Martha Henning, confidant of the slain Mabel Millman, to-night returned to her home in Ann Arbor with Sheriff Gaston, following an ordeal before Pro-secutor Van Zile, Chief of Detectives McDonald and the sheriff, wherein she made some more startling admissions which may finally clear up the mystery. Miss Henning fainted twice during her talk with the authorities. She has eaten little and slept not at all since she identified the head of her chum as it was taken from the cement bag in

Among other things, the Henning girl admitted having seen a second surgeon besides Dr. George A. Fritch, now under arrest. She said she asked this doctor, whose name the police will not divulge, whether he would take Miss Millman's case. He replied that he would, and charge but $5 for the operation, and $1 a day for every day

She said emphatically that there had been no operation, then became so overcome by her feelings that she begged to be excused.

Alert to the End.

Earlier in the day however, during the morning before the approach of the crisis was at hand, Mr. Harriman talked with Thomas B. Price, his per sonal secretary in the New York of-fices of the Union Pacific. This was one of the strongest evidences that the railroadman's mastermind was alert to the end, for it is believed tha Mr. Price was summoned to enable the dying financier to give some instrucdying financier to give some instructions concerning his vast affairs.

Mr. Price arrived at 10.40 a.m. but returned to New York at 1.45. It Mr. Harriman's death had occurred before he left the house, his words did not indicate it when he departed. "Mr. Harriman's condition," he said at the time, "was fairly encouraging."

He added that there had been no operation. He had been sent for, he said, to transact some business.
