

of all men, and only be extinguished by a new and greater light. Any attempt to discredit, by appeal to the present unintellectual hotch-potch system of temporary expedencies of the credit system, upon which life is certainly not moving upwards, will be no argument, but merely the dull animal assertions of non-thought.

The laws of nature are beneficent, and a system where ignorance, misery, poverty and sin are the rule, and where wisdom and understanding, happiness, wealth and virtue are the exceptions, forms no foundation for argument against a declaration of TRUTH.