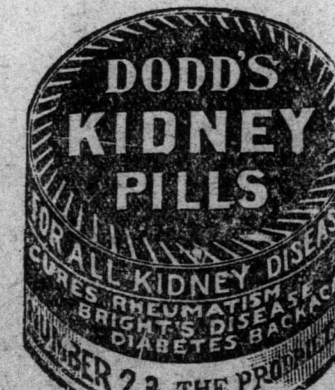

THE SHEEP.

The sheep is an animal which marks the dividing line between the gentle and the hardening of the mind. There are various classes of sheep, but when it comes to intellect they are all about as keen as the village fool.

at a surprise party. The well-balanced sheep is composed of one part wool and nine parts non compos mentis, with the result that there is quite a sameness to her conversation. We are taught in physiology that the brain of the adult sheep weighs less than that of any other article of merchandise except the Hubbard squash, and it is a tight squeak between the two at that. The sheep is a very deceptive animal. She can look wise on a smaller equipment of gray matter than anybody outside of the learned professions, and yet if you walk up and engage her in friendly converse she will prove a greater disappointment than the dinner partner whose mental pabulum consists of the embroidery page and "Helpful Hints to the Broken-hearted." We never saw a sheep that didn't wear a look of settled melancholy, as if she were nursing an internal grief or had eaten something that disagreed with her. Her speaking-voice is about as melodious as the expiring notes of a bagpipe, and being troubled with considerable nervousness in her cerebral cavities it is very difficult to make her see the point to a joke. No one ever saw a sheep throw her head back and laugh in the hearty, unaffected manner of a man who has just tumbled to a joke told him two days before. Just now the sheep is filling the mind of congress with perplexity and grief and the homes of the common people with lamb chops disguised as veal. The sheep is given a free hair-cut once a year, and climbs out of the chair in the habiliments of pristine innocence and a sorrowful look.

Manchu Dynasty Yields.

Special to Evening Telegram.

PEKING, Feb. 12. The momentous step by which the Manchu dynasty yields up power after three centuries of rule and agrees to change from an absolute to a representative form of Government was notified in three simultaneous proclamations. Although the final act of abdication has been awaited for some time, the posting of the edict with the declaration that abdication was an accomplished fact caused profound excitement. The second edict approving all the conditions agreed upon between Yuan Shi Kai and the republican representatives created even greater astonishment, as it had been expected that the Manchus would demand conditions that would safeguard many of their privileges; whereas according to the proclamation their surrender is unconditional. The third edict informed the viceroys and provincial governors of the retirement of the throne from political power, and instructed them to continue doing their duty, and to preserve order throughout the land. It declared that the step taken by the throne was in order to meet the wishes of the people.

Rumors Not Justified.

Special to Evening Telegram.

BERLIN, Feb. 12. Reports that the mission to Germany of Viscount Haldane had been a failure were circulated on the Bourse to-day and contributed to the prevailing weakness and pessimism. These rumors, however, were not justified, as the situation can be cleared up only after Haldane has conferred with his colleagues in the British Ministry, with whom rests the decision as to whether definite negotiations with Germany are to be begun. The German Foreign Office is to-day apparently well satisfied with the prospects of the situation. Haldane has returned to London in possession of an outline of the new German military and naval proposals, notwithstanding the fact that they have not yet been communicated to the German Federal Council.

The Glad Hand.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, Feb. 12. The visit of Haldane to Berlin has served to emphasize the intention of Britain to adhere consistently to the new policy of the "glad hand," and the abandonment of the old one of being mentor to helpless nations like China and Persia, as foreshadowed by Sir Edward Grey in his speech on January 20th. There is no longer any doubt that Britain is anxious to cement the breach in her relations with Germany by a hard and fast agreement, comprehending an understanding that will not permit any situations to develop which will likely involve the detonations of war. Knowledge gained through recent revelations that former President Caillaux of France had been negotiating for a German entente, while bound to England by a similar agreement to stand together against Germany, is responsible for the present friendly overtures between London and Berlin—overtures which it is now rumored have demonstrated the truth of the story about French dickerings.

