Thirty Thousand French Troops Approaching the Defenceless City.

TUNIS, Oct. 25.—Thirty thousand troops, under five generals, are now marching on Kairwan. The array of this disproportionate force against the defenceless city can only be explained by a supposition that other operations will follow the occupation of Kairwan. It is reported that as soon as Kairwan is occupied the main body will advance on Jafsa, in DJarud, via St, Beitla. This movement has been decided on at Paris. The Saussiers column has successfully crossed the Karoulia pass, which was considered a critical point in the advance on Kairwan. We want more wide-awake, more able bodied, able minded men, more enthusiastic men in our theological seminaries and in the professorates. What would you think of a faculty of unsuccessful merchants of train young merchants, or of a faculty of unsuccessful lawyers to train young lawyers? We want less dry wood in the theological seminaries and more flaming evangels. I declare that a man who cannot preach himself cannot teach others how to preach. Young preachers are told they must preach Christ and him crucified. Yes, but not as an abstraction. might as well throw out our modern platforms and modern pulpits and substitute the wineglass pulpit up which the minister used to climb to the dizzy height of Mont Blanc solitariness, and then go in and out of sight and shut the door after him. The trouble begins away back in the theological seminaries. We have nava asylums and soldiers' asylums for men who fought on land and sea for our country when these men have become aged or crippled, and it is a shame that larger provision is not made for the good soldiers of Jesus Christ who have worn themselves out in battling for the Lord. But lack of provision in that respect makes a tendency to turn our theological seminaries into hospitals for sick and aged and infirm ministers.

WHEN A MAN BEGINS TO GO DOWN, they give them the title of D. D, by way of resuscitation. If that fail, then the tendency is to elect him to a professorate in some theological seminary. There are grand exceptions to the rule, but it is often the case that the professorate in a theological seminary is occupied by some minister of the gospel who, not being able to preach himself, is set to teach others how to preach. as against any undue advantage one pro-Scotians thought their the though the government could remove this coal duty, which was so strongly re-sented in Ontario, and make up for it in some other way to Nova Scotia. "Bat certainly," he continued, "the partizan attacks of the papers on either side will not help such a course." A CONSTRUCT ANSWERED.

The World reporter showed one of the dealers the following from yesterday morning's Spectator, and asked for his answer: A coal dealer writes to the Globe that "if the duty is taken off-on Monday; we will selt 50 cents 'per ton less on Tuesday that we are doing to day." To begin with, Coal Dealer could not do so without selt-novided me the "day." To begin with, Coal Dealer could not divident acknowledging that he now makes an idinate profit. For all the coal he would have in yard on Tuesday would have silrendy paid the dt and he could not get any new supply delivered soon. Besides, if he is a prudent coal dealer will have his winter's supply already laid in; an he were to import free coal to sell at a redu price, he would have to-hold the coal he already in hand, and lie out off the money. But if C Dealer means he woulds sell at 10 cents a tou were the government to throw off the duty and fund to him the daty he has already paid, his position is a very sate one.

The gentleman replied: It is true that we would sell the coal on which we have paid fifty cents duty for fifty cents less if the duty was removed. If we pay $10 a a ton for our coal and the market falls to $5, no matter how big a stock we may have in hand, we are compelled to sell at $5. It is not by what we paid but by what the market centres of the coal trade rules

s5. It is not by what we paid but by what the market centres of the coal trade rules that fixes our prices. But, as a matter of fact, the stock of coal in the city is not large—every ton in the city has been sold and is now being delivered as fast as possible. On this the duty has been paid and the consumers have agreed to pay the duty.

FURTHER PRESPOSALS.

The coal dealers all admitted the existence of the agreement to reduce the price if the duty were taken off, but they decline for the present to do anything that might be used for political capital, and they think that in the present publication of the agreement it might be so employed. They are trying to arrange it wish the government, irrespective of politics, and they will seek another interview.
