

CONTENTS.

xi.

CHAPTER IX.

146	Of their manner of making war, &c.	165
146	The Indian weapons,	166
147	Their motives for making war,	167
148	Preparations before they take the field,	169
	The manner in which they solicit other nations to become their auxiliaries,	171
	Their manner of declaring war,	172
	The method of engaging their enemies,	173
149	An instance of the efficacy of it in the defeat of General Braddock,	174
150	A detail of the massacre at fort William Henry, in the year 1757,	175
150	Aguteness and alacrity of the Indians in pursuing their enemies,	182
	Their manner of scalping,	183
	The manner in which they retreat, and carry off their prisoners,	184
161	A remarkable instance of heroism in a female prisoner,	185
162	Treatment of their prisoners,	186
163	The origin of their selling slaves,	192

CHAPTER X.

164	Of their manner of making peace, &c.	194
165	Account of an engagement between the Iroquois and the Ottawagumies and Saukies,	196
166	Manner in which they conduct a treaty of peace,	198
167	Description of the pipe of peace,	198
168	belts of wampum,	200

CHAPTER XI.

169	Of their games,	201
170	The game of the ball,	201
171	bowl or platter,	202