CANADIAN FRUIT BOOSTS COUNTRY

Fine Exhibits Destroy Wrong Impressions About the Climate Here.

London, Oct. 29.—Hon. W. H. Grimmer, of the New Brunswick cabinet, intends to authorize a more active advertising campaign for his province, now that it has a London headquarters, in the windows of which is a very fine display of New Brunswick apples.

The first arrival of this year's crop fetched exceptionally good prices despite the fact that there were plenty of the best English varieties in stock. In one of the best fruit stores in Piccadilly the other day peaches were marked, "Peaches from Canada," and priced at 1 shilling—or one dollar for a basket of five.

Inquiries are growing for this fruit. The shipment of Ontario peaches has been a better advertisement than Canadians can imagine, for it has knocked on the head many fairy stories about climate and given the fruit land investment business a boost.

In this connection it may be stated that a growing number of inquiries about fruit lands and the opportunities for men with small capital such as retired civil servants with from $3,000 to $10,000 are being made. In many cases these men have been in the East Indies or other tropical crown colonies and are in the prime of life. Returning to England, they find the climate unsuitable. New Zealand and Tasmania have in the past years attracted such men, but now they are turning to British Columbia and Ontario.

AFTER SUNDAY BALL

Kansas Presbyterians Will Try to Have It Stopped.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 29—The Kansas legislature will be asked again to enact laws prohibiting Sunday baseball, The Sunday "fans" were the subject of much discussion on the floor of the legislature two years ago, and when the lawmakers assemble this winter they will be asked to enter into a new discussion of the question.

"Is it a sin to play baseball on Sunday?"

The state synod of the Presbyterian Church says it is beyond all question, and it is this synod that is going to call the attention of the Kansas lawmakers to the matter.

The Presbyterian synod met at Selina and after a long discussion of the matter took a decided step against Sunday baseball. A measure similar to the one presented last session, which passed the house, but was killed in the senate, is to be presented.

A committee is to be appointed by the Rev. J. G. Hilton, moderator of the synod, to attend the session of the legislature and work for the passage of the law. The law is to be discussed in every place where the members of this committee can present it, and by the time the legislature mets in March it will be well understood throughout the state.

HOPE DIAMOND, GEM OF EVIL, REAPPEARS

Believed Safely Lost at Sea, It Is Back in Paris and Offered for Sale.

HISTORY CHEAPENS IT

Misfortune and Death Have Followed It From the Time of Louis XIV. of France.

Paris, Oct. 29.—The famous Hope diamond, which has brought death or misfortune to every person who has owned it and which was believed to be safe at last at the bottom of the China Sea, has reappeared in Paris. It is now on sale in the window of a jeweler in the Rue de la Paix, but its evil reputation has affected its price. Lord Francis Hope sold it for $148,000, but it can be bought now for less than $100,000.

About a year ago the diamond was bought by a Persian named Habid, who was said to be acting for an Indian potentate. He took passage for India on the French steamship Seyne, which was rammed and sunk in the China Sea by the Onda.

It was upposed that all on board were lost, but by a peculiar coincidence the man who has brought the famous stone back to Paris is a Persian named Habid. Whether he is the original one returned from the dead cannot be told, but in any event another mystery has been added to the diamond's long list.

May Yohe Wore It on Stage.

The diamond became well-known in America when it scintillated on the breast of Lady Francis Hope, once the beautiful May Yohe, when, after her marriage to the son of the Earl of Newcastle, she returned to the vaudeville stage. She fell a victim to its baleful influence. After a brief married life she eloped with Putnam Bradlee Strong, son of ex-Mayor Strong, of New York. With him she travelled all over the world, growing less and less prosperous year by year.

Last February she became the proprietress of a cheap lodging house in Seattle, and then lost even that, and was reduced to singing in the cheap music halls in the cellars of San Francisco. A few months ago she was stricken by paralysis while singing, and is now said to be a hopeless paralytic.

Thief Slain by Dogs.

But long before May Yohe ever heard of the diamond it had a sinister history. The first known of it was when it was brought to Paris in the reign of Louis XIV. by a travelling jeweler named Tavernier, who is said to have stolen it from a Hindu idol. Then it weighed in its rough state 112 carats, but after it had been recut by an Amsterdam jeweler it weighed 67½ carats. Tavernier later was torn to pieces by wild dogs in Constantinople.

King Louis gave the gem to Madame de Montespan to wear. She lost his love and he abandoned her. Nicholas Fouquet, intendant of France, borrowed the diamond from the King and wore it. He was disgraced and died in prison. Marie Antoinette begged for the jewel and wore it. She was beheaded, as was King Louis himself.

The great blue stone was also worn by the Princess de Lamballe, who was torn to pieces by a French mob. William Fals, the jeweler, who recut the stone, died a ruined man. His son, Hendrik, who stole the jewel from his father, committed suicide from remorse. Some years later it was sold to Francis Beaulieu and he died in misery and want.

Trail of Murder and Misery.

Daniel Eliason, a London jeweler, got possession of the gem and sold it to Henry Thomas Hope, a rich London banker, just before he failed in business. The banker suffered a long series of misfortunes, including the death of his favorite son.

