

unclean thing, of its disregard or of its deliberate arrest so that the pursuit of pleasure might not be interfered with. Such is undoubtedly often the result of ignorance, though many times also from wilful disregard of warnings of the consequences. In my experience there are few mothers or guardians of young girls who instruct in the necessary way those under their charge in this most important matter. This often appears to be a mere question of neglect but I am certain it is also very often from a shame-faced aversion on the part of mothers to discuss such matters with their daughters, and so a most important source of influence and a bond of confidence between mother and daughter are never acquired. If the young girl has to learn of this matter from friends and companions of her own age, or from mature women other than her mother, she may also learn from them other things she had better not have known.

There would doubtless have been little difficulty in further pursuing this line of thought. Suffice it to say that I have indicated mistakes the most common in my experience, and the most serious in their results, and if it be thought by some who have heard me that something is due in self defense for the selection of such a subject as that I have chosen for this address, let it only be that it is in some measure a confession. I have included in the list mistakes of my own, humiliating enough they have been, as well as those of others.
