Enhanced By Perfect Physical Health.

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks dis-tinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or un-derstands how to properly care for her-self. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such nowadays has hiercal treatment at such times, but many approach the experi-ence with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

It is reported that large numbers of horses are being bought in the United States for the British army. A paper states that an Illiaois firm of importers and breeders have received a contract from the French government to supply 15,000 horses at once, the prices ranging from $175 to $200. The same paper makes an estimate that altogether it is expected that upwards of 100,000 porses will be contracted for in the United States for foreign governments, to be used in the present war.

A Lesson in Imperialism

One of the great object lessons of he present war has been the alacrity and eagerness with which the self-governing colonies of Great Britain, even including her Dutch subjects in South Africa, are prepared to cross the seven seas to fight for the Empire. It connotes the sense of citizenship that spreads is as true of Canada as of Belgium .through all her government. In the days of Ancient Rome the words "I am a Roman citizen" stood for all was best and greatest in liberty and shall obtain mercy," is one of the freedom. It is even so with the empire on which the sun never sets. "I am a British citizen" is the talismanic phrase that carries its magic influence to the four corners of the earth. Before the South African war

Boer and Briton were traditional enemies. Today, while they may still have their political differences as to matters of internal economy they are one in sympathy and purpose when the old flag is assailed, and the spectacle of a Botha and a Dewet, the one as premier of the South African Union, and the other as Minister of Agriculture of the Orange River Colony, is a striking illustration of British administration and its power to leaven the lump of apparently discordant elements into one patriotic, loval and harmonious whole. It is the genius of Anglo-Saxon colonization and the secret of

War Events

Now that news is filtering through regarding the prowess of British troops at the front, the record is entirely favorable. German experts derided the British expeditionary force as absolutely ineffective and as practically negligible. They are now disillusionized, and are by circumstances compelled to admit that the British troops, small though they may be in numbers, have been a determinative feature in this pan-European war. Where German militarism has fallen down, and fallen down badly, is in its down, and fallen down badly, is in its notion that unity can only be reached by force. The exponents of militarism have been, in the schools, taught to believe that the German army had before it only a continuous series of yictories. The reaction will be all the more disastrous when that army realizes that its clay is just the same as that of its opponent.

This was early intimated when the German invaders met the serried ranks of the allies. Germany had the advantage at the start. German armies swept over Belgium like a cyclone and rolled down to the very gates of Parts. Just at the moment of investment a sudden change came—how or why is a matter that the annals of the war will reveal. What we do see is embattled armies F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.
