Claims on Germany.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—In your editorial last evening, Dec. 12th, you mention in reference to vessels that are missing, without actual proof of being submerged, "For these no Bill of Claim can be presented."

I bring this to your notice as these "missing vessels" should be claimed for.

Proof is coming to light now from the records of German submarine commanders, giving the names of vessels that have long been missing.

The German Government gave a bonus to their commanders for registers of any vessels they had submerged. The British authorities gave instructions to captains leaving England to destroy their registers when there was any likelihood of being submerged, and leaders of the U-boats were given them to attach to their registers for the purpose of sinking them quickly, which makes it even harder to prove reason for loss of missing vessels.

As further proof I may mention that Lloyd's Marine Underwriters and War Risk Underwriters are each paying half the loss of all claims for missing vessels when an equal amount of insurance was carried for both these risks. Therefore, why should these claims not be presented?

Yours truly,
SHIPOWNER.

Dec. 14, 1918.

[The object of our correspondent is to point out that statements of claim for all vessels lost at sea since August, 1914, saving only those which were really "due" to the elements, should be prepared, a Board of Arbitrators to determine from evidence at hand, whether or not their disappearance was due to enemy submarines, mines, or raiders. There can be no objection to this.—Editor.]

Additional Thanks.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I notice at last night's meeting of the Municipal Council a resolution was adopted thanking Dr. Fraser and the medical profession on the manner in which they conducted proceedings during the epidemic of influenza in this city. I am sure no one will disagree with this action of the Council and it certainly comes with a good grace for well-merited and highly deserved recognition of valuable services given in a serious situation and a time of great peril.

My chief object in this writing is to fully endorse the Council's resolution on behalf of certain outposts and particularly in regard to Dr. Fraser. Personally, I had a good deal to do with the supervision of this epidemic at points along the line of railway and therefore had to make frequent calls upon Dr. Fraser and officials of the Board of Health, all of whom invariably I found both willing and anxious to do everything possible for the relief of sufferers and prevention of the spread of the disease.

As a layman I venture to say that what appeared to be a great impending danger was, under Providence, averted, by the able manner in which the whole business was managed by Dr. Fraser and those associated with him.

Speaking again for the section above referred to there are also thanks due to Drs. Chisholm, Bowden, J. J. and S. S. Smith, Messrs. Blundford and Curran of Gambo, and to Rev. Mr. Facey and Rev. Fr. Kavanagh for their unremitting care and attention to the stricken ones.

Yours truly,
H. F. FITZGERALD.

Shall We Take Peace Quietly?

Nearly everyone is agreed that the end of the greatest war the world has ever seen will be celebrated far more quietly than the end of far less important wars.

When the peace of Ryswick was made which brought to an end the war between France, Spain, Holland and England, the Dutch Ambassador celebrated it by a huge illumination in front of his house in Piccadilly of 140 barrels of pitch.

After Waterloo amazing scenes were witnessed in London and the provinces. Thousands of processions were indulged in with everyone singing the popular songs of the day, and bonfires, illuminations, and orgies of feasting followed in the evenings which outlasted Mafeking night in England.

In Warrington one wealthy eccentric announced that he would burn down his house on the following night, which he did amidst scenes of wild enthusiasm. A political rival, not to be outdone, set fire to his own place, but then the authorities stepped in and stopped this method of celebrating peace.

Herring Fishery.

Bay of Islands.

The past week the herring fishery has continued fair in Bay of Islands. In the Humber Arm some fish were taken at Riverhead on Friday and Saturday, but the best fishing was further down the Arm. At Meadows and along the Farms shore some big catches were made of a very large run of herring.

On Monday and yesterday there was good fishing in the Humber Arm from Meadows out. The ice in the Arm, however, somewhat interfered with operations on Monday.

In Middle Arm the catches on Monday ranged from 10 to 35 tubs, while a few boats that were able to haul all their gear loaded, securing 50 to 60 tubs. The fish were plentiful at Penguin Arm, at mouth of Goose Arm and off Wheeler's Beach. The prices paid ranged from $5 to $6 per barrel from the nets.

There are several schooners at Middle Arm taking salt bulk, and with the large number of packing factories, the fishermen find a ready market for their catches, and everything seems to be working harmoniously.

A week ago Capt. Peeples had his schooner half loaded, and he will likely soon finish up.

Bonne Bay.

There has been a slackening off in the herring fishery at Bonne Bay the past week, and it is thought the fish have struck off into deep water. For a few days the fishermen had a brisk time, and big catches were taken. The first cargo went to market last Wednesday by the schr. Catherine Burke and consisted of 1225 barrels salt bulk.

Green Bay.

