HEARD IN A PULLMAN ABOUT RECIPROcity

American Business Men Say Benefit Will be All For Canadians—Nova Scotian Agrees Fact Will Help His Province

In the smoker of a pullman coming up from Boston yesterday, three gentlemen fell into conversation. Two of them were Americans. One of these was interested in a coal mine in Nova Scotia. Another was a merchant, who has an interest in financial affairs. The third was a Nova Scotia gentleman returning home after an absence of quite a number of years.

One of the American gentlemen mentioned reciprocity. Said the other: "I think the Canadians have all the best of the bargain."

Said the other, "I agree with you." Then they spoke of the conditions down here, and he who is interested in coal declared that the province of Nova Scotia would witness a very rapid progress during the next twenty years. He and his friend agreed that reciprocity would be of great benefit in helping to develop these provinces.

"What is the matter with your people here?" one of them asked of the Nova Scotia gentleman.

"Well," said the latter, "Nova Scotia has great resources, but capital has been lacking for their development; and it is a curious fact, that, if a Nova Scotia man puts up a proposition, the chances are it will not be received with favor by other Nova Scotians. Our people seem to me to lack confidence in themselves and in each other."

Then one of the American gentlemen told this story:

"I knew an old Nova Scotia farmer, with whom I stayed at different times, and became very well acquainted. He had one thousand acres of land, with a good house and barn on it, and was quite comfortable. Of course, much of his land was covered with timber. I said to him once that he must feel very rich, and that he was much better off than many men who had perhaps a good deal more ready money to hand."

"Well," he said, "I don't know. I have a mortgage of seven hundred and fifty dollars on this property. I have had it for thirty years, and it has been quite a trouble to me." I asked him why he did not sell enough of his land to pay that mortgage. He said he would rather hold the land. I asked him why he did not cut or sell enough timber to wipe out the mortgage. He said he did not cut some timber every year. "Well," I said, "why not cut some more?" His reply was that he hadn't the money. "But," I said, "you could get it at any bank." He said he had never thought of doing that; and so for thirty years he had carried this mortgage and allowed it to worry him, when he might easily have made arrangements to pay it off."

The substance of the conversation of these three gentlemen was that Nova Scotia has great resources, and will progress rapidly under reciprocity; and that her own people should display more confidence in their ability to invest capital in home development with success and profit.

VAGRANT GOES TO JAIL FOR THREE MONTHS

Fred. McAfee Will be Examined to Determine His Sanity—Factory Inspector Reports Jewish Manufacturers

In the police court this morning Thomas Fentin and Daniel Littlejohn were remanded on the charge of drunkenness. Fentin was arrested in Carmarthen street and said that he secured the liquor in a Sheffield street house. He was sent into jail until enquiries can be made about the house in question.

Fred McAfee arrested yesterday on the charge of being a common vagrant with no means of support was again brought in this morning and sentenced to three months in jail. He will likely be examined by the jail physician as to his sanity, and may possibly be sent to the asylum. J. W. Hutchinson told of the prisoner going to a house and asking for something to eat. On receiving it he threw it away.

Samuel K. Cohen was in court to answer to several reports. The first was for not having proper sanitary facilities in his factory in Union street. This report was made by Factory Inspector Kennedy, and was allowed to stand over till Monday. He was also reported for keeping a cow in the rear of his house in Spring street much to the annoyance of his neighbors. This matter was also allowed to stand over till Monday.

NEW Y.M.C.A. SECRETARY TELLS ADVANTAGES OF PUBLIC PLAY GROUNDS

Everywhere Recognized as Necessary Feature of City Life—Cost of Maintenance Small and Wholly Qualified by Results—What Has Been Done Elsewhere

The advantages of having supervised playgrounds in the cities which are habitually crowded with children, unable to enjoy the delights of country and sea shore life in the summer, was the topic of an interesting talk by A. R. Pixley, the newly appointed Boys' Work Secretary, of the Y. M. C. A. yesterday. Mr. Pixley, who has had considerable experience in the supervision of children on American playgrounds, and therefore knows whereof he speaks.

Mr. Pixley said that in his opinion the outlay for the establishment and maintenance of playgrounds in a city of more than 10,000 population was a worthy one, and statistics proved that in every case much good had resulted from the establishment of supervised playgrounds.

In one instance, namely, in Somerville, Mass., where he had supervised the playgrounds last year, an official of the law had told him that where the juvenile arrests for petty offenses during the year before the establishment of the playgrounds had been twenty-three, when the children took advantage of the grounds, the number the following summer dwindled to one.

"Certainly," said Mr. Pixley, "it is easy to see that in the summer months, when the little ones living in the heart of the city find time hanging heavily on their hands with but little to offer in the way of amusement, mischief is bound to result. But when the youngsters have a fine spacious playground with appealing games to entertain them the tendency to mischief lessens, and the instinct of respect and obedience is instilled in its place, because while the children are free and easy to quite an extent, they are under supervision and are placed on their honor to act as little ladies and gentlemen."

Springfield, Mass., now has six supervised playgrounds, Mr. Pixley said, and the children were pleased to have the children so well provided for in the way of diversion and entertainment as they were in these centres of juvenile popularity. While Springfield alone supports these playgrounds, the city providing for their upkeep, within a radius of ten miles there were twenty-five or thirty more. In fact a city of fair size was considered a "back number" without a well conducted supervised playground for its boys and girls.

Everything possible is done to make the place and associations pleasant for the young people, and the increasing numbers in attendance daily are ample evidence that the efforts of those interested are appreciated. From 9 o'clock until 7 and from 2 until 4 o'clock each day the supervisors are present to attend to the pleasures of the children, but those who desire are given access to the grounds at any time, although when playing at other than these hours, they are not to be supervised.

Baseball, basketball, basketball courts, and hearse, springs, quills, parallel bars, slides, climbing poles, and other features figure in the up-to-date playgrounds. It is considered necessary to operate these playgrounds, and the initial outlay for a good-sized playground to accommodate a large number of children seldom is higher than $100 once the land necessary is acquired. To pay two directors, a caretaker and to conduct the grounds for the summer averages about $200, possibly a little more. In Springfield, Mr. Pixley said the money was granted partly by the city and was raised partly by private subscription, leading citizens lending active sympathy with the movement, and the aims of the playground association.

To the Editor of The Times,
Sir—It seems bad taste to put it mildly, for two of the principal buildings in the city—The Customs House and City Hall have been dishonored by flag hoisting it flying long after sunset and sometimes all night. It is to be hoped this bad practice will be stopped at once.

Yours truly,
