Gunboat Smith Thinks Carpenter No Soft Spot for Champion Dempsey

As Georges Carpentier, European champion, and Jack Dempsey, world's champion, are likely to soon fight for the world's heavyweight title, the statement of Gunboat Smith, who has fought both men, is interesting. He says: "I hope Jack Dempsey, in agreeing to this match with Georges Carpentier, doesn't run away with the idea that he has an easy mark. He hasn't. I have fought both men, and let me say that Carpenter hit me harder with his right than I have ever been hit by any other fighter in the world. That goes for Dempsey, whom I have boxed twice. "Carpenter is a young fellow. He can't be more than 25 or 26. Dempsey has never met a real young fellow. You can't take it away from him that he has done this best he could with a lot of poor material. But, going right down the line, whom of any importance has Dempsey ever beaten? Just Willard. Why, they needed a derrier to get him in the ring at Toledo. And even at his very best he was no fighter. I know, I fought him. Those other fellows Dempsey beat, who are they? Why, I could check my knuckles at the boy and beat most of them myself. There wasn't a single rugged, healthy fighting youngster in the lot."

The Fighting Method. "Dempsey has never met a fighter quite like this Carpenter. He is active on his feet, jumps around like a cat, and has the most peculiar style of ducking I've ever seen. He almost drags his face on the canvas, he ducks so low. That's how I happened to lose on the foul to him when we fought in 1914. "He had been pulling that duck on me as much as I decided I'd just about bust him one when he bent over next time. I hit him once—not a very hard punch, I think—and he went down. I thought it was one more of those ducks, so I lashed out at him. I didn't hit him, mind you. The pictures show I missed him by a foot, but Dempsey, his manager, jumped into the ring, claimed his man was down when I hit him, and I was ruled out for a foul. "Billy Manker, the St. Paul heavyweight, always keeps about even with Dempsey when they box. Carpenter would knock him out, I don't imagine that right hand of his is poison. Dempsey can't hit as easily as a punch as the Frenchman. "And I don't imagine that right hand of Dempsey. He is the most wonderful fighter developed in my time, and my first opinion is that he can beat Carpentier. I'm a great stickler for first round knockouts. But for all that the bout would be a wonderful one. I suppose the fight will be for twenty rounds. Dempsey has never gone half that long. Carpenter has never fought anything else but twenty-round bouts. Of course, it is not Dempsey's fault that his fights have not gone any distance. You have to hand it to him for ending every one of them in rapid order."

"But Dempsey isn't going to stop Carpentier with the same speed he flattened everyone else, from Al Norion to Jess Willard. That Frenchman is game. He took the count from Bombardier Wells, and came back and knocked the Englishman dead. They thought it a fluke, got his again—and faster than the first time. "Dempsey is a way was lucky. He came along at a time when the fight game had a mighty punk assortment of heavyweights. Even Fred Fulton, a champion, I think. No punch from Fulton would knock me off my feet. Dempsey, I know, can take a punch. In my fight with him in San Francisco I hit him as hard on the chin as I ever hit any man. But I could not put him away. He said afterward he was dazed didn't fight like it. "Summing up, I'll say Dempsey ought to win. I think he is surprised if he doesn't. I think the fight will go to the limit. I'll say any harder than I did in my first meeting with him. And the Dempsey ring experience or, with little or no experience, Carpenter will meet it. The world's champion, who has made good against everyone he has met, who is a true, and none the equal of the Frenchman, but for all that the best we had to offer. Dempsey will likely want the title to remain in our country."