The stone passed to Lord Francis Hope in time, and he became a bankrupt and lost his wife. He sold the diamond to Simon Frankel, a New York jeweler, and it brought him financial difficulties. The next owner, Jacques Colet, went mad and committed suicide. Prince Ivan Kanitovski, who bought it from Colet, was killed by Russian revolutionists, and Mlle. Ladue, to whom he lent it, was murdered by her sweetheart.

The jewel came into the possession of Simon Montharides, who sold it to Sultan Abdul Hamid, and a little later was thrown from a precipice while riding with his wife and child and all were killed.

The Sultan gave it to Abu Sabir to polish and he was tortured and imprisoned. Kulub Bey, who guarded the treasure, was hanged by a Turkish mob. The keeper of the vault in which the diamond reposed was strangled. The Sultan's favorite, who wore it, was shot by Abdul Hamid, who himself was dethroned. Habib bought it from the Sultan and his fate is unknown.

BOY SCOUT DRAMA

British Drill-Master Writes Play Expounding Code of Youths.

London, Oct. 29.—Having trudged their way all over England and awakened the British Islands with their drum corps at all hours of the day and night, the Boy Scouts now are to be dramatized. The play dealing with the movement is entitled "A Good Turn." Its author, George L. Bennett, at one time an actor, is a "Scout master."

One of the maxims of the Boy Scout is that he always must be prepared to do a good turn without hope of reward. In this play a patrol company is encamped in a wood close to the mansion of a kindly peer.

While the lads are seated about the camp fire a couple of tramps appear and beg a meal. The patrol leader overhears a remark from one of these wanderers about "cracking a crib."

He tracks the tramps when they leave the camp, follows them to the mansion and finds that they are going to aid a sort of Raffles burglar, who is a guest in the peer's home.

The Scouts not only prevent the robbery, but they round up the entire band and prove the conspiracy. After the ruffians have been securely tied up one of them shouts to the youth who had engineered the capture: "I thought your motto was to do a good turn when you could; do you call this a good turn?"

"Yes," returns the leader of the heroes, "a very good turn—for the public."

Then the curtain falls to fast music and uproarious applause. Of course, the actors will be real Boy Scouts, and so much enthusiasm has been created that an extensive tour is being arranged.

POULTRY SHOW ATTRACTS CROWDS

Big Exhibition at Queen's Park Is One of Best Ever Held.

The poultry show at Queen's park attracted good crowds on Saturday afternoon and evening.

The local association are deserving of great praise for their fine exhibition, and the citizens who have attended are loud in their praise of the fine showing.

The judging has been completed, and the cards placed. There have been few complaints on the placing of tickets, and the exhibitors are well pleased.

The show will be open today, morning, afternoon and evening.

LONDON ELECTRIC

garding it, there have been a series of conferences between City Solicitor Meredith and the commissioners and engineering staff.

It is stated that a letter had been drafted by Mr. Meredith giving the company notice that if the poles were not removed or made the proper height within a stated period, action would be taken.

Immediate Action.

Immediate action will now be taken, even with negotiations pending.

Head Engineer Van Cleve and Manager Dark say they are determined to have the local distribution system ready, in spite of all obstacles, by the time power is here, and in this they are backed by the commissioners, who are equally as anxious to have the city in a position to receive power when it comes.

So this notice will be served, probably Tuesday morning. If Mr. Matthews, of Toronto, president of the company, comes to London on Tuesday, and it is possible that he will, he will be taken about the city and shown the points at dispute, and will be notified to remedy them at once. If an agreement can be arrived at, no litigation will take place, but, if not, it is stated that the battle will be on.

What effect these actions will have on the negotiations now pending for the purchase of the plant is hard to state.

Send It to Commission.

The attitude of the commissioners may have a most particular bearing on the question. Ald. Richter and an influential body of aldermen are willing to send the whole proposition to the commissioners, as they are more competent to deal with it than are the aldermen.

"My opinion is that the commissioners should deal with it," said Ald. Richter. "For instance, the board of education build schools, and the like, but the money must come from us. They could not obtain it, but we do it for them. We do not dictate to them in any particular, but the issuing of debentures must be done by us. The local power situation is exactly similar. While we might have to ratify the commissioners' action and submit the proposition to the people, nevertheless it is their business, and they should be given every freedom of action in this matter."

If the council do send the proposition to the commissioners, there is every probability at this time that the company would be given scant consideration."

The situation is creating a great deal of interest. It is certain that definite action will be taken before the middle of the week.

If litigation is to follow the citizens will know something of it, and that right soon.

WINNIPEG ELECTIONS

A Hot Fight Expected in Mayoralty Contest.

Winnipeg, Oct. 29.—The candidates for the Winnipeg municipal elections are already appearing in the field. There are now two mayoralty candidates, Controller Harvey and E. D. Martin. It is doubtful if there will be any other mayoralty candidates. This will leave a great standup fight. Controller Harvey has been in the council thirteen years, nine as an alderman and four as controller. E. D. Martin is a brother of "Fighting Joe" Martin, and is president of the board of trade. The question of segregation will figure prominently in the fight. E. D. Martin advocates abolishment of the "red light" district.
