CRESCENT PICTURE PALACE.

"The White Mask" is the title of the great three-reel royal feature the Crescent Picture Palace is showing to-day. This great masterpiece has been shown in big New York theatres to crowded houses at prices ranging from 20 to 50c. You'll see it at the Crescent for 5c. "Rose O' the Shore" is a one-reel biograph feature, Mary Malatesta plays the principal role in this drama. "Come Round and take that Elephant away" is a unique comedy by the Selig Company, the Selig trained elephants are featured in this picture. It's a fine patriotic song that Mr. Delmar sings to-day, "I'm Proud to be the Mother of a Boy like You." A great show for little money.

GRAND PICTURES AT THE NICKEL THEATRE.

Very large audiences attended the Nickel Theatre yesterday and all were charmed by the excellent programme. The Nickel shows nothing but the best in motion pictures and that is why the attendances are always large. Yesterday's bill was made up of the best pictures obtainable. The artists were all well known and the best in their profession. "The Closing of the Circuit," by the Vitagraph Co. is a very clever subject and we advise all our readers to see it. The Pathé News and "Conspiracy at the Chateau" were also excellent. The whole programme will be repeated this evening and it is certain to draw crowded houses.

A REMARKABLY CLEVER ACT.

The comedy act at Rossleys last night by Carroll and Ellor had the crowd laughing all the time. It is a very fine act and one that will surely drive away the blues, who could look at Carroll and feel dull. He is a great favourite with young and old. His gowns were beautiful. Miss Glone Ellor also wore some very beautiful wardrobe. The pictures last night were the finest ever shown. Mr. Rossley has a great surprise in store for patrons. The Rossley Orchestra is a pleasure always, with such a leader as Professor Roche, whose overture alone is well worth the price of admission.

BRITISH THEATRE.

Next Monday and Tuesday will be shown the famous four-reel feature "Richelleu," featuring Murdock MacQuarrie and Pauline Bush. This historic film cannot be surpassed, showing as it does how the illustrious Cardinal forsook the military life, and went in for ecclesiastical, rising to the highest offices in the church. As Cardinal he wielded a tremendous influence in France, especially when he accepted the appointment of Secretary of War and foreign affairs. His administration forms an epoch in the history of France. The settings of this film are magnificent and to see how the Cardinal preserved his life amid all the intrigues of the French Court is truly marvellous. Such a film as this should positively be seen by everybody.

Battleships

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Siwash." Battleships are the doubled fists of the nations. Unfortunately, as soon as a nation doubles its fists, another nation redoubles and it then becomes necessary to double back.

Battleships are built by nations in order to awe other nations into peace. A 25,000-ton battleship with guns that throw steel shells as large as hogsheads ought to awe any nation and would if it were not for the fact that the other nations are busy building larger ton battleships with guns that could load up a steam boiler and shoot it forty miles with a favorable wind. The nations are so busy raising each other's bets that by the time a brand new Dreadnaught of record-breaking size has been completed, it has become a Scarenought and must be completely overhauled. It is necessary nowadays to work twenty-four hours a day on new battleships to get them into the water before they are entirely obsolete.

Battleships are built of steel and have sixteen-inch impenetrable sides like U. S. Senators who have bought in. They have multitudes of twelve-inch guns and could blow off the top of a tolerable size mountain with one mighty broadside. They travel thirty miles an hour and a battleship ten years old could blaze away at them all day without disturbing the Captain's dinner. In fact, they would be entirely invulnerable if it were not for sandbars, matches, mud-scows, sparks, crossed wires, careless mechanics and spontaneous combustion. Because of these things, battleships are more fragile than sick babies and a naval officer has to study forty years before he is considered competent to take one of them ten miles out to sea and shoot a few rounds at a floating whale.

Battleships are extremely fatal in the same directions in which cheap shotguns are fatal. The mortality caused by a battleship is about equal on both sides. Living on one of them is like riding over a corduroy road on a load of nitro-glycerine. It may or may not explode. We have little knowledge of what a fleet of Dreadnaughts would do to each other, but we know distressingly well what they can do to themselves; and in the present war, for instance, the best plan would be for the quarrelling nations to retain crews, but exchange battleships. The two fleets could then be kept separated and yet the carnage inflicted on the enemy would in time be sufficiently terrible to satisfy the most bloodthirsty people.

Missing Schooners.

Concerning the schooners Annie and Blanche M. Rose as referred to elsewhere, Minister of Marine Piccott, received the accompanying message last night:—

"Arrived at Fermeuse at 4.30 p.m., took Annie's crew, from Red Island, of steamer Monadrock, bound for London, 35 miles south east of Cape Race; crew all well; wind south, very thick fog; will proceed in search of Blanche M. Rose." (Sgd.) JACOB KEAN, S.S. Cabot.

THE BLANCHE M. ROSE.

Additional information about the schr. Blanche M. Rose, now missing, was learned from the crew of Furlong's schooner, of Groais Island, which have just arrived with her season's voyage on board. She left fishing station a fortnight ago yesterday in company with the Blanche M. Rose. Both schooners put into Catalina and left again practically together a week ago yesterday. When the storm came on that evening they both ran for shelter to Carbonar. Furlong's schooner got right into the harbor but the Blanche M. Rose did not and anchored just outside at Western Point. That was the last those on board of Furlong's schooner saw of her, as when the latter left to come on here, there was no sign of the Blanche M. Young and the theory is that in the violent gale of Tuesday she must have dragged her anchors and drove off to sea. However, there is yet strong hopes of the craft turning up alright, as she had 25 casks of oil on deck and the use of this liquid would be of great assistance toward quietening rough seas, so sea-faring men say.

Enlisted at Edmonton.

Word has been received in the city that Mr. Alex. Sturrock, late foreman at Knowling's East End Grocery, has enlisted. Mr. Sturrock resigned his position here in June last, and left by the Carthaginian for Glasgow on a visit to his mother before proceeding to Western Canada, where he intended to engage at farming. He had barely started his new work when he became fired with the desire to enlist and accordingly proceeded to Edmonton where he is now undergoing training.
