Recruiting Figures.

We are indebted to Dr. Lloyd for the subjoined data showing the number of Volunteers that have been accepted in both services up to Oct. 18th. Allowance must be made for such in the Naval Reserve since Sept. 16th, but it cannot appreciably affect the total. These figures are valuable, for they represent the girth and substance of the Island's contribution to the fighting forces of the Empire. They contain a number of interesting lessons which must be taken to heart. The comparison directly made between the districts is a useful one and is certainly eloquent. Its range is together too great, for it runs from 24% of the males of military age in the case of St. John's to less than 4% in the case of Bay de Verde! We need not single out any particular district for praise or reproof in the matter, but we do earnestly commend the attention to the consideration of each of them. Considered as a whole, it gives a total of 4,305 for the Island, in order fairly to appreciate what has been the actual response to the call, we must add to this the large number of rejected candidates and also the number of men who have enlisted elsewhere though domiciled here. But even when the allowance is made, the result is hardly satisfying. A comparison with Great Britain and the other Colonies would seem to show that it should be practicable to raise by voluntary means at least 7% of the total population of a country. That percentage was far exceeded in Great Britain itself and has been surpassed, we believe, in all the other dominions. If we reduce it to five per cent. in our own case, or take 10,000 as the total to be aimed at, we see that we have not yet reached half that figure. It is estimated that there are 25,000 men of military age in Newfoundland, of which 40% on this basis would be required. Allowing, then, for rejections, let each district aim at supply 50% or one half, of its available men of military age. If this effort can be made and sustained, the result is certain to be satisfactory. But it must be made. Let us not delude ourselves on this point. They are to-day voting throughout Australia on the subject of compulsory service, and a victory for conscription is forecasted. It is a great mistake to imagine that there is no possibility of the same question being put to us. There and elsewhere they feel the weight of an argument which was not apparent at the beginning. It is not merely to the Empire and to themselves that the duty of supreme effort is owed, but to those that have gone as well. So it is with us. Many have gone but many remain. They are wanted. Let them respond and let them respond NOW.

Portia Back.

Sailor Meets Accident—No Herring Struck In.

The s.s. Portia, Capt. J. Keon, arrived back from western ports at six o'clock this morning, bringing a full freight and these saloon passengers: Messrs. O. Hickey, E. R. Spencer, J. Daley, Mesdames J. Cocoral, P. St. Croix, H. Fagan; Misses B. Miller, B. Russell, E. Garland, D. Strickland, E. Bell, St. Croix (2) and 20 second class. On Wednesday morning, the 18th inst., William Hynes, a sailor on the Portia, fell accidentally into No. 2 hold, a distance of thirty feet. He landed on a cask of fish and was severely injured. The ship was getting ready to leave Belleoram at the time. The injured man was attended by Dr. Fitzgerald at St. Jacques and since was sent on to the General Hospital where he is now doing well. Passengers who came on the ship report that herring have made their appearance at Bonne Bay and Bay of Islands, but the fish have not struck in yet enough to keep busy those engaged in the industry at either place.

The Speed Fiend.

They dread my coming east and west and north and south they dread me, and if my person they possessed, no doubt they would heed me. Along the country roads I go, still striving to go faster, and every other mile or so I spring some small disaster. To beat all records, west and east, it is for that I hanker! And here and there I kill a priest, and here and there a banker. I'm worse than lightning's lurid battle; I am the scourge titanic; I'm brittle, murder—sudden death; my other name is panic. With Azrael I deftly work, to fill the churchyard acres; and here and there a baker, I am to threat to all who drive their motor wagons sanely; by care they try to keep alive, and free from wounds, but vainly. I whizz around a corner sharp, and grind such people under; and while my victim draws a harp, I scorch along like thunder. To all who in this valley jog, I bring the last trump closer; and here I spoil a pedagogue, and there I beg a grocer.

McMurdo's Store News

SATURDAY, Oct. 28, 1916.

We have lately received a full stock of McMurdo's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, two sizes. This Emulsion is prepared from our recipe by one of the largest English firms and is a really creditable specimen of English manufacture, the oil being perfectly emulsified and the taste being quite pleasant and the mixture easily digested. This Emulsion will bear comparison in quality with any Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil in the market, and its moderate price is one of its strongest points. The small size 25 cts. is intended as a trial size, but the full size 60c. is decidedly more economical being more than three times the size of the smaller size, and nearly twice the size of the ordinary emulsion now being sold from 60c. to 75c. a bottle.

Neutral colors have a peculiar advantage in that one isn't likely to tire of them.

The most favored fox neck pieces are perfectly simple skins with fur on both sides.

Neck and sleeves of bodices are receiving more attention from gown designers.

Mad-looking bows with ends flying upward give height to the fashionable millinery.

When fashion favors hats both large and small, there is no excuse for unbecoming headgear.

Tight-fitting kimono sleeves finished with a wide flounce of net are the latest thing for evening gowns.

The W.

For the present the war seems to have fallen into an act of stasis with Roumania and events elsewhere appear to be dominated to it altogether. The Allies, which would be hailed as a more than satisfactory weighed by the effect in succoring Roumanian some features, however, nation there which also so desperate after all. It is important as it might be. There is much to be seen of the view have a double offensive of P. Mackensen against R. when it was first checked on the night of the G. Paris, it is argued, it will all before it without side to achieve its object, and vanished then at the temporary check administration here has spelled and the resumption of too late. This may be enough to be distracted. We hear now that the man army has retreated navada all the way to is a long way north. To have the broad Danube barrier which it will require effort to overcome confirmation, at the time of the report that it has destroyed the bridge over at Tchernavoda, of their retirement and most certain. Behind it, between which and the whole province of Dobruza, they should succeed the invader.

At the other, Transylvanian allies seem to be of resistance to the enemy grow stronger as reinforcements to come in from Italian advances at P. Pass and elsewhere, set off by successes for man arms at other points is difficult to size up. For the present it is one out one feature of it, distinctly in our favour. To see the money power with the utmost vigour now would be almost him. Whatever the policy the first in the right arm. The Austrians into Transylvania, have affected the military appreciably had it succeeded would have resulted in benefit to the Austrians, their line considerably. This plainly it was to draw a line straight from the straight line through Maron which would probably be chosen by the enemy. It is, they are committed.
