

SUGGEST TREATY OF ARBITRATION

Society Makes Plans for Celebration of Centenary of Peace Between Great Britain and U.S.

Hoped That Obligatory Arbitration Would be One Result of Observance in 1914.

Boston, Sept. 19.—An unlimited treaty of obligatory arbitration between the United States and Great Britain is the hope of the American Peace Society as a result of the proposition that the two countries join in 1914 in a celebration to observe the completion of 100 years of peace between them.

The plans for a celebration commensurate with the position among nations of the countries directly interested and the occasion have not yet approached the point, it is said, where details have been definitely discussed, but it is proposed that the observance along the lines of peace without military forms of demonstration and that it include a parade of the merchant marine of both nations, as well as features to commemorate the growth and mutual assistance of the educational institutions of Canada and the United States.

The American peace society gave out for publication nearly two score of letters from an extended correspondence with prominent men in connection with the proposed observance a number of which contain suggestions bearing upon the features of the celebration, and all of which approve the idea.

The interested. Among the writers: Andrew D. White, former ambassador to France and chairman of the American delegation to the first Hague conference; Former Secretary of State Richard Olney; President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard university; Dean Henry Wade Rogers of the Yale university law school; Cardinal Gibbons, President F. E. Clarke of the United Society of Christian Endeavor; Bishop Wm. M. McCall of Mass.; Chas. P. Libby, president of the American bar association; Jas. P. Baxter, president of the New England historic genealogical society; Chas. LOOK OUT FOR SURPRISES

This Week Likely to See Radical Changes In Standing Of Contestants—Reward for Hard Work.

Although the reports received by the contest manager indicate that the ladies who are listed in the various districts as being candidates for the honor of winning the special prize and the free trips to Bermuda are busier than ever, it is very evident to the outsider that many are holding back their subscriptions in order to create surprises for the fellow candidate. If any one thinks that because of the ladies having been keeping to the top right along in this race, they are the ones who are going to win the special prizes it may be well to say at this time that there might be a surprise waiting for such a top-notch in the shape of a "dark horse" that you haven't figured on, and one that will later hand out a vote that may act as a little surprise party for some of the too-confident ones.

It has happened many times before in contests of this kind and it may happen in this one. The thing to do is to keep working, and then you can spring a surprise yourself when the proper time comes.

And remember, the number of votes resulting from the getting of only a few subscribers is going to make a difference in the way the big race will end—the race for popularity and the delightful tour. Therefore, it behooves every contestant so to act while the contest is on that when the voting is over she will not realize to her sorrow the truthfulness of that saying, "Of all the sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these, it might have been." It might have been that she had won the race, instead of her competitor winning it.

FEAR THAT COUPLE MAY BE DROWNED

Henry Bryant and Margaret Eohart Ventured Out in Kennebec River in Rough Weather—No Trace Found.

Kennebecport, Me., Sept. 19.—Fears were entertained tonight that Henry Bryant, aged 23 years, and Miss Margaret Eohart, of Bath, aged 18 years, were drowned when they ventured out in the rough sea off the mouth of the Kennebec river late today in an 18 foot power dory. No word from the couple had been heard up to a late hour tonight, and fishermen in a large and powerful boat and searchlight started to search for some trace of the boat. They found none. Their opinion was that no dory could live in such rough weather as prevailed outside.

TRURO SHOCKED BY MURDER OF WRIGHT WOMAN

Fearful Sight Met Eyes Of Those Who First Entered Death Chamber—Struggle Preceded The Tragedy.

MURDERER LED WANDERING LIFE

Special to The Standard.

Truro, Sept. 19.—The residents of this town are shocked over yesterday's tragedy and the murder of Mrs. Wright, is the only topic tonight.

When the police visited the house they found Mrs. Wright lying crosswise on her bed in an upper room, nearly nude with a gaping wound in her throat and congealed blood covering much of the body. The wound in her throat was more towards the right than the left and was wide open, showing a separation of the wind-pipe. The place smelled strongly of liquor.

A razor with dried blood upon it was also on the bed. Also a clean razor and a razor handle without a blade. No blood was on the last article. The room was in disorder, a broken lamp, broken chamberware and glass and several pieces of furniture recently broken. All these were evidence of a struggle which had preceded the tragedy.

