The truth came out when some of the rev. gentlemen called on the tailor with their bundles, and were informed that the stuff for which $14 had been paid, was not worth $5.

THE PRODIGAL IN WANT.

TO A LARGE CONGREGATION THE STORY IS RESUMED.

Canon DuMont shows how an Immoral Life Brings Misery and Disaster—
"There is a Woman in the Case" Tells the Dread Secret—Degradation and Starvation Follow Disipation—Lesson From Charlie Moorhead.

The rector of St. James' Cathedral gave his fourth address on the downward career of the Prodigal Son at noon yesterday.

"Away from the restraints of home, the young man, in the far country lived an immoral life. He wasted his substance with harlots. Did you in your experience or in your reading find a single instance in which an immoral life did not bring misery and disaster?"

A woman in the case.

"Observe the miseries which follow this life. It first became a life of want. There is nothing in the world which will so soon empty a man's purse, drain his resources, scatter his finances, reduce him so low as a life of immorality. Have you ever heard this question asked of a man: 'How is it that such a man spends his income?' He has a large and sufficient income? How does he manage to get through it?"

The answer passes from one to another. "There is a woman in the question. He keeps a private establishment. That is a deep ditch, into which a man may not see the richest fortune and the largest income."

Pleasure ceased when money ended.

"The Prodigal's evil and impure life drained his resources until at last he came to the last farthing. Now, with the last shilling went all the pleasure and enjoyment, for such unlawful courses can only be bought and obtained with plenty of money. The moment that comes to an end, the pleasure and enjoyment come to an end. Simultaneously with the spending of his last farthing there arose a mighty famine in that man's life. He began to be in want—money all gone, absolute want and poverty staring him in the face."

Then the Prodigal was followed by degradation. It was one of those sad and miserable cases of poverty, where a man's character is gone, where his ability to sustain himself and to recover lost ground is gone, where a fortune is gone, when all these things, one by one, are taken from beneath him by his own hand, and he goes to the very lowest depths of social ruin and degradation.

Vice with a vengeance.

"While the Prodigal was occupied in the degrading occupation of feeding his depraved appetite, and his bitter gnawings of ravenous hunger, appetite increased upon him as he had never known in the days of his luxury. Then his great complaint had been that his appetite was gone; he must take something to give it a rest. It needs no such assistance now. The pang of hunger are upon him, sharp and cruel, and he would fain have filled himself with food. Those upon whom he had spent his money stood afar off, beholding his ruin, and no man gave to him."

As the illustration from Dickens.

"You have seen similar instances again and again. You will recall the bright and happy Charles Moorhead, whom Charles Dickens depicts. A prosperous young man, with plenty of money and winning manners, but he destroys youth and innocence and finds his way into a foreign land, where step by step he plants his feet in the mire of the degrading life of the Prodigal. Money is gone, name is gone, fame is gone, and in their place come misery, degradation and wretchedness—a just retributive of his deeds. At last he takes a common squalor to work his passage home, and the winter rise, the tempest blow and all nature echoes and shouts the anger of Almighty God, and he is sent home a wretched man in the end."

God's Model Young Man.

"There was another young man in whom the Father was well pleased; who could lift his eyes and heart to heaven and say, 'I do always these things which please to my Father.' There is the Son of Man, who was the diadem of life, who dignified manhood, ennobled and uplifted it, set it upon the very throne of God, and crowned it with glory and honor."

"These to you are His gracious and loving words: 'I am the bread of life; he that cometh to me shall never hunger, that he believeth on me shall never thirst.'"

THE CITY MUST PAY.

Norver's Will His Suit—A Case of Alleged Affection—The Plaintiff's Disgrace.

In the Assize Court yesterday the suit of Frank A. Norver against the city of Toronto for damages for injuries sustained owing to negligence on the part of the city was concluded. The jury returned a verdict for plaintiff of $700.

The next case was that of the plaintiff, J. S. Hall, a salesman, brought an action against H. Plaskett for alienation of his wife's affections and damages for the same. The defendant denies the allegation. The solicitor for the plaintiff is Thomas Parker, and for the defendant is Mr. McDonald, Merritt & Shepley. The case will be continued to-day. It is a retrial.

Mr. Justice Ferguson made an order upon the application of Mr. N. B. Gash on the behalf of the plaintiff, setting down the case of The Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada v. Richardson et al. for trial at the present sittings of the court.

The case was concluded.

In the Sessions yesterday Edward Travener and William Bedell, charged with stealing beef from Barney McGilgan, pleaded guilty. On account of the plaintiff's character they were let go on suspended sentence. Another charge against Travener and Bedell, charged with $120 from McGilgan, was thrown out by the grand jury.

Dispute Over a Collision.

