Building water-tight compartment ships like the Elbe, or much better than the Elbe, won't prevent some of them from being sunk by collisions. If the Lucania, for example, the last and the finest from the shipbuilder's hands, should hit her sister, the Compania, square amidship, the latter would be lost as surely as she would be hurt. The only safeguard for ships at sea is in the faithful use of some more penetrating sound than that of the fog horn, or the invention of some delicate electrical contrivance which shall always tell of another ship's presence in the neighbourhood. Where are the wits of our ingenious brothers, the electricians?

Public Opinion.

Hamilton Herald: As a matter of fact the Government does not know what to do or how to do it, and it seems to be no nearer a conclusion now than when it first began to think about it.

London Advertiser: Give the manufacturer free raw material and collect no more taxes than are necessary to run the country and we will all be better off, the monopolist alone excepted.

Kingston News: The productions of Canada and South Africa are so dissimilar that if tariff barriers were removed and adequate transit facilities secured the commerce which would arise could not but be extensive and highly profitable.

Mail and Empire: In a word, the Premier led Mr. Haycock, and Mr. Haycock, following Sir Oliver, voted want of confidence in the leading plank of the Patron platform in order that he might express confidence in the Government. Under the circumstances the Liberal politicians have good reason to be enthusiastic.

La Presse: What has taken place in Manitoba, it cannot be repeated too often nor too loud, is a stain on the British flag, a stain that cannot be wiped away nor even concealed by hypocritically covering it with the principle of provincial autonomy. It is an act of oppression, a refusal of justice, a violation of all liberties, rendered more intricate by a spoliation that nothing can legitimate.

Montreal Gazette: Mr. Laurier does not denounce the corruption of his party friends from which he profited politically. Mr. Tarte, whose name is inextricably mixed up in the very worst of the corrupt dealings that brought disgrace on Quebec, goes about the country with Mr. Laurier unrebuked, speaks from the same platform and is sent on confidential missions to his associates by the Liberal leader.

Montreal Gazette: Has the National Policy made you rich, asks the Globe. When the National Policy began its work Canadians carried $86,000,000 of insurance on their lives. At the end of fourteen years they carried $280,000,000. Under the National Policy a good many people managed to make provision for their families who did not do so under free trade. The National Policy evidently made them comfortable.

Vancouver World: No town in the Dominion is better situated for an industrial centre than New Westminster. The fault that it is not to-day the "hub" in this respect of British Columbia does not lie with it or its people. The restrictions are such as to stifle trade and dwarf progress and commercial prosperity. Practical, instead of theoretical politics appeal to the citizens of New Westminster in the present emergency, and the necessities of the country will be considered before blind partyism.

Vancouver News-Advertiser: Of course enthusiasm in a political meeting sometimes supplies the place of knowledge or good judgment, and it may have been so with our good friends at the Capital. But when they launch their boats on the broad and oftentimes stormy sea of Dominion politics, it is, perhaps, prudent to have both an experienced pilot and accurate charts to ensure safe navigation. Evidently both are lacking when "the Liberal party of Victoria in meeting assembled" passed that resolution that Cabinet representation was this Province's "undoubted right."

The proposed overland route from America to Europe, via the Trans-Siberian Railway, is one of the biggest enterprises of the century, and is progressing at such a rapid rate that the Russian Government is looking forward to its completion in 1901. The western and central portions, reaching down to Irkutsk at the foot of the Baikal, and the extreme eastern portion from Vladivostok are to be ready for use between 1896 and 1898, and the Government is pushing on with the Baikal connections, so as to get them finished by the same date, if possible.
