Mr. Chaplean.
As was to be confidently expected, Mr. Chapleau has given a positive and emphatic denial to the assertion of The Toronto Globe that during the late session he offered of his own accord to go over to the enemy with all the followers he could control. The public was fully prepared for Mr. Chapleau's assurance that the paragraph of The Globe "contains as many falsehoods as there are sentences in it," and those who accuse him of meditated treason to his party or his leaders "lie knowingly or crimically."