In the County Court yesterday morning judgment was reserved in the case of Mrs. Tanner against John Bond and Albert Petch for illegal seizure of a horse. The defendant denies the allegation, and attributes the accident to the carelessness of the plaintiff. The case will be continued to-day.

ON THE TRAIL OF THE BURGLARS

Several Suspects Before the Colonel—Hunt of Stolen Goods—Police Chase.

William Beasley, 9 Robertson-lane; Joseph Bond, 67 Marlborough-avenue, and Edward Wilkie, 145 Wellington-street west, appeared before the Police Magistrate yesterday, charged with burglary. They were retained until the 20th in order to give the police an opportunity to find the other alleged thieves. The specific charge laid against the prisoners is that of breaking into the premises of Mrs. J. Fleming, 287 Rushmore-road, on March 7, and some of the articles recovered were identified as belonging to her.

A large quantity of goods, which the police think was stolen, was found at Beasley's house. With them were two large bottles of chloroform, a gimlet, and a diamond for cutting glass. A fur cap, which is said to be the one taken from the Heintzman residence at Toronto Junction, by a man who pointed a revolver at a lady visitor at the house, and was then frightened away by her screams, is also in the lot. Patrick Quinlan, who is not supposed to be a member of the gang now under arrest, is charged with the crime.

Compton was charged with stealing a quantity of furniture from Miss Agnes McIntyre of the Chalmers Shelter. Another remand was allowed by the Colonel, Compton having paid back some of the money he received from the sale of the goods, and promising to settle the matter.

Ernest Robb, a young lad, pleaded guilty to stealing a number of brass and silver mountings from Hugh Spence, a merchant on Queen-street west. It was his first offence, and he was let go on suspended sentence.

Thomas Mould was sent down for 30 days for stealing a number of chain links from J. W. Harvey, and afterwards claimed that it had been stolen from him.

A further adjournment was made in the abduction case preferred against Edwin Ahlert, and his son by Mrs. R. B. Blakeley, charged with stealing a bicycle from the Stearns Company, and was remanded for a week.

TO PROTECT CITY INTERESTS.

Executive Instructs Solicitor to Acquiesce Bill—Horse Show—Property Values in Business Sections.

A deputation from the Canadian Horse Show Association consisting of Robert Davies, Stewart Houston, Col. Otter, G. W. Beaudry, James Caruthers, J. K. Macdonald, Henry Wade and H. M. Crossley waited on the Executive Committee yesterday and asked for $500, which was granted.

Assessment Commissioner Pratt of Ottawa asked the support of the city in opposing the proposed change to the system of taxing lawns. The city was asked to oppose the change.

The Solicitor was also instructed to oppose any bill that was not in the city's interest.

The City Treasurer was instructed to remit Engineering the balance of the $15,000 due him.

The usual courtesies will be extended to the Catholic Foresters when they assemble here in June.

A statement prepared by Mr. Maughan, showing the depreciation of property in various business sections during the past five years was presented. In 1925, the land value on King-street, from Bay-street to Simcoe-street, was $1,488,042; in 1932, it was $1,504,437; in 1936, it is $1,358,003.

College of Gloucester, 1932, $284,318; 1936, $644,814; Queen-street, Spadina to Bathurst, in 1932, $907,877; 1936, $701,888. The decrease in the five years is $355,281. The downtown sections of King and Yonge streets, where property has increased, is not given.

City Hall Notes.

It is probable that the city will take immediate steps to copyright the Mansergh report.

Butchins & Burns have taken out a building permit for a pair of two-story brick dwellings at 223 Crawford-street, to cost $6000.

Aldermen Skinner, Parnell, Bennett, Cooper, Douglas and Nuttins of London visited the Hall yesterday, seeking for information as to how a city's business should be conducted.

HEIR TO HALF A MILLION.

The Good Luck That Has Come to a Prisoner in the Tombs.

New York, March 12.—John Shaw, a wool merchant, of Manchester, England, accumulated a large fortune. He died two weeks ago, and his savings go to a man now in the Tombs Prison on a charge of larceny.

The man who is to receive the money is Henry Shenfield, and the amount left him by his uncle is said to be $500,000. All the keepers in the Tombs know Shenfield. He has been there at least once a year for the last 10 years. Sometimes the charge against him has been drunkenness and sometimes the offence alleged has been more serious. Shenfield is 40 years old, a robust, hearty Englishman. When he was searched a letter was found in his pocket from his mother, dated Manchester, England, Feb. 23.

"Your Uncle John has died," said the letter, "and by his will you will come into all his property amounting to about $500,000. I trust, my son, you will come home at once and give up your roving life."

Shenfield left England when he was 20 years old, and came to New York. He has since then been in and out of prison on no employment here that was suited to him, and when he worked it was as a common laborer.
