

Silks of the Season

Silk hats are a necessity for all functions—a bad silk is inexcusable—a good silk doesn't cost any more than the other kind. Ours are good ones—they are such as you would buy to-day on Pall Mall or Broadway. Specially imported by us for we are Dunlap's and Heath's sole Canadian Agents—we also handle every other hat of quality.

SILK HATS

$5 to $8.

If it's new we have it.

The W. & D. Dineen Co.

Limited

Cor. Yonge and Temperance Sts.

IN MEMORY OF SIR OLIVER.

Adjourns Until Thursday and Expressions of Sorrow Announced.

Ottawa, April 20.—(Special.)—The House showed and voted its respect for the late Sir Oliver Mowat this afternoon, when it adopted a resolution, moved by Sir Wilfrid, and seconded by R. L. Borden, to adjourn tomorrow night, and stand adjourned till Thursday at 3 o'clock p.m., to allow all who desire to attend Sir Oliver's funeral.

Sir Wilfrid, when the orders of the day were called, arose to announce the death of Sir Oliver.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

He had occupied a position of such prominence in public life that the House would be remiss not to record its appreciation of the loss sustained by his death. Sir Oliver was one of the few surviving members of the first parliament of the Dominion.

FEDERATION LABOR LEADERS HOLD FIRST SESSION HERE

The Arlington Hotel, headquarters of the American Federation of Labor, was a scene of bustling activity yesterday. The sitting rooms and corridors were crowded with visiting labor executive committee members, and with the members of local unions who were desirous of snatching a few minutes conversation with the great leaders of their international organizations in the intervals between the sessions of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor.

Altho the meetings commenced at 9 o'clock in the morning the Council did not get down to business until the afternoon session, owing to the absence of Secretary Frank Morrison, who did not return from a visit to his old home at Walkerton until noon.

Great Interest Aroused.

The interest shown by local labor leaders, and the importance of the matters to be discussed at these meetings seem to warrant the prophecy that this will prove the best series of executive meetings in the history of the American Federation of Labor.

The intense interest felt in these meetings throughout the country is evidenced by the announcement made yesterday that deputations from all over the province, and from many outside points, will attend the monster mass meeting in Massey Hall on Friday night next.

Those Who Were Present.

The following members were present at the first session of the Council: President Samuel Gompers, International Union, New York City; First Vice-President James Duncan, of the Granite Cutters' National Union, Washington, D.C.; Fourth Vice-President Max Morris of the Hatters' International Protective Association, Denver, Colo.; Fifth Vice-President Thomas L. Kidd of the Amalgamated Wood Workers International Union, Chicago; Treasurer John B. Lennon of the Journeymen Tailors' National Union, Bloomington, Ill.; and Secretary Frank Morrison of the International Typographical Union, Chicago.

St. Regrets.

A telegram was received from Vice-President John Mitchell regretting his absence from the Council meeting, the reason being that it was necessary for him to go into the anthracite coal region of Pennsylvania for the purpose of adjusting matters in dispute.

Vice-President James O'Connell telegraphed that it was impossible for him to be in attendance on account of the preparation of his report to the convention of the International Association of Machinists, of which he is president, and which will take place shortly in Milwaukee.

D. A. Hayes telegraphed that he is on his way from the Pacific coast, and hopes to reach here some time during the week.

Major Will Welcome Them.

It was announced by President Cox and Secretary Kennedy of the District Trades and Labor Council that His Worship Mayor Ureghart would make an address of welcome to the Executive Council at 11 o'clock this morning.

City Will Banquet Delegates.

The Mayor and City Council are tendering a banquet to the delegates Wednesday evening at McKenney's.

The guests of honor are to be the delegates from the following unions: Samuel Gompers, Frank Morrison, John B. Lennon, James Duncan, John Mitchell, James O'Connell, Max Morris, Thomas L. Kidd and D. A. Hayes.

