- Appointment of interim international supervisors with executive budget authority over all municipal departments;
- Unification of all three police forces under an international Commissioner;
- Unification of the judiciary;
- Creation of new education, housing and other administrations;
- Unification of all three power companies.

By reforming these control structures, the Supervisor will create effective and lasting changes in the Brcko municipality. These changes will encourage economic growth, foreign investment, employment, and increased inter-ethnic and inter-entity co-operation and trade. They will establish the rule of law and present a pattern for successful inter-ethnic co-operation throughout Bosnia and Herzegovina. They will create lasting institutions, which will enable the Bosnians to successfully govern themselves in an economically viable municipality when the international community finally leaves. All of this will encourage people of all ethnic groups who left Brcko during the war to return to their homes. But without these reforms, Brcko will be simply one more international failure.
