JOHN CAMERON, President and

Manag. Dir.

God's in His heaven,

All's right with the world.

—Browning.

London, Tuesday, Nov. 10, 1896.

Lord Salisbury at the Mansion House.

Lord Salisbury's speech at the banquet of the Lord Mayor of London last night was much more pacific than his address at a similar gathering one year ago. At that time the rupture regarding the Venezuela boundary, which President Cleveland's attitude brought almost to war, had assumed an ugly aspect; the Turkish question was at a critical stage; and the troubles on the borders of Egypt were increasing.

It is satisfactory to learn that the dispute as to Venezuela is practically at an end. Arbitration has once more triumphed. In the preliminaries leading to a basis for inquiry, there has been conciliatory yielding on the part of both the great powers, and there is every reason to believe that British rights will be effectually ascertained and permanently maintained. There will be arbitration by an Anglo-American commission, and Great Britain will be entitled to hold all territory settled by her to which settlers have obtained title for as long a period as ordinarily gives the right to retain individual property.

This is a fair compromise, and will likely prove a precedent for the settlement of similar disputes in the future. It would have been a lamentable thing if the two great English-speaking nations of the world had gone to war over this or any other dispute.

We take it from Lord Salisbury's statement that the question is practically settled, and that another strong link has been forged in the chain which binds the two countries together in peace and concord.

When the British Premier came to speech of the Turkish question, he put the best face on the attitude of his Government toward the dreadful Armenian atrocities which he has yet esayed. He could not have put the case against isolated action by Britain in Turkey more strongly than he did when he asserted that an attack on Turkey by Great Britain, without the co-operation of the other powers, would mean conscription. Now, conscription has always been distasteful to the people of Britain, as was proved in the days of the "press gang."

Unlike continental nations, the British never have taken kindly to compulsory military service. The British have always been ready to fight for what they believed to be their rights; but in late years have left war to the professional soldier. For a very long time the belief was entertained that the British navy made her invulnerable men will be in a position to increase their winter's supply of milk to a very great extent, and to keep their cows milking during the greater part of the year. A great many of the silos built this year are the round, stave kind, and are much cheaper than the ordinary frame one.

The New Senators.

It is announced that the two Ontario vacancies in the Dominion Senate have been filled by the selection of Hon. David Mills and Mr. Geo. A.

Cox, of Toronto.

Mr. Cox is well known as a man of unblemished character and undoubted ability. As president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, the chief stockholder in the Canada Life Assurance Company, and other Canadian enterprises, he has a high financial standing in the community. Mr. Cox is in the prime of life, and will bring a strong judgment and clear intellect to the service of the country. He is a prominent member of the Methodist Church.

It is no secret that Sir Oliver Mowat, leader of the Government in the Senate, has been exceedingly anxious to obtain the aid of Hon. David Mills in that body for at least the coming session, and while the honorable gentleman's talents are not required for the service of the Dominion in another capacity, Mr. Mills has no superior, as everyone admits, in the arena of Parliamentary knowledge and debate, and we know no one at this juncture who can render so effective service as associate of the veteran leader of the Senate. It is still understood that Mr. Mills' large knowledge of constitutional and international law will, in due course, be placed at the disposal of the State, though whether or not Mr. Mills will be called to the Supreme Court at a relatively early date it is yet difficult to state. Meantime, it will be a matter of great satisfaction to the country at large that Hon. Mr. Mills has consented to give the Dominion the benefit of his thirty years' experience and great Parliamentary ability as an associate of Sir Oliver Mowat in the Senate.

Jeremiah J. Sullivan, the baseball empire, has been elected member of the New York Legislature. Long practice in calling balls and strikes, and a keen intellect developed by deciding close plays, should make Mr.

Sullivan one of the best orators in the new assembly.

is thought to have been the cause.

old, was found in the canal. He was riding a bicycle along the bank three weeks ago, and is supposed to have the late W. A. Shepard, manager of the Toronto Mail Job Printing Com-decided to make a skating rink in Victoria Park this winter, the approved plans showing an oval-shaped track 20 feet wide and a quarter-mile around.

The estimated cost is $350.

SANGUINARY RECORD.

Deputy U. S. Marshal Canton Has Killed

Sixteen Men.

Perry, Oklahoma, Nov. 10.—Frank M.

Canton, deputy United States marshal at Oklahoma, on Friday night at Pawnee, killed his sixteenth man. During Cleveland's administration he has been an officer for 21 years.

Of late he has hunted wholesale cattle thieves in the Osage Nation, and one of the convicted men threatened to kill him on sight. The man, who was Bee Dunn, once a member of the noted gang of Dalton outlaws, met Canton on the streets of Pawnee and both headed toward the city.

Shot through the head and died on the spot. He was Canton's sixteenth man, ten of whom he shot with the same pistol.