Latest reports from Green Bay state that herring continues scarce at Springdale and vicinity. There were two schooners there a week ago seeking cargoes. The best fishing so far seems to be along the northern part of the Bay, particularly at Nipper's Hr., Round Hr. and Three Arms.

Trinity Bay.

One or two packing stations have been started in Trinity Bay this year, but so far we have been unable to get any definite reports of the fishery in that vicinity.

At Placentia Bay.

The herring stations at Placentia Bay have made considerable preparations for this season's operations. The fish, however, have not shown up very plentiful to date, but in view of the open coast there is yet time for a good voyage on that coast.—Western Star.

Wedding Bells.

CHRISTOPHER—DALEY.

On Dec. 8th, at St. Joseph's Church, Salmonier, by the Rev. Fr. Rawlins, Kathleen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Christopher, of Salmonier, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. David Daley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Daley, also of Salmonier. The bride was very neatly attired in a dress of white silk with pearl trimmings, bride veil and wreath of lilies of the valley. The bridesmaids were Miss Mary Christopher, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Jerome Ryan. Both looked charming in dresses of white silk embroidered with hats to match. The groom was assisted by his brother Captain Denis Daley, and Mr. Rendell Christopher, brother of the bride. After the ceremony the happy couple, accompanied by a large number of friends, drove to the home of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous supper awaited them. Mrs. Robert Peddle, aunt of the bride, kindly removed the furniture and presented her house for the night to the guests to hold a dance in, where they spent a very enjoyable time with songs and dancing until near midnight, when another repast was partaken of, after which the guests accompanied the young couple to their beautiful new home. The bride and groom were presented with many valuable presents, which shows the high esteem in which they are held. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Daley every success and happiness in the future.—Comm.

The S.S. Thetis is due to-morrow from Charlottetown with a cargo of oats.

The Price of Herring.

(Western Star.)

There is much speculation at present as to the price of "Scotch" packed herring in the foreign market. The present outlook indicates that the catch will be far below that of last season. In Hall's Bay where a big pack was made last year, and extensive preparations made for this season, the fish have been very scarce, and the season being so far advanced that even should the fish strike in large quantities the catch must now be far short of that of last year. At Bonne Bay sickness interfered somewhat with operations. So that the trade will have to depend largely upon the catch at Bay of Islands, which though fair for the time the fishery has been open, is a long way short of what will be required to meet the demands of the trade. Therefore if prices are governed by the laws of supply and demand we see at present no reason why packers should not receive a good price for their product. Of course in order to maintain its present position in the market it is essential that every care be given the fish. We must cater to the requirements of our patrons if we wish a continuance of their trade.

Winter Blindness.

The above is not a new disease. It is merely a term which stands for the temporary blindness that may fall upon anyone with sight through the erasing of visible things by fogs or mists or blizzards. Such blindness, though infinitely preferable, is often more confusing than real blindness, for a blind man has sharpened instincts to counteract his lack of vision; he "sees" better than the best-sighted man in a pea-soup fog.

For instance, he knows how to walk in a straight line. A man in a blizzard inclines to a circular course. A blind man in sunshine will walk faster and more surely than you can walk in the impenetrable mist. Close your eyes while you walk along a pavement and how far will you travel without hitting a house or the road, or opening your eyes? Thirty yards, maybe.

Mists at sea are particularly confusing. The wise captain heaves-to until the mist clears. Once the written word on a ship that "walked" into a white maze near Boston Harbour. The engines were stopped, and all night the fog signals sounded. After twenty-four hours the fog lifted, and almost side by side was another ship, also stationary. Neither had had any consciousness of the other one's presence!

Betrayed by Their Eyes

"I spotted him by the look in his eyes," said a detective giving evidence against a thief recently.

It is remarkable how much a criminal's eyes give away to a skilled detective. A criminal's eyes, in fact, are one of the things he always looks for, for the eyes are more difficult to disguise or control than any other part of the face.

A detective will often spot a pickpocket, for example, by the latter's peculiar habit of never resting his eyes on a man's face, but running them over his clothing. The famous K.C. Montagu Williams, renowned for this peculiarity of pickpockets, looked all the witnesses up and down their eyes moving over every inch of them, "as if," he declared, "he might be something to steal in a sea of their clothes." Pickpockets, too, have small eyes as a rule.

At the Morgue in Paris, where are laid out the bodies of identified victims of unsolved crimes, detectives are told off to watch the crowd of visitors who come to look at the ghastly remains, for it is well known that murderers have a peculiar inclination in seeing the dead bodies of their victims again. And time and again the murderer at the Morgue has been given away by the expression of his eyes.

George Sumner, the Liverpool murderer, was betrayed by his "glittering eyes," as was Kohl, who murdered his friend on Platform Marches.
