"messengers" have in all public eating places. On these days no meat is served from outside, except, perhaps, at home.

Q. What procedure does a Canadian visitor follow in Canada to obtain a ration book? Is it necessary to obtain one at a boarding house, hotel, restaurant or business place?

A. Every ration book issued to a Canadian resident in Canada and the ration book initially issued is not annotated or stamped with a residence number. An supplementary book issued in the case of a visit to another city. On change of place of residence the holder is required to forward the book to the nearest ration office, detailing outside residence new address and serial number of the book. This procedure does not be taken in the case of a visit of temporary nature. However, individual coupon values do not vary between regular and temporary ration books. The Canadian resident must follow the same procedure as a visitor to Canada in the case of boarding houses, hotels, restaurants and other places where ration books are issued. It is to be assumed that the world wherever the ration book is issued with the same. Provided the rationing regulations are met, ration coupons are valid wherever in Canada irrespective of point of issuance.

Q. What other commodities are rationed in Canada?

A. Gasoline, under Federal order, and sugar and beer, under provincial order, are the only commodities other than food regularly rationed in Canada. Short supplies of coal, fuel oil, animal products, and other products have necessitated the rationing of such commodities, but these have not been standardized into positive ration forms.

Q. What quantities of gasoline are allowed to Canadian residents during the year for ordinary and special purposes?

A. The current gasoline ration allows Canadian residents for ordinary purposes 40 litres, each with having a present value of three industrial gallons. Additional units are granted after application for special cessation, and only on the basis of individual requirements and antislavery fuel.

Q. What quantity is allowed United States visitors for pleasure travel in Canada and for what period is the amount valid?

A. Four units, entitling the holder to obtain 16 gallons of gasoline, are allowed United States visitors for pleasure travel in Canada. The allowance is valid for one year.

Q. What procedure at the border is necessary to obtain this visitor's allowance?

A. A temporary gasoline ration book will be given to the visitor on crossing the border by custom officers. This book must be surrendered at re-crossing the border, whether expired or not, and is the only book issued during any one year to the same party.

Q. Is the coupon value, in terms of industrial gallons, the same in all provinces?

A. Yes.
