Of Canadian trade the review will say:—
Trade at St. John has decreased, owing to work in the fields. Fine weather has greatly helped crops, a fair average being now expected even where a shortage was feared. Lumber is steady, and the demand absorbs all that is offered. Steel shipments from Sydney are increasing. The half year's trade in hardware at Halifax exceeded all records. Dry goods sales decreased, owing to weather conditions, but will improve as the season advances. Newfoundand reports a good catch of fish, but the prices are low. Lumber has also declined. Favorable weather has helped dry goods at Toronto, where hardware and metals continue active, groceries sell freely and canned meats are in demand. Hamilton reports good business. Tourist travel at Quebec is smaller than last year, which retards retail trade. Cool and damp weather has hurt business in summer goods at Montreal, but tall orders are large and metals active. Output and exports of cheese are heavy. Warm, dry weather improves crop prospects at Winnipeg, and trade is good. Lumber and building materials are active in British Columbia and retails doing average business. Wholesale trade remains quiet.

The University of New Brunswick, on the other hand, or New Brunswick, on the other hand, has appointed a committee to meet with the joint committee of King's and Dalhousie, but with the preliminary intimation, according to the morning Chronicle, tion, according to the morning Chronicle, that its governing body has "no hope that any scheme can be acceptable to her. Her relations to the provincial treasury and school system are such that legislative union of the provinces seems to be the only may to ensure college union." With the diclaration that Mount Allison will continue its work as an independent institution, and the moral certainty that the U. N. B. will do the same, the amalgamation scheme is reduced to a proposal to tion scheme is reduced to a proposal to amalgamate the Nova Scotia colleges, which so far as Acadia is concerned makes, the proposal clearly impracticable. Acadia is not a Nova Scotian college. It new institution in the Nova Scotian capital, but in their own provincial university Apart altogether, therefore, from any consideration of the abstract merits of the sideration of the abstract merits of the question of consolidation, it would seem that the recent course of events has already put the matter for Acadia outside the realm of practical questions.

One further point needs a word of elucidation. I stated to the author of the despatch that if the question of consolidation were still a practical case these dation were still a practical one there would be many difficulties in the way of Acadia's entering the union, the most im-portant and fundamental of which would be that it would involve an abandonment of that Christian ideal of college education for which Acadia has stood throughout her entire history. Other ideals there are, of course, which are wholly worthy and which in certain circumstances may be the only core averaged. Showed an increase of seven per cent. over last year.

Parton continues to command full prices, supplies falling below requirements, and furnace deliveries failing to fill contracts. Scarcity of fuel is still the principal drawback, while car and motive power shortage are additional causes of delay.

Manufacturers of cotton goods hold prices steady and there has been a distinct increase in demand during the past week, although buying is only for imperative requirements. No concessions are offered by holders, indicating the well sold current condition and confidence, as to the future. Some curtailment of spinning is reported at southern mills, the tendency being to wait until new crop cotton comes forward. Export trade has increased through buying for India, but the last of lightweight woolens and worsteds have opened at unchanged prices, and the increased activity of mills has aroused more interest in the raw material, which tends to advance. Eastern shoe-shops receive more orders and prices are firmly held.

But a line deliveries for seven per cent. over the configuration for which Acadia has stood through out her entire history. Other ideals there are, of course, which are wholly worthy and which in certain circumstances may be the only ones practicable. The state university, for example, sometimes becomes a necessity. Such an institution, being supported and controlled by the state is, of course, incompetent to deal with things spiritual and must confine itself to the sphere of secular education. Another type of college is the independent college which, while free from state connection, adopts from various motives the scular ideal. Incidentally, upon the staff of either of these colleges there might be from time to time men of high Christian character; the organization, however, would give no guarantee at this point. Permission also might be granted to the students of such institutions to unite together for Christian culture and