Will Have Weight

Special to Evening Telegram.

COLOGNE, Feb. 12. Haldane had plenty of opportunity during his visit to Berlin to confer with those in authority and thus gain an understanding of the existing feelings in Germany. The Cologne Gazette says that when he returned home the information acquired by him will undoubtedly have weight with his Government. This information will probably tend, among other things, to change Churchill's surprising conception that a fleet is a luxury for Germany. Whether the trip of the Secretary for War will have any further consequences, says the Gazette, must be awaited.

Parliament Meets 14th.

Special Evening Telegram.

LONDON, Feb. 12. The superstition regarding number 13, according to the Parliamentary correspondent of the London Times, is responsible for Parliament not re-assembling to-morrow, February 13th, was the day first fixed by the Government, but when this became known the Irish Nationalists became much alarmed, and urged a change of date, as 13 would be unlucky and of ill-omen for the beginning of the Home Rule session. The Ministry were complacent, though it must not necessarily be supposed that they share the superstition of their allies. The date is changed to the 14th, St. Valentine's Day.

Mechanics' Nomination Meeting.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Mechanics' Society was held last night. A large number of members were present. The President, John P. Scott, occupied the chair. The Treasurer's report showed the Society to be in good financial condition and was adopted as read, after which nomination of officers for the ensuing year took place, with the following result (there being no opposition, the same officers were nominated): Pres., J. P. Scott; V.P., Edward Doherty; 1st Asst. V.P., Maurice Colbert; 2nd Asst. V.P., A. H. O'Keefe; 1st Treas., M. W. Myrick; 2nd Treas., Thos. Dunn; 3rd Treas., William Mackey; Sec., Jas. A. Leakey; Grand Marshal, John Preston. The annual meeting will be held on Monday, Mar. 4th, as the 3rd falls on Sunday. The meeting then adjourned.

Patrick Flynn Not Found.

Consts. Tobin and Brown who were all yesterday on the search for Patrick Flynn, of the Topsail Road, who is missing since Saturday, returned to the city at 7.30 p.m. yesterday. With men from the West End they made an exhaustive search of the Topsail Road and vicinity, also through Molloy's Lane but found no trace of the man who if he had been on the road and succumbed must be deeply embedded in the drifts. The police were yesterday informed that Mr. D. Neville who lives inside Donovan's, and who went out by train Saturday evening, spoke to Flynn in the cars and he says that the man did not get off at Waterford Bridge. He chatted with Flynn on the train when it was running between Waterford Bridge and Mount Pearl but he did not notice where the man left the cars. Neville got off the train at Donovan's. It is possible that the man went forward in the train and may be heard from to-day. This morning men are further prosecuting the search near Topsail Road.

Wrestling Match

At the Wild Rose Club, Georgetown last night, there were two wrestling matches. One between Jack Johnson and Sam. Hynes. This bout was very interesting as Johnson put his man to the mat in two straight falls, with a full Nelson in 34 mins., and the second fall with a double arm hold, in 57 mins. 59 sec. The second bout was between M. Sweetapple and C. Nurse. This was the bout which was looked forward to with much interest, as these two young men were in good condition. Sweetapple was the first man to get a fall. He put his man to the mat with an arm scissors and half Nelson in 20 mins. 15 sec. Nurse put Sweetapple to the mat with a full Nelson in 16 mins. Sweetapple got the last fall with a half Nelson and arm scissors in 29 mins. 45 sec.

THE CARELESS GROCER

Blundered and Great Good Came of It.

A careless grocer left the wrong package at a Michigan home one day and thereby brought a great blessing to the household.

"Two years ago I was a sufferer from stomach trouble, so acute that the effort to digest ordinary food gave me great pain, and brought on a condition of such extreme nervousness that I could not be left alone. I thought I should certainly become insane. I was so reduced in flesh that I was little better than a living skeleton. The doctors failed to give me relief and I despaired of recovery."