Ald. J. Ward will be chairman, and Ald. J. W. Duff will be secretary.

It was decided to hold the sessions of the Council from 9 to 12 a.m., and from 2 to 5 p.m.

The sessions will be held in the rooms of the Executive Council, 1100 York Street.

Getting Down to Work.

The first business of the afternoon session was the consideration of the trouble between the International Association of Sheet Metal Workers and the Independent Chicago organization.

A committee from the International Association of Sheet Metal Workers, headed by President Gompers, and including James Duncan, John Mitchell, James O'Connell, Max Morris, Thomas L. Kidd and D. A. Hayes, were asked to report on the matter.

The committee reported that the trouble was due to a misunderstanding between the two organizations.

The committee recommended that the two organizations should meet and discuss the matter.

The Council decided to accept the committee's recommendation.

The Council then adjourned until tomorrow afternoon.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Council will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

ing members of both organizations and their employers.

If They Fail to Comply.

In the event of the Chicago local of the National Alliance failing to comply with this decision, the president of the American Federation of Labor shall issue a statement that the Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers' International Association is the only body of that craft entitled to the support of other national unions, and that bodies affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

In the meantime, all hostilities between the two organizations of sheet metal workers in Chicago shall cease.

Coming Program.

The council adjourned at 5:45 o'clock p.m., and will meet again this morning at 9 o'clock.

Among the matters expected to be discussed today is the jurisdiction difficulty between the International Association of Piano and Organ Workers and the General Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers.

Many Delegates Arrive.

The labor men who arrived in the city yesterday, and are registered at the Arlington Hotel, are: Timothy Healey, New York, 1st vice-president of the Stationary Engineers; George C. Perring, Buffalo, 2nd vice-president of the Stationary Engineers; J. D. Pierce, Worcester, Mass., general organizer of the Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers; L. Hugh Frayne, Scranton, Pa., 2nd vice-president of the Sheet Metal Workers; Martin Lawlor, Bethel, Conn., fraternal delegate from the A. F. of L. to the British Trades Congress; Max Morris, Denver, Col., general secretary-treasurer of the Retail Clerks; John Mulholland, Toledo, Ohio, general president of the Allied Metal Mechanics; John R. O'Brien, Buffalo, N. Y., president of the Retail Clerks; C. L. Shamp, Toledo, Ohio, secretary of the Stationary Engineers; Daniel Tennen, Paterson, N. J.; W. Wood, Buffalo; B. O. Hooper, Hamilton; John Slocum, Moline, Ill., general president Amalgamated Machine Blacksmiths; and W. McFarlane, Buffalo.

Went to See's.

President Gompers visited the local Chicagoans last night for a few minutes, before attending a theatre party of the labor leaders at Shea's.

President D. L. Mulachy of the International Woodworkers' Association addressed last night the general assembly of the local union in Richmond.

Secretary Kennedy of the District Trades and Labor Council will make a mass meeting of workers in Victoria Hall tonight.

Rev. J. G. Shearer addressed the local Puritans Union in Pythian Hall last night, regarding Sabbath Day observance.

As the meeting had a lot of regular business on hand, including the initiation of 10 new members, no definite action was decided on.

The striking leatherworkers announced last night that they are ready to go back to work at a scale ranging from 15 to 20 per cent.

As this does not come up to the minimum of 15 cents per hour demanded by the union, the men are still out.

The G. A. R. of Toronto Junction have been holding a series of meetings of their 400 members, who are willing to take back to work at a scale ranging from 15 to 20 per cent.

As this does not come up to the minimum of 15 cents per hour demanded by the union, the men are still out.

The G. A. R. of Toronto Junction have been holding a series of meetings of their 400 members, who are willing to take back to work at a scale ranging from 15 to 20 per cent.

As this does not come up to the minimum of 15 cents per hour demanded by the union, the men are still out.

The G. A. R. of Toronto Junction have