The domestic affairs of both Mrs. Wright and Perry have been the subject of gossip for years. The woman was, when she married William Wright, a blacksmith now in the west, a Miss Maud McCollum, and belonged to North River, Colechester. Her children are the result of that marriage. Perry, whose antecedents do not seem to be certain, has been living in a peripatetic way, some time seeking alms and at other times travelling with various salable articles through out the province. He is said to be from Massachusetts, and about a year ago a woman, claiming to be his wife, was here searching for him. She said she had several children. Mrs. Wright and Perry were living together in a house said to be owned by him.

Mrs. Dodge is well known throughout Caledonia county. She is wealthy and of considerable social prominence. Harlan B. Howe, of St. Johnsbury, will represent her. She has not been placed in jail as yet, but allowed to stay in her own home under the guard of a couple of deputy sheriffs.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 19.—If they have not met with disaster or landed safely at some isolated spot from which they have not been able to report, these three balloons and their crews have qualified tonight, as the American contestants in the international balloon race, which will start at St. Louis, Oct. 17.

The balloon was in the air 44 1/2 hours, and the two aeronauts were practically exhausted. They left this evening with the balloon for New York. Relations Not Quite So Cordial and Feeling Between Two Can Never be Same Again.

Roosevelt Determined Not to Accept Nomination for Governor of New York.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 19.—Mr. Taft is entirely satisfied with the position he has taken. He is not out hunting for delegates or endorsements for renomination. Even the thought that Col. Roosevelt may be in the fight against him does not appear to disturb the president in the least degree. He feels every man is at liberty to do as he pleases. Col. Roosevelt among the rest. There is no doubt, however, that the shadow of 1912 hung over today's gathering. There was not the cordiality of old between the president and the colonel.

It was the first time they had met since the story was given out at Oyster Bay, that Col. Roosevelt felt Mr. Taft had not dealt fairly with him in New York, and had "sold out to the bosses," there in return for a pledge of delegates in 1912. The president felt the injustice of that story keenly, it is said and as a result of it, their relations can never be the same again.

Roosevelt Pleased. Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 19.—Well pleased with the result of his conference with President Taft, Col. Roosevelt returned to Oyster Bay at 11 o'clock tonight and drove at once to Sagamore Hill. "I had a very pleasant interview with the president," said the colonel, "and an entirely satisfactory talk on the New York situation." He admitted that the national situation was also discussed but he declined to repeat any of the conversation. It was learned, however, that they did not take up the question of a candidate for governor of New York.

When the Col. was asked whether today's conference would have bearing on his course in the New York state fight, he replied that his position would be precisely what it has been. "There will be no compromise in any way," he said. "This is a straight fight for decency in politics, as against bossism." Questions followed as to just what was meant by his statement of Saturday that C. D. Collins, Superintendent of State Prisons, whom he met at Syracuse would be his right hand man, at the Saratoga convention.

He chose Mr. Collins, he said, because he wanted a man from the central part of the state, who knows the situation there and will be able to estimate accurately the strength of the opposition. Mr. Collins lives in Troy. The colonel added that he had noticed in estimates given out by Wm. Barnes, Jr. of Albany, that Mr. Barnes had placed some of his own counties in the Roosevelt column. He was too old a campaigner, he intimated, to be thrown off his guard by anything that Mr. Barnes said.

Not For Governor. More emphatically than ever, the colonel reiterated his determination not to accept the nomination for governor of New York.

"At Philadelphia, in 1900, at the Republican National Convention," he was reminded, "you said that under no circumstances would you accept the nomination for the vice-presidency. Yet the convention nominated you and you accepted."

The reminder did not shake him. He repeated that no one could force the nomination for governor upon him, and added, that should the convention be stampeded for him, despite his outspoken opposition, he would decline to accept the nomination.

In speaking of the arrangements which led up to his conference with President Taft, Col. Roosevelt said that it was planned originally that they should meet in New York. President Taft found, however, that it would be inconvenient for him to go to New York, and sent a request to Col. Roosevelt through Mr. Griscom, president of the New York county Republican committee, to meet him in New Haven instead.

Earle Dodge, who formerly was Mr. Griscom's secretary of embassy at Rome, came to Oyster Bay from New York on his motor boat, Tarpon, this morning, picking up the colonel and starting across the sound. Arriving this evening at the Grand Central station in New York, Col. Roosevelt had barely time to drive to the Penna terminal for an Oyster Bay train. The newspaper men ran after him, however, and got a few words.

In reply to their questions, he answered: "Well, I haven't much to say, except that we had a very pleasant luncheon and talk and that I am very much pleased with my visit. I can't go into details just now."