"One day our groceryman left a package of Grape-Nuts food by mistake, so I tried some for dinner. I was surprised to find that it satisfied my appetite and gave me no distress whatever. The next meal I ate of it again, and to be brief, I have lived for the past year almost exclusively on Grape-Nuts. It has proved to be a most healthful and appetizing food, perfectly adapted to the requirements of my system."

"Grape-Nuts is not only easily digested and assimilated, but I find that since I have been using it I am able to eat anything else my appetite fancies, without trouble from indigestion. The stomach trouble and nervousness have left me, I have regained my plumpness and my views of life are no longer despondent and gloomy."

"Other members of my family especially my husband, (whose old enemy, the 'heart-burn,' has been vanquished) have also derived great benefit from the use of Grape-Nuts food and we think no morning meal complete without it." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in 10 pgs. Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Uncle Walt THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

He tried a thousand capers seeking to embalm his name in the magazines and papers, but he got no grip on fame. As a bard he made endeavor to achieve a large renown; people said his verse was clever, but the monthlies turned it down. In the FOR FAME air he went a-sailing till his plinths touched the skies, but his flights were unavailing, for some other won the prize. Many doodads he invented hoping fame would come his way, and the welkin oft he dented, but his speeches baled no hay. Fortune seemed unkind and brutal, all the world was dark and dour; all the stunts he tried were futile, and his soul was turning sour. While he toiled, dejected, drooping, tired and weary of the game, others (tattered not, herwhooping, to the shining heights of fame. Then this most forlorn of critters, by some kindly spirit inspired, recommended Broomax bitters, and secured the fame desired. Now you can't pick up a journal but you'll see his signboard, how he suffered pains internal till the bitters made him whole.

Hockey Match.

The St. Bon's defeated the Feildians last night by 2 goals to 1. There were no goals scored in the first round.

After the first 15 minutes had passed in the second round Shortall scored No. 1 for St. Bon's. Shortly before full time Strong sent in the equalizer for the Feildians. At the finish the score stood one to one. The St. Bon's in a scrimmage in the third play off secured the winning goal. Towards the close of the game the play was fast. Shortly after the game started Pinsent received a blow in the abdomen which knocked him out for a while. Towards the close he was able to resume play.

Shortall and Godden played well for St. Bon's but were not sufficiently well backed up. The Feildians also lacked combination. The teams were:— St. Bon's—Walsh, Hearn, Godden, Thompson, Byrne, D. Walsh, Shortall. Feildians—N. Hunt, Jeffrey, Collier, Pinsent, Strong, G. Hunt and Winter.

The Crescents and Victorias will play to-morrow night.

Crossed Wireless Phone.

How Telegraph Operators Heard Strange Sounds in North Sea. New York, Feb. 1.—A London cable says: The mystery of the banjo playing and human voices heard by isolated wireless operators in the North sea, which had caused them to christen the author of the weird sounds the "North Sea Ghost," is explained by the manager of the Marconi factory at Chelmsford. He declares that they were caused by experiments with wireless telephony being carried out there. In order to test the apparatus they had used a gramophone, which played several banjo selections.

To-morrow's Hockey Match.

The Crescent-Victoria match which will be played to-morrow night will likely decide the championship. At present they are equal in points and each has another match to play after this. It is of course believed that the Vics will beat St. Bon's, and the Crescents the Feildians, and should this occur the teams will be equal and to-morrow's match would decide the championship.

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Some time ago I had a bad attack of Quinsy which laid me up for two weeks and cost a lot of money.

Finding the lump again forming in my throat I bathed freely with MINARD'S LINIMENT, and saturating a cloth with the Liniment left it on all night.

Next morning the swelling was gone and I attributed the warding off of an attack of Quinsy to the free use of MINARD'S LINIMENT.